Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of Competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of Competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning Approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in Learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for Participant Diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant Centred Learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active Learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training Strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of Training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/Tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group Discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role Play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorise and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energising and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation Games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /Group Exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case Study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalise the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field Visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group Presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice Sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in Assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment Objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of Assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative Assessment Tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: MANAGE SPECIAL EVENTS		NOMINAL HOURS: 80
UNIT NUMBER: D1.HML.CL10.08 D1.HRM.CL9.07
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with skills and knowledge required to manage a special event, either in-house or at a remote location, on behalf of the host enterprise or on behalf of a client/event principal
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Develop event concept and proposal 1.1 Identify event objectives and scope 1.2 Establish event concept, theme, format and protocols 1.3 Prepare event brief 1.4 Develop event proposal/bid details, where necessary Element 2: Determine event venue/location 2.1 Identify potential event venues and sites 2.2 Analyse alternative event venues and sites 2.3 Select event venue/site 2.4 Confirm arrangements for selected venue/site Element 3: Plan and deliver event catering 3.1 Identify and analyse event factors which may impact on catering 3.2 Prepare event catering proposal 3.3 Prepare event catering operational plan 3.4 Implement event catering operational plan		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment This unit applies to all industry sectors that undertake special event management at a designated location within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries (it is to be expected that not all events will contain all the Elements of this unit) and may include: 1. Front Office 2. Housekeeping 3. Food and Beverage Service 4. Food Production 5. Travel Agencies 6. Tour Operation Event objectives and scope may include specification of: • Person or organisation running the event • Key objectives – identifying what the event is intended to achieve • Size of event, duration including times and dates, number of attendees, special needs, location and budget.

Element 4: Plan and deliver sponsorship plans 4.1 Identify sponsorship opportunities, where appropriate 4.2 Create and promote sponsorship packages, where appropriate 4.3 Implement sponsorship items and activities 4.4 Follow up with sponsors Element 5: Plan and deliver event management 5.1 Liaise with event stakeholders 5.2 Prepare event management plan 5.3 Manage event set up in-line with event management plan 5.4 Monitor conduct and implementation of event in-line with event management plan 5.5 Manage finalisation of event and event breakdown in-line with event management plan Element 6: Plan and deliver event registration 6.1 Take event bookings and process event registrations 6.2 Monitor on-going event registrations and take remedial action where necessary to increase attendance/registrations 6.3 Finalise event registrations 6.4 Produce identified event materials for guests and delegates 6.5 Coordinate and process guest and delegate registration at the event	Event concept, theme, format and protocols will include: • Venue decoration, talent, stage and table set ups, catering needs, technical effects and technical support required, collateral materials needed or preferred • Publicity to be given to the event • Facilities, equipment and areas to be used as part of event implementation • Restrictions and limitations that apply to the event • Level of formality to be adhered to • Event liaison and management structure and lines of authority, contact persons for event decisions • Access restrictions, security arrangements, marketing and promotional issues • Identification of key stakeholders – who may include event principal, local community, organising committees, local authorities (including police and fire), external contractors, entertainers, talent, staff from host businesses. Event brief should include: • Agreed event details – including concept, theme, format and protocols • Identification of stakeholders – and their individual roles • Action plans (see below – event management plans) and costing for meeting the requirements of the event • Allocation of responsibilities and setting of milestones and task completion dates. Event proposal/bid should include: • Overview of how the enterprise can meet/exceed client expectations • Sample materials to illustrate planned actions • Production of written or other material ('bid materials') to present to client • Determination of presentation and/or promotional methods and technologies to be used • Arrangement of meeting with client to pitch for the event • Price.

Element 7: Plan and deliver infrastructure for outdoor event 7.1 Identify necessary infrastructure requirements 7.2 Organise identified infrastructure needs 7.3 Monitor implementation of identified infrastructure requirements Element 8: Conduct post-event evaluation 8.1 Meet with client to discuss the event and finalise outstanding issues 8.2 Meet with sponsors to analyse their thoughts 8.3 Meet with staff to debrief the event 8.4 Calculate the financial outcome of the event 8.5 Determine the extent to which the event attained the identified objectives that were set for it	Potential event venues and sites should relate to: • Research into suitable venues and sites – internal and external • Development of specifications against which to assess options • Finalisation of client needs • Negotiation and liaison with site/venue owners or controllers. Confirm arrangements may include: • Identification of tentative and contingency bookings of sites/venues • Payment of deposits • Forwarding and/or exchange of relevant documentation – insurance, business details, food safety plan/program, contracts, restrictions on use of facilities, access arrangements, clean up agreements • Confirming dates, times and prices. Event factors which may impact on catering may include: • Budget, dates, timing, numbers, speed of service • Types of food required, service styles required, cuisines preferred • Location of event , seasonal influences, nature of event • Production and transport issues – general logistics including staffing. Event catering proposal should include: • Details of all catering proposed – including menus, drinks, timing, service times • Costs • Options available within designated budget parameters • Overview of production, transportation and service of food and beverages • Staff numbers • Reference to previous events that have been catered for on the same/similar scale.

	Event catering operational plan will follow acceptance/final confirmation of the event proposal and will present: • Final menus and beverages • Final arrangements regarding timing, locations and all agreed service issues • Final prices • Details of implementation protocols to ensure service and product delivery in accordance with the proposal • Distribution of the plan to all relevant stakeholders. Implement event catering refers to actual service provision of food and beverages at the times, in the locations and in the quantities identified in the final event catering operational plan. This plan will form a critical element of the contract that is signed with the client Sponsorship opportunities can include: • Identification of potential sponsors – including individuals, government agencies, companies, industry organisations • Suggesting sponsorship possibilities and options to clients. Sponsorship items and activities may include: • Overall event sponsorship and/or segmented sponsorship • Satchels and physical items • Meals, drinks, travel, accommodation, speakers, social events • One-off promotional activities and on-going organisational activities. Event stakeholders may include: • Event principal, local community, organising committees, local authorities (including police and fire), external contractors, entertainers, talent, staff from host businesses Event management plan should address planning and preparation issues focusing on event implementation such as: • Staffing requirements
--	---

- Security
 - Management of external contractors
 - Running sheets
 - Briefing papers
 - Staging elements or requirements – including set ups, rigging, room preparation, seating, tables, audio visual equipment, catering, security, sound and lighting
 - Displays and signage
 - Catering arrangements – as specified in the event catering plan
 - Liaison with stakeholders, dignitaries, delegates and guests, media, sponsors
 - Guest/delegate management on arrival, during the event and on departure
 - Risk management
 - Emergency management
 - Performance standards and guidelines
 - Traffic management – including vehicular control and foot traffic within the venue/site
 - Specification of control, command and communication structures – including lines of authority, scopes of responsibility, identification of key contact details for event managers
 - Use of technology
 - Timing and co-ordination of services, facilities
 - Contingency plans – including contingency plans for adverse weather, and other identified high-medium level potential risks.
- Event bookings and process event registrations may include:*
- Recording bookings – including special requests and issuing confirmations
 - Promoting booking
 - Distributing event kits/materials.

	Event materials may include: • Guest and delegate lists and name cards • Delegate kits and reports • Promotional and give-away materials • Display materials • Stationery • Spare supplies • Materials for sale – including cash register/credit card facilities • Audio visual aids. Guest and delegate registration at the event may include: • Establishing registration table/s and necessary support materials including staff • Checking payment status – and accepting payment, as appropriate • Providing session/event details and advice and/or information on venue/site • Welcoming guests and delegates and facilitating other introductions and networking opportunities • Facilitating refreshment services on arrival • Finalising/confirming tours, meals, accommodation and other relevant details, bookings and event-related issues. Infrastructure requirements can be expected to vary widely between venues/sites and depending on the size, scope and nature of the event, but may include: • Power and water supply • Environmental control – including air conditioning, sound and lighting, privacy and screening from public gaze/access • Toilet facilities and the erection of various temporary facilities
--	---

- Emergency services
- Car and coach parking – including use and/or integration with other transport options, including public transport system
- Disabled access
- Signage and other arrangements to meet the needs of people who may have language difficulties/barriers
- Waste management.

Assessment Guide

The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- Identification of key stakeholders
- Description of internal and external factors impacting on events
- Key management issues including role of appropriate event/project management software
- Creativity in event development and execution
- Technical and operational requirements for staging events
- Details of event briefs, proposals and all allied plans and planning abilities
- Presentation techniques for pitching events to clients and stakeholders
- Identification of differential event venues and sites highlighting their comparative advantages and disadvantages
- Knowledge of sources of information in relation to venue and site options, availability, facilities and costs
- Typical operational facilities and equipment within event venues and sites
- Knowledge of different catering options, menu styles, service options for a range of different event types
- Operational constraints for catering at different venues, at different times and in different weather conditions and seasons

	• Space, staff and facility requirements to support a range of catering options • Food preparation and cooking principles and practices • Safe food handling protocols • Features of sponsorship packages, protocols and activities • Potential sponsors for a nominated range of events • Event management practices and techniques – including time management, stress management, negotiation skills, communication skills, risk management and contingency management • Event registration procedures and protocols • Roles and responsibilities of event contractors, suppliers, agencies involved, internal staff and delegates/clients. Linkages To Other Units • Manage financial performance within a budget • Prepare and monitor budgets • Provide a link between kitchen and service area • Provide advice to patrons on food and beverage services • Comply with workplace hygiene procedures • Promote hospitality products and services • Receive and resolve customer complaints • Maintain quality customer/guest service • Manage responsible service of alcohol • Serve a range of wine products • Develop and update local knowledge • Develop and maintain food & beverage product knowledge

- Design a concept for a major event or function
- Prepare business documents
- Manage and implement small projects
- Plan, manage and conduct meetings
- Use common business tools and technology
- Monitor catering revenue and costs
- Manage the effective use of human resources
- Manage legal requirements for business compliance
- Operate a computerised reservation system
- Prepare and deliver a presentation
- Create promotional display stand
- Manage operational risk
- Develop conference programs
- Manage contractual agreements/commitments.

Critical Aspects of Assessment

Evidence of the following is essential:

- Ability to develop an event concept in-line with nominated requirements, objectives and scope
- Knowledge of a variety of event formats and options
- Ability to prepare an event brief and an accompanying event bid/proposal and deliver same to nominated clients/stakeholders
- Ability to research and identify suitable venue and site options for a nominated event
- Knowledge of different event sites/venues within the local area of the host enterprise

	• Ability to plan for the catering (food and beverages) of a nominated event, including staffing requirements and all allied factors that will impact on catering service delivery • Ability to identify realistic sponsors for a nominated event and manage the inclusion of such sponsors into the execution of the event for mutual benefit • Development of sponsorship packages, materials and activities appropriate to a nominated event • Ability to manage the effective and successful operation of a nominated event in-line with designated/client demands, requirements and preferences • Knowledge of the range of issues, problems and risks associated with the conduct of events • Ability to use nominated reservation systems and accurately record bookings for a nominated event • Ability to organise the infrastructure requirements for a nominated event • Knowledge of local authorities, host country government agencies and legislation that applies to infrastructure requirements for an event that include food and beverages • Knowledge of staging requirements for events as listed under unit variables • Ability to organise, coordinate, supervise and monitor the activities of external contractors who have been engaged to support execution of a nominated event • Apply nominated protocols involving communication and liaison with nominated stakeholders as listed under the unit variables. Context of Assessment Assessment must ensure: • Involvement in the planning and execution of an actual and substantial event (that is, the event must be much more than a simple meeting) that involves food and beverage service. Resource Implications Training and assessment must include the use of real resources, clients/stakeholders, products, materials, equipment, venues, staff and external contractors, foodstuffs and beverages as dictated by the event proposal and brief.

Assessment Methods

The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit:

- Observation of practical candidate performance
- Feedback from key stakeholders
- Evaluation of the financial outcome of the event
- Extent and nature of media coverage received
- Oral and written questions
- Third party reports completed by a supervisor
- Project and assignment work.

Key Competencies in this Unit

Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectively

Level 2 = competence to manage tasks

Level 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating

Key Competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	3	Research event options and venues/sites; develop running sheets
Communicating ideas and information	3	Liaise with stakeholders; undertake briefings and running sheets
Planning and organising activities	3	Organise event infrastructure, cater to staffing needs; arrange venues, supplies, and special service needs/preferences of client

- Where can you find information on different types of external suppliers?

Slide

Arrange external services

Liaising with providers to understand offering

- Range of offering
- Pricing structure for each item
- Service guarantees
- Availability
- Prep-event services
- Event services
- Post-event services
- Billing and payment arrangements

Slide 97

Slide No	Trainer Notes
97.	Class Activity – Questions What information would you like to know about external suppliers? • Range of offering – selection of products and services • Pricing structure for each item – including discounts or complimentary additional items • Service guarantees – what quality and quantity guarantees can they provide • Availability - how available are items. It is no use choosing a provider, no matter how cheap, if their items are never available • Prep-event services – delivery and setting up arrangements • Event services- what will the company do during the event to ensure its products or services operate as expected • Post-event services – take down and removal of items, cleaning etc • Billing and payment arrangements.

Slide

Arrange external services

Facilitating access by external providers

It is essential that providers understand:

- What time they have access
- Delivery and parking zones
- Storage areas
- Commencement and finishing times of the function
- Amount of time allocated after the event for access

Slide 98

Slide No	Trainer Notes
98.	Class Activity – Questions • Why is it important to discuss these points with external providers? • Trainer to provide examples of information that may be given to external suppliers in relation to each of these points.

Slide

Arrange external services

Connecting service providers with customer, where appropriate

In many cases functions staff will suggest that external providers correspond directly with the client because:

- Functions staff do not have the technical knowledge or understanding
- External providers can explain what they can offer and provide suggestions
- Can remove a level of activity or responsibility from the functions department

Slide 99

Slide

Minimise impact of function

Functions affecting other outlets

Most function departments within a hotel are very busy places, with a number of events being held at the same time.

It is important that each function does not greatly impact on:

- Other functions
- General hotel outlets

Slide 103

Slide No	Trainer Notes
103.	Class Activity – Questions • What are common impacts that affect other functions or hotel outlets? • What can you do to minimise this impact?

Slide

Minimise impact of function

- Shortage of staff
- Loss of power or IT connections
- Equipment malfunctions
- Excess noise affecting other areas of the business
- Shortage of food and beverage products and any associated items

Slide 104

Slide No

Slide

Monitor set up of function

- It is critical to have the function set up and ready to go by the agreed starting time
- A key objective when monitoring set up for a function is that all necessary mise-en-place is completed

Slide 106

Slide No

Trainer Notes

106.

Class Activity – Questions

- What does the term mise-en-place mean?

Slide

Mise-en-place

Mise-en-place is a French term that means 'to put in place'.

Therefore, 'set up and mise-en-place' refers to all the activities required to prepare the room for service:

- What mise-en-place activities need to be undertaken when preparing a function?

Slide 107

Slide No	Trainer Notes
107.	Class Activity – List mise-en-place activities • Trainer to break audience into groups • Give each group one job role • Get them to identify all mise-en-place activities that would need to be completed before a function.

Slide

Using checklists

Importance of Checklists

- An industry-wide method of monitoring completion and performance of activities is to use a series of checklists

Slide 108

Slide No

Trainer Notes

108.

Class Activity – Questions

- What is the purpose of a checklist?
- What information should be included in a checklist?

Slide

Planning set up

Many venues will have plans of previous function set-ups to guide set-ups.

In all instances the room set-up must be in accordance with client wishes as set out in the contract.

- What needs to be planned?

Slide 109

Slide No	Trainer Notes

Slide

Planning set up

Setting up tables

When setting up the relevant locations the function sheet should be referred to determine the need for specific furniture such as:

- Display tables
- Registration tables
- Tables for merchandise and delegate materials, catering and IT requirements

Slide 110

Slide No

Trainer Notes

110.

Class Activity – Questions

- What are other considerations when setting up tables for different events?

Slide

Mise-en-place

Floor-related mise-en-place tasks

- Preparing, polishing and setting glasses on each table at each setting
- Preparing crockery and cutlery
- Checking support items are ready
- Folding napkins
- Preparing condiments

Slide 111

Slide No	Trainer Notes
111.	Class Activity – Discuss and demonstrate mise-en-place activities ● Preparing, polishing and setting glasses on each table at each setting – including the equipment to ensure that glassware is available and has been prepared to support the service of special beverages as required for the function ● Preparing crockery and cutlery – for placement on tables. Most premises require crockery to be checked to ensure it is clean and free of chips or cracks and that cutlery is to be polished prior to being set ● Checking that items required to support the service of menu items as listed are ready and available. This can include: ▪ Platters, lids and covers ▪ Service utensils – such as spoons and forks for silver service, tongs, cake lifts and stands, sauce boats and underliners ▪ Oven-to-table ware – this is commonly the responsibility of kitchen staff but waiting staff may be responsible for ensuring the stands or mats that these hot items are placed on are ready and available ● Folding napkins – including the preparation of waiter's cloths/napkins ready for use on clothed service plates ● Preparing condiments – including re-filling, cleaning and placement on tables and in waiter's stations.

Slide

Mise-en-place

Floor-related mise-en-place tasks

- Preparing butters
- Readyng all equipment
- Checking or preparing display materials
- Preparing and checking operational readiness of cash registers

Slide 112

Slide No	Trainer Notes
112.	Class Activity – Discuss and demonstrate mise-en-place activities ● Preparing butters – including spares to cater for situations where extra butter is required ● Readyng all equipment – such as espresso machines, tea and coffee-making equipment, bain maries, waiter's stations ● Checking or preparing display materials – some properties will feature a display table to fit in with a theme ● Preparing and checking operational readiness of cash registers where a cash service is operating – this can include collecting and counting the float, obtaining change, checking the audit tape is sufficient for the up-coming session, and ensuring date/time is correct. This may be the role of bar staff in some venues where accounts are processed through the bar register.

Slide

Mise-en-place

Bar related mise-en-place tasks

- Storing beverages that have been delivered to the bar
- Preparing bar garnishes
- Preparing ice
- Preparing and checking operational readiness of cash registers
- Checking to see that all beverages listed on running sheets are available

Slide 113

Slide No	Trainer Notes
113.	Class Activity – Discuss and demonstrate mise-en-place activities • Storing beverages that have been delivered to the bar – where stock is waiting to be put away. This is usually the first job to do in order to get drinks that require refrigeration into the fridges as soon as possible. All stock should be rotated using the First In, First Out method meaning that existing stock should be moved forward and the new stock stored behind it • Preparing bar garnishes – these should include the basic lemon and orange slices and lime quarters as well as more sophisticated garnishes for any cocktails that are being offered as part of the function • Preparing ice – including obtaining ice, crushing ice and readying ice buckets and stands • Preparing and checking operational readiness of cash registers – if a cash bar system is operating • Checking to see that all beverages listed on running sheets are available – and noting those that are not for mention at the staff briefing or ordering replacement stock as require.

Slide

Mise-en-place

Bar related mise-en-place tasks

- Checking the post-mix
- Turning on espresso coffee machine

Slide

Purchase necessary stock

Stock is a very important aspect of a function and without it no function can take place.

Many functions require a wide variety of stock items which need to be arranged, whether:

- Borrowed from other departments
- Ordered internally through the purchasing department
- Purchased or hired through external providers

Slide 117

Slide No	Trainer Notes
117.	Class Activity – Research activity • Trainer to break the audience into small groups • Give each group a specific type of function • Get them to identify the types of stock are commonly for that function • Get them to identify how these items can be arranged, taking into consideration the options provided in the slide.

Slide

Monitor service delivery

- Not only is it important that activities are monitored in the lead up to a function, it is absolutely essential that they are monitored as the function is taking place
- Managers must ensure that work activities designated to staff or make up their job role, must be completed in an acceptable manner within the desired timeframes

Slide 121

Slide No	Trainer Notes
121.	Class Activity – Questions • Why is it important to monitor service delivery? • How can you do it?

Slide

Monitor service delivery

Common monitoring methods

- Workplace observation
- Talking to staff
- Feedback from the function co-ordinator or customers of the function

Slide 122

Slide No

Trainer Notes

122.

Class Activity – Questions

- Which is the most effective method?
- What information can be obtained from each method?
- Workplace observation – watching what goes on as it happens, reading customer body language and measuring waiting times
- Talking to staff – to get their impressions, to identify obstacles that will impact on the ability to perform function activities
- Feedback from the function co-ordinator or customers of the function - constant liaison with the client or their delegated representative is a given in large functions where there are multiple sites and multiple activities.

Slide

Monitoring the function

Areas to monitor

- Checking running times
- Adjusting service delivery to align with Running Sheet
- Arranging changes to the agreed Running Sheet to accommodate the need to do so
- Ensuring quality service delivery
- Ensuring all customer requirements are met

124.	Class Activity – Questions For each of these points: • Why is it important to monitor it? • How can you monitor it?

Slide

Taking action to address service problems

- It is a fact of life there will be problems of some sort at any function
- Even where appropriate planning and preparation has taken place it is still likely there will be problems
- Problems may be caused by equipment failure, shortage of materials, patrons
- Many problems relate to timing issues

Slide 125

Slide No	Trainer Notes
125.	Class Activity – Questions • What are common problems that occur? • What are the causes? • How can you reduce their occurrence? • How can you reduce its impact on customers?

Slide

Taking action to address service problems

- Actively monitor all aspects of the function
- Communicate with relevant people about what is happening
- Take immediate action

As soon as you notice a problem or a timing issue you have to immediately begin to do something to resolve or address the situation.

Slide 126

Slide No	Trainer Notes
126.	Class Activity – Share stories about problems and how they were or could have been resolved Trainer to get audience to share stories, where they were staff or customers at a function where problems took place.
