Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for participant diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant centred learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorize and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energizing and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /group exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalize the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative assessment tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: DEVELOP INTERPRETIVE CONTENT FOR ECO-TOURISM ACTIVITIES		NOMINAL HOURS: 70
UNIT NUMBER: D2.TTO.CL4.07
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with skills and knowledge required to develop interpretive content for a range of eco-tourism activities.
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Research information 1.1 Describe the interpretive approach to guiding and activities 1.2 Identify sources of information for eco-tourism knowledge 1.3 Determine customer interests and potential themes for possible interpretive activities 1.4 Use research techniques to obtain information 1.5 Classify and store information 1.6 Verify information that has been gathered 1.7 Learn the required information to support identified eco-tourism concepts, themes and focal points Element 2: Prepare an eco-tourism activity 2.1 Develop and determine concepts, themes and focal points for potential eco-tourism activities		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment. This unit applies to organisations that are involved in developing interpretive content for eco-tourism activities within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Travel Agencies 2. Tour Operation Interpretive approach commonly uses face-to-face methods and is frequently supported by interpretive media and aids. The interpretive approach should include: • Engaging the participants • Providing a verbal commentary to explain and translate the characteristics, significance and features of the tour • Attributing local and cultural meaning to sights and activities • Facilitating learning, understanding and awareness • Contextualising the tour within a local framework and flavour

2.2 Acquire physical resources to support identified eco-tourism concepts, themes and focal points 2.3 Generate scripted commentaries to support identified eco-tourism concepts, themes and focal points 2.4 Trial developed eco-tourism activities for identified concepts, themes and focal points 2.5 Revise developed eco-tourism activities on the basis of feedback 2.6 Promote prepared eco-tourism activities Element 3: Update knowledge and eco-tourism activities 3.1 Take action to receive information from relevant bodies 3.2 File and share new information 3.3 Incorporate new knowledge in existing activities 3.4 Create new activities 3.5 Correct information and activities that prove to be inaccurate or misleading	• Generating respect and appreciation for the local customs, history and people • Provoking curiosity, thought and encouraging personal reflection • Bringing the tour to life by providing opportunities for learning and participation • Building a relationship between the tour groups and the environment/focus of the tour. Sources of information may include: • The internet • Local communities • Relevant peak preservation and conservation bodies • Authorities, including published reports • Text books and literature. Customer interests and potential themes will include: • Flora, including types, history, concentrations, growth patterns, threats, seasonal influences, preservation and conservation issues • History and heritage of the general area with attention to special items or areas of interest • The general natural environment • The built environment, including its impact on the eco-system • Individual species, including their history, current context and predicted future, foods, predatory inclinations, habitats, mating habits, life cycle and threats • Specific geographic locations and landmarks • Feedback from customers and co-workers suggesting topics for activities • Initiatives recommended by local authorities and local communities • Topics of general community interest.

Interpretive activities may include:

- Guided walks
- Guided site activities, including interactive and static displays
- Touring activities
- Commentaries
- Problem solving activities
- Concept testing activities
- Spotting and observation activities
- Sensory experiential activities
- Any activity that facilitates engagement with the subject that is the focus of the activity.

Use research techniques should include formal and informal research techniques and may include:

- Personal observation
- Interviews with relevant stakeholders
- Undertaking primary data research activities
- Gathering secondary research data from existing sources
- Monitoring media articles.

Classify and store information should include:

- Allocating research data into identifiable categories
- Establishing and maintaining paper-based and electronic storage and retrieval systems
- Preserving actual samples.

	Verify information should relate to: • Confirming accuracy, currency and relevancy of information • Validating contested pieces of information with authorities and relevant others • Obtaining credible evidence to support the integrity of information collected • Checking with local communities and stakeholders to confirm or deny research material. Develop and determine concepts, themes and focal points may include: • Prioritising options that have been identified • Evaluating practicality of implementing available options, including impact, cost, sensitivity, timing, safety and sustainability issues • Planning physical and ancillary requirements to deliver selected options • Setting specific objectives for each eco-tourism activity. Acquire physical resources may include: • Purchasing ready-made materials • Designing and building identified requirements • Seeking to borrow materials from stakeholders • Preparing printed material, including handouts, exercises, guides and fact sheets • Obtaining necessary permissions and authorisations to conduct activities in areas that are sensitive, restricted or of significance to local indigenous communities • Ensuring resources used comply with principles of environmental sensitivity, including considering recycling, re-use and minimal impact • Matching the resources to the identified objective for each of the identified eco-tourism activities.

	Generate scripted commentaries may include: • Ensuring currency and accuracy, including a total ban on fabricating facts • Ensuring comprehensive and relevant information • Including necessary safety and security information relevant to the activity, time of day, conditions and other applicable issues • Ordering the information in logical sequence • Preparing sufficient and appropriate depth and breadth of information • Identifying delivery style • Matching words, phrases and terminology to the identified needs of customers • Explaining unfamiliar terms, abbreviations and acronyms • Including an interpretive orientation to the script • Checking grammar • Ensuring that language used does not give offence, including unintended offence in relation to gender, culture, race, age or personal characteristics • Matching the length of the script to the duration of the activity • Providing an appropriate mix of statistical and qualitative information • Ensuring the commentary explains and translates the characteristics, significance and features of the activity. Trial developed eco-tourism activities may include: • Conducting the eco-tourism activities as planned, including all planned activities and all scripted commentaries • Establishing monitoring and feedback for the trial • Including participants and observers for the trial
--	--

	• Ensuring the trial reflects expected actual tour conditions for the activity, to the greatest extent possible • Recording the trial for later analysis or review. Revise developed eco-tourism activities must relate to evidence gathered during the trial and may include: • Changing the nature, scope, objective, timing or location of the activity • Altering the commentary • Changing the physical resources that supported the trial, including acquisition of new resources, providing alternative resources, or deleting the use of existing resources • Deciding not to proceed with an activity that has demonstrated significant negative or potentially dangerous or harmful impacts. Promote prepared eco-tourism activities may include: • Including the eco-tourism activity in new or existing advertisements, packages and itineraries • Erecting signage to support the activity • Notifying co-workers in relation to the activity. Take action to receive information may include: • Joining professional associations • Registering on-line with relevant sources • Maintaining a connection with relevant stakeholders and communities • Monitoring the media. Share new information may include: • Sharing information with colleagues • Sharing information with customers.

Incorporate new knowledge in existing activities may include:

- Amending activities to suit new information, including static and interactive activities
- Updating printed materials provided to customers, including handouts and static signage at displays
- Changing the commentaries to include new information.

Assessment Guide

The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- Enterprise policies and procedures in regard to the operation of eco-tourism activities to ensure minimal impact and the need to conduct all such operations in consultation with appropriate communities
- Principles of minimal impact tourism activities and operation
- Knowledge of host country legislation, standards, regulations and codes of practice in relation to eco-tourism
- Ability to use research techniques
- Knowledge of key concepts of ecology which must include specific knowledge relating to the ecology of the environment where the eco-tourism activities are to be conducted; this knowledge may include biotic and physical factors, populations, biodiversity, abundance, food webs, life cycles, succession, zoning, nutrition, water, energy, interaction of species with the environment, impact of humans and natural events, characteristics and commonalities, as appropriate
- Knowledge of the interrelationships that exist between nominated parts of the eco-system
- Knowledge of ecological terminology
- Principles of interpretive guiding and activities
- Ability to write scripted commentaries, posters and general handout material
- Ability to plan and produce physical resources, materials, props and other physical requirements to support eco-tourism activities.

	Linkages To Other Units • Develop and update tourism industry knowledge • Follow safety and security procedures • Work as a tour guide • Conduct interpretive activities in the field • Demonstrate/observe respect for indigenous cultures • Research and share information on indigenous cultures • Develop and monitor culturally appropriate tourism activity • Plan, develop and evaluate interpretive activities • Prepare and present tour commentaries • Develop/monitor ecologically sustainable tourism operations. Critical Aspects of Assessment Evidence of the following is essential: • Understanding of host enterprise policies and procedures in regard to the operation of eco-tourism activities to ensure minimal impact and the need to conduct all such operations in consultation with appropriate communities • Knowledge of host country legislation, standards, regulations and codes of practice in relation to eco-tourism • Demonstrated ability to apply principles of interpretive guiding and interpretive activities • Demonstrated ability to develop minimal impact tourism activities • Demonstrated ability to research a nominated eco-topic and present sufficient and valid information that could be used to develop an eco-tourism activity on a nominated focal point/objective

- Demonstrated ability to prepare an eco-tourism activity, including commentary and all necessary supporting resources on a nominated theme appropriate for designated types of tour group members
- Demonstrated ability to update eco-tourism information and identify how that information and feedback received from colleagues and customers on a nominated eco-tourism activity can be integrated into a new or revised eco-tourism activity.

Context of Assessment

This unit may be assessed on or off the job:

- Assessment should include practical demonstration either in the workplace or through a simulation activity, supported by a range of methods to assess underpinning knowledge
- Assessment must relate to the individual's work area or area of responsibility.

Resource Implications

- Training and assessment must include the use of real environments, real information, real materials and real eco-tourism settings; and access to workplace standards, procedures, policies, guidelines, tools and equipment.

Assessment Methods

The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit:

- Observation of practical candidate performance
- Portfolio of eco-tourism activities such as research material, handouts and other props, samples and similar that form the basis and that have been developed
- Feedback from people who have participated in the trial of an eco-tourism activity to gauge their level of satisfaction and engagement
- Role plays
- Oral and written questions
- Third party reports completed by a supervisor
- Project and assignment work.

	Key Competencies in this Unit Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectively Level 2 = competence to manage tasks Level 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating
	Key Competencies	Level	Examples
	Collecting, organising and analysing information	2	Gather information as the basis for eco-tourism activities
	Communicating ideas and information	2	Prepare activities to communicate understanding to tour group members
	Planning and organising activities	2	Establish a system to classify and store information
	Working with others and in teams	2	Liaise with co-workers and customers to identify suitable activities
	Using mathematical ideas and techniques	-
	Solving problems	1	Validate contested information
	Using technology	1	Use the internet for research

Interpretive guiding

Importance of interpretive guiding

Like in any tour, the need for interpretive guiding is essential to ensure a tour is:

- Conducted in a professional manner
- Full of interesting facts and activities

Slide

Interpretive guiding

Importance of interpretive guiding

Understanding the terms eco-tourism and the approach for an interpretive activity must be the starting point for identifying the basis for an interpretive activity.

- What do these terms mean?

Discussion

Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Eco-tourism

Definition of eco-tourism

In essence, ecotourism is a form of tourism involving visiting and understanding fragile, exotic, pristine, relatively undisturbed or threatened natural areas.

- What are examples of eco-tourism in your region?

Slide 9

Slide No	Trainer Notes
9.	Discussion Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Eco-tourism

Common purposes of eco-tourism

- Educate travelers
- To provide funds for ecological conservation
- To directly benefit the economic development and political empowerment of local communities
- To generate respect for different cultures and for human rights.

Slide 10

Slide No	Trainer Notes
10.	Discussion What is the focus of eco-tourism?

Slide

Interpretive guiding

Interpretive guiding

Interpretive guiding can be seen as the use of interpretive activities and presentation techniques by a tour guide when conducting a tour.

- What are characteristics of interpretive guiding?

Slide 11

Slide No	Trainer Notes
11.	Discussion Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Interpretive techniques

Interpretive techniques

Interpretive techniques are ways of communicating information to visitors.

Interpretive guiding commonly uses face-to-face methods and is frequently supported by interpretive media and aids:

- What are types of interpretive techniques?

Slide 12

Slide No	Trainer Notes
12.	Discussion Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Interpretive techniques

Interpretive techniques

- Role playing
- Using different voice techniques
- Story-telling
- Playing of games
- Conducting activities
- Presenting demonstrations
- Delivering participant interaction situations
- Holding sensory awareness exercises
- Using materials to enhance illustration and experiences
- Utilising technology to assist with delivery

Slide 13

Slide No	Trainer Notes
13.	Discussion • Discuss these techniques • When are they best used? • Provide examples of real life examples.

Slide

Interpretive techniques

Commentaries

- It is important to note at the start of this manual that one of the main elements of 'interpretive content' is through the development and use of commentaries
- A 'commentary' refers to information provided by the tour guide to tour group members as part of a tour

Slide 14

Slide No	Trainer Notes
14.	Discussion - What is the purpose of commentary? - What types are there? - How can you provide commentary to customers?

Slide

Interpretive guiding considerations

Considerations when conducting interpretive guiding

- The subject that is the basis of the activity
- Integration into other considerations
- Background to the activity
- Resources available
- Thoughts and opinions
- Need to comply with mandatory obligations
- Feedback that has been received from past tour group members
- The need to apply relevant guiding principles

Slide 15

Slide No	Trainer Notes
15.	Discussion Discuss these considerations providing real life examples of how they impact on guiding.

Slide

Interpretive guiding features

Key features of interpretive guiding

- Provide a verbal commentary
- Facilitate understanding
- Give local and cultural context
- Conduct appropriate and meaningful activities
- Contextualise the tour and activities

POETRY

One approach used for interpretive guiding is the acronym POETRY. This formula states delivery to tour groups must be:

- P = Purposeful
- O = Organised
- E = Enjoyable or Engaging, or Entertaining
- T = Thematic
- R = Relevant to the audience
- Y = You (the tour guide)

Sources of information

Importance of having updated information

An essential aspects of conducting interpretive activities and providing accurate and informative content is to ensure that you are well versed in all aspects of:

- General eco-tourism issues and considerations
- Specific eco-tourism issues that apply to the region
- Eco-tourism facts and figures pertaining to the focal areas in which the tour will be based around

Slide 18

Slide No	Trainer Notes
18.	Discussion What are examples of sources of information?

Slide

Sources of information

Sources of information

- Relevant peak preservation and conservation bodies
- Ministries of Tourism
- Tourism Boards

Slide

Understanding tour requirements

Identify requirements of the eco-tourism tour or activity to be conducted

- Reading advertising or promotional materials
- Reading the customer itinerary for the tour
- Joining the tours already developed
- Talking to other tour guides
- Obtaining a copy of the script being currently used
- Speaking with management

Slide 20

Slide No	Trainer Notes

Slide

Understanding tour requirements

Identify requirements of the eco-tourism tour or activity to be conducted

- Using personal knowledge of the tour route
- Reading feedback from past tour group members
- Taking other tours provided by competitors or other tour operators
- Speaking with organisational staff
- Reading the contract for the tour
- Talking to management

Slide 21

Slide No	Trainer Notes
21.	Discussion Discuss these requirements.

Slide

Determine customer interests

Finding out needs of the customer

It is essential to talk to the customer to identify:

- Their needs, wants and preferences
- Critical aspects or topics which must be covered
- Type or nature of the information required
- Who the people in the tour group will be

Slide 22

Slide No	Trainer Notes

A 'message' underpins and supports the theme for an activity.

- What are examples of messages for eco-tourism tours or activities?

Slide 24

Slide No	Trainer Notes
24.	Discussion Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Develop theme and message

Develop theme

The 'theme' for the activity or the tour is often referred to as 'the take home message' for the visitors:

- What are examples of themes for eco-tourism tours or activities?

Slide 25

Slide No	Trainer Notes
25.	Discussion Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Develop theme and message

Considerations when developing themes

- Support and align with identified objectives
- Be approved
- Integrate and align with the interpretive approach to guiding
- Factor in the expected delivery environment
- Comply with required and expected business principles and ethical standards

Slide 26

Slide No	Trainer Notes
26.	Discussion Discuss the importance of these considerations.

Slide

Develop theme and message

Themes for interpretive activities

- Flora, including types, history, concentrations, growth patterns, threats, seasonal influences, preservation and conservation issues
- History and heritage of the general area with attention to special items or areas of interest
- The general natural environment
- The built environment, including its impact on the eco-system

Slide 27

Slide No	Trainer Notes
27.	Discussion • What are examples of these themes in your region? • How can you create tours and activities based around these themes?

Slide

Develop theme and message

Themes for interpretive activities

- Individual species, including their history, current context and predicted future, foods, predatory inclinations, habitats, mating habits, life cycle and threats
- Specific geographic locations and landmarks
- Feedback from customers and co-workers suggesting topics for activities
- Initiatives recommended by local authorities and local communities
- Topics of general community interest

Slide

Use research techniques to obtain information

Importance of conducting research

In order for interpretive activities and associated content to be effective there is a non-negotiable need for Tour Guides to research the subject that is the focus of the activity.

- Why is this important?
- How can you conduct research?

Slide 29

Slide No	Trainer Notes
29.	Discussion Discuss questions in the slide.

Slide

Use research techniques to obtain information

Basic requirements for researched information

It is essential all facts and information obtained as a result of the research process align with the criteria which require them to be:

- Relevant
- Correct and accurate
- Comprehensive
- Current, where applicable

Slide 30

Slide No	Trainer Notes
30.	Discussion Explain the importance of these four points.

Slide

Use research techniques to obtain information

Collect primary and secondary data

The two most common sources of data are:

- Primary data – collected for a specific purpose
- Secondary data – generic information

Slide 31

Slide No	Trainer Notes
31.	Discussion • Explain the difference between these types of data. • Provide examples of both.

Slide

Use research techniques to obtain information

Research options

- Reading site and location specific information sources
- Talking and listening to relevant people
- Consulting with local communities
- Organising information from personal memory and personal experiences
- Monitoring the media

Slide 32

Discuss

How can information be stored / filed?

Slide

Classify and store information

- Every tourism operator will have their own method of filing and storing information
- Every office will have a system of filing all information so that it is easy to retrieve

Slide 37

Slide No	Trainer Notes
37.	Discuss Discuss importance of having appropriate inventory storage system.

Slide

Classify and store information

Options for storing information

Information inventory systems may be:

- Manual filing systems
- Computerised systems
- Combination of the above

Slide 38

Slide No	Trainer Notes
38.	Discuss Provide examples of each system.

Slide

Classify and store information

Considerations when storing information

- Timing of data entry and up-dates, including up-date schedules
- Authorities to enter data, including designation of individuals and positions within the business
- Identification of specific data that must and must not be entered onto the system
- Complying with operational requirements the data system
- Version controls to note dates material was last edited/up-dated

Slide 39

Slide No	Trainer Notes
39.	Discuss Discuss importance of these considerations?

Slide

Classify and store information

Classifying information

The process of classifying information includes:

- Preserving actual samples
- Organising facts into discrete sections
- Arranging information under nominated headings
- Ordering statistics in date or time sequence
- Contrasting one set of data to another set for the purposes of comparison
- Grouping similar facts and details
- Indexing the information obtained

- Revise developed eco-tourism activities on the basis of feedback
- Promote prepared eco-tourism activities

Slide 49

Slide No	Trainer Notes
49.	Trainer identifies the Performance Criteria for this Element, as listed on the slide.

Slide

Develop eco-tourism activities

Key points of determining and creating activities

- Prioritising options that have been identified
- Evaluating practicality of implementing available options, including impact, cost, sensitivity, timing, safety and sustainability issues
- Planning physical and ancillary requirements to deliver selected options
- Setting specific objectives for each eco-tourism activity

Slide 50

Slide

Generate scripted commentaries

Importance of commentaries

One of the main features of providing 'interpretive content' is to have commentary to support activities.

All tour commentaries should be:

- Well thought out, accurate
- Entertaining
- Containing all essential information to help customers understand and enjoy the tour and associated activities

Slide 68

Slide No	Trainer Notes
68.	Class Activity – Discuss • What are examples of commentaries you have enjoyed in the past? • What made them enjoyable?

Slide

Generate scripted commentaries

Benefits of commentary scripts

- They allow the quick and efficient communication of information and facts
- They can be used to reinforce and remind tour group members of detail and data pertinent to an activity
- They can be pre-planned and practiced
- They are expected
- They are inexpensive

Slide 69

Slide No	Trainer Notes
69.	Class Activity – Discuss What other benefits exist?

Slide

Generate scripted commentaries

Considerations when preparing commentary scripts

- Identify the commentary information that needs to be conveyed
- Research the selected commentary information that needs to be conveyed

Respect local communities

At all times the Tour Guide must ensure there is respect shown for local communities.

Practical aspects of this requirement may include:

- Meeting with local communities to develop Codes of Practice and other working agreements
- Developing Codes of Conduct
- Notifying communities in advance
- Maintaining regular contact with local communities
- Providing economic opportunity for host communities

Slide 78

Slide No	Trainer Notes

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Explaining interpretive activities

After tour group members have been formally introduced to the interpretive activity, the activity must be explained to them:

- What do customers need to know?
- How would you explain activities?

Slide 86

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Communication techniques

- Repeat parts of the commentary
- Be prepared to paraphrase what has already been said
- Speak at a different pace
- Use plenty of pointing and hand gestures
- Interact with the group

Slide 87

Slide No	Trainer Notes
87.	Class Activity – Discuss • What is the purpose and importance of these communication techniques? • What other communication tips would you use?

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Communication techniques

- Be constantly alert to barriers to communications
- Common barriers are noise and line-of-sight obstacles.
- Check for understanding of what has been said
- Use extra staff
- Address emotional barriers

Slide 88

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Confirm customer understanding of upcoming activity

A vital part of the explanation and demonstration phase is the need to ensure tour group members understanding of requirements:

- Why is it important to confirm understanding?
- What methods can be used to check understanding?

Slide 91

Slide No	Trainer Notes
91.	Class Activity – Discuss Discuss the questions in the slide.

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Provide interpretive commentary

Conduct of interpretive activities will traditionally require the provision of commentary and the use of a range of interpretive presentation techniques.

All tours will require some form of commentary:

- Commentary may be described as:
- Scripted
- Unscripted

Slide 92

Slide No	Trainer Notes
92.	Class Activity – Discuss • What is the difference? • When are each type of commentary best used?

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Advice on delivering scripted commentary

- Ensuring visibility to all tour group members
- Facing the group
- Speaking loudly enough for everyone to hear
- Remaining enthusiastic and appropriate to the nature and content of the activity
- Beginning the verbal commentary sufficiently in advance of a scheduled event
- Focusing attention on entire group

Slide 93

Slide No	Trainer Notes
93.	Class Activity – Discuss Why are these points important?

Slide

Trial developed eco-tourism activities

Advice on delivering scripted commentary

- Communicating at level that will be understood by the audience
- Encouraging questions
- Making the commentary a 'unique' event
- Knowing when to be quiet
- Adjusting the commentary as required

Use prepared aids and materials

Hard copy items

- Safety tips
- Information handouts
- Rules of the game
- Permanent take home copy of the commentary
- Maps
- Diagrams
- Photographs
- Sight cards
- Activity sheets
- Exercise sheets
- Question sheets
- Score cards

Revise eco-tourism activities

Importance of conducting review and evaluation

Once the trial interactive activity has taken place, it is now time to review and evaluate the success of the trial and to make recommendations for future success.

All interpretive activities need to be reviewed and evaluated as part of standard operating procedures.

- What is the difference between a review and evaluation?
- Why are they important to do?
- How can they be done?

Slide 100

Slide No	Trainer Notes
100.	Class Activity –Discuss Discuss questions in the slide.

Slide

Revise eco-tourism activities

Purpose of conducting a review and evaluation

- Determine if the activities are effective
- Assess whether or not the activities remain relevant
- Identify satisfaction levels of tour group members
- Work out the extent to which the activities 'as delivered' in reality match expectations
- Calculate the cost of conducting the activities
- Meet quality assurance obligation
- Provide current and actual data to management
- Confirm all management protocols remain valid and effective
