Competency Based Assessment (CBA) – An Introduction for Assessors

Assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency.

Suggested Assessment Methods

For each unit of competency a number of assessment tools have been identified including:

- Work Projects
- Oral Questions
- Written Questions
- Third Party Statements
- Observation Checklists.

Instructions and Evidence Recording Sheets have been identified in this Assessment Manual for use by Assessors.

Alternative Assessment Methods

Whilst the above mentioned assessment methods are suggested assessment methods, the assessor may use an alternate method of assessment taking into account:

- a) The nature of the unit
- b) The strengths of participants
- c) The number of participants in the class
- d) Time required to complete assessments
- e) Time dedicated to assessment
- f) Equipment and resources required.

Alternate assessment methods include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals/slides/audiotapes

- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects and Role plays
- Group projects
- Recognition of Prior Learning.

Whilst there is no specific instruction or evidence collection documents for all the alternative assessment methods, assessors can record competency in the 'Other' section within the 'Competency Recording Sheet'.

Selection of Assessment Methods

Each assessor will determine the combination of Assessment Methods to be used to determine Competency for each Competency Unit on a student by student basis.

'Sufficient' evidence to support the 'Pass Competent'/'Not Yet Competent' decision must be captured.

In practice this means a minimum of 2 – 3 Assessment Methods for each candidate for each Competency Element is suggested.

At least one method should provide evidence of practical demonstration of competence.

The following assessment methods deemed to provide evidence of practical demonstration of competence include:

- Practical Work Projects
- Third Party Statement
- Observation Checklist.

Assessing Competency

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- 'Pass Competent' (PC)
- 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

Regional Qualifications Framework and Skills Recognition System

The 'Regional Qualifications Framework and Skills Recognition System', also known as the 'RQFSRS' is the overriding educational framework for the ASEAN region.

The purpose of this framework is to provide:

- A standardised teaching and assessment framework
- Mutual recognition of participant achievement across the ASEAN region. This includes achievement in individual Units of Competency or qualifications as a whole.

The role of the 'RQFSRS' is to provide, ensure and maintain 'quality assurance' across all countries and educational providers across the ASEAN region

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

This process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Code of Practice for Assessors

This Code of Practice provides:

- Assessors with direction on the standard of practice expected of them
- Candidates with assurance of the standards of practice expected of assessors
- Employers with assurance of the standards maintained in the conduct of assessment.

The Code detailed below is based on the International Code of Ethics and Practice (The National Council for Measurement in Education [NCME]):

- The differing needs and requirements of the person being assessed, the local enterprise and/or industry are identified and handled with sensitivity
- Potential forms of conflict of interest in the assessment process and/or outcomes are identified and appropriate referrals are made, if necessary
- All forms of harassment are avoided throughout the planning, conducting, reviewing and reporting of the assessment outcomes

- The rights of the candidate are protected during and after the assessment
- Personal and interpersonal factors that are not relevant to the assessment of competency must not influence the assessment outcomes
- The candidate is made aware of rights and process of appeal
- Evidence that is gathered during the assessment is verified for validity, reliability, authenticity, sufficiency and currency
- Assessment decisions are based on available evidence that can be produced and verified by another assessor
- Assessments are conducted within the boundaries of the assessment system policies and procedures
- Formal agreement is obtained from both the candidate and the assessor that the assessment was carried out in accordance with agreed procedures
- The candidate is informed of all assessment reporting processes prior to the assessment
- The candidate is informed of all known potential consequences of decisions arising from an assessment, prior to the assessment
- Confidentiality is maintained regarding assessment results
- The assessment results are used consistently with the purposes explained to the candidate
- Opportunities are created for technical assistance in planning, conducting and reviewing assessment procedures and outcomes.

Instructions for Different Assessment Methods

Specifications for Work Project Assessment

These guidelines concern the use of work projects.

The work projects identified in the Training Manuals involve a range of tasks, to be performed at the discretion of the Assessor.

Work project tasks can be completed through any form of assessment as identified in the Trainer and Trainee Manuals and stated at the start of this section.

Assessors should follow these guidelines:

- Review the Work Projects at the end of each 'Element of Competency' in the Trainee Manual to ensure you understand the content and what is expected
- Prepare sufficient resources for the completion of work activities including:
 - Time – whether in scheduled delivery hours or suggested time participants to spend outside of class hours
 - Resources – this may involve technical equipment, computer, internet access, stationery and other supplementary materials and documents
- Prepare assessment location (if done in class) making it conducive to assessment
- Explain Work Projects assessment to candidate, at the start of each Element of Competency. This ensures that participants are aware of what is expected and can collate information as delivery takes place

- Assessors can use the following phrase as a guide (where an 'X' is identified, please input appropriate information):
 "At the end of each Element of Competency there are Work Projects which must be completed. These projects require different tasks that must be completed.
 These work projects are part of the formal assessment for the unit of competency titled X:
- You are required to complete these activities:
 - Using the 'X' method of assessment*
 - At 'X' location*
 - You will have 'X time period' for this assessment*
 - You are required to compile information in a format that you feel is appropriate to the assessment
 - Do you have any questions about this assessment?"
- Commence Work Project assessment:
 - The assessor may give time for participants to review the questions at this time to ensure they understand the nature of the questions. The assessor may need to clarify questions
 - Participants complete work projects in the most appropriate format
 - Participants must submit Work Project evidence to the assessor before the scheduled due date
- Assessor must assess the participant's evidence against the competency standards specified in each Element of Competency and their own understanding. The assessor can determine if the participant has provided evidence to a 'competent' standard
- Transcribe results/details to Competency Recording Sheet
- Forward/file assessment record.

Specifications for Oral Question Assessment

These guidelines concern the use of oral questioning.

Assessors should follow these guidelines.

- Prepare Assessment Record for Oral Questioning. One record for each candidate:
 - Enter Student name
 - Enter Assessor name
 - Enter Location
- Familiarise self with Questions to be asked
- Prepare assessment location (table and chairs) making it conducive to assessment
- Explain Oral Questioning assessment to candidate, using the following phrase as a guide (where a 'X' is identified, please input appropriate information):
"These oral questions are part of the formal assessment for the unit of competency titled X.

There are X questions and you are required to answer all of them to the best of your ability and I will record whether or not you have answered correctly.

We have 60 minutes for this assessment.

- I will give you feedback at the end of the assessment
- Do you have any questions about this assessment?”
- Commence Oral Questioning assessment:
 - Complete Assessment Record for the Oral Questioning by:
 - a) Ticking PC or NYC, as appropriate
 - b) Entering ‘Remarks’ as required
 - c) Completing Oral Questioning within 60 minutes
- Complete Oral Questioning and provide feedback to candidate
- Transcribe results/details to Competency Recording Sheet
- Forward/file assessment record.

Specifications for Written Question Assessment

These guidelines concern the use of written questioning.

Assessors should follow these guidelines:

- Familiarise self with Questions and Answers provided
- Print and distribute copies of ‘Written Questions’ for participants. Ideally this should take place with adequate time for participants to answer all questions before the expected due date
- Explain Written Questioning assessment to candidate, using the following phrase as a guide (where a ‘X’ is identified, please input appropriate information):

“These written questions are part of the formal assessment for the unit of competency titled X.

There are X questions and you are required to answer all of them to the best of your ability.

You may refer to your subject materials, however where possible try to utilise your existing knowledge when answering questions.

Where you are unsure of questions, please ask the Assessor for further instruction. This may be answering the question orally or asking the assessor to redefine the question.

We have X time for this assessment:

- The due date for completion of this assessment is X
- On this date you must forward the completed questions to the assessor by X time on the date of X
- Do you have any questions about this assessment?”
- The assessor may give time for participants to review the questions at this time to ensure they understand the nature of the questions. The assessor may need to clarify questions
- Participants may record written answers (where possible)
- Participants must submit the written answers to the assessor before the scheduled due date

- Assessor must assess the participant's written answers against the model answers provided as a guide, or their own understanding. The assessor can determine if the participant has answered the questions to a 'competent' standard
- Transcribe results/details to Competency Recording Sheet
- Forward/file assessment record.

Specifications for Observation Checklist

These specifications apply to the use of the Observation Checklist in determining competency for candidates.

Only an approved assessor is authorised to complete the Observation Checklist.

The assessor is required to observe the participant, ideally in a simulated environment or their practical workplace setting and record their performance (or otherwise) of the competencies listed on the Observation Checklist for the Competency Unit.

To complete the Observation Checklist the Assessor must:

- Insert name of candidate
- Insert assessor name
- Insert identify of location where observations are being undertaken
- Insert date/s of observations – may be single date or multiple dates
- Place a tick in either the 'Yes' or 'No' box for each listed Performance Criteria to indicate the candidate has demonstrated/not demonstrated that skill
- Provide written (and verbal) feedback to candidate – as/if appropriate
- Sign and date the form
- Present form to candidate for them to sign and date
- Transcribe results/details to Competency Recording Sheet for candidate
- Forward/file Observation Checklist.

This source of evidence combines with other forms of assessment to assist in determining the 'Pass Competent' or 'Not Yet Competent' decision for the participant.

Specifications for Third Party Statement

These specifications relate to the use of a relevant workplace person to assist in determining competency for candidates.

The Third Party Statement is to be supplied by the assessor to a person in the workplace who supervises and/or works closely with the participant.

This may be their Supervisor, the venue manager, the Department Manager or similar.

The Third Party Statement asks the Supervisor to record what they believe to be the competencies of the participant based on their workplace experience of the participant. This experience may be gained through observation of their workplace performance, feedback from others, inspection of candidate's work etc.

A meeting must take place between the Assessor and the Third Party to explain and demonstrate the use of the Third Party Statement.

To complete the Third Party Verification Statement the Assessor must:

- Insert candidate name
- Insert name and contact details of the Third Party
- Tick the box to indicate the relationship of the Third Party to the candidate
- Present the partially completed form to the Third Party for them to finalise
- Collect the completed form from the Third Party
- Transcribe results/details to Competency Recording Sheet for candidate
- Forward/file Third Party Statement.

The Third Party must:

- Record their belief regarding candidate ability/competency as either:
 - Pass Competent = Yes
 - Not Yet Competent = No
 - Unsure about whether candidate is competent or not = Not Sure
- Meet briefly with the assessor to discuss and/or clarify the form.

This source of evidence combines with other forms of assessment to assist in determining the 'Pass Competent' or 'Not Yet Competent' decision for the candidate.

A separate Third Party Statement is required for each Competency Unit undertaken by the candidate.

- Communicate effectively with others, explaining issues as appropriate
- Share information, concerns and praise.

5. Name three activities which can help a manager manage their time more effectively

- Having a clear idea of what is important and what must be dealt with immediately
- Having procedures to deal with common and predictable situations
- Delegating tasks to other staff
- Using prevention rather than cure
- Grouping all similar activities in the same time space
- Making on-the-spot decisions
- Becoming comfortable with saying 'No'
- Coming in to work a bit earlier.

6. In your own words describe the difference between leadership and management

No model answer but response should focus on differences/qualities as identified by Capowski.

7. Identify and describe two types of personal power.

- Expert power – results from a person being an expert in terms of their skill, experience or knowledge in a specialist area
- Referent power – comes from the leader's personal characteristics which command a subordinate's identification, respect and admiration.

8. Identify six ways a manager/leader can demonstrate their support for and commitment to enterprise goals in their daily work

- Verbally stating their support – for whatever management introduces as initiatives of sets of workplace goals
- Explaining initiatives to staff – telling them why the initiatives are positive and highlighting the dangers which may flow from failing to successfully/effectively introducing the changes
- Keeping negative comments contained to management meetings behind closed doors – where staff/employees cannot hear the dissention
- Providing necessary resources and training – to help ensure the initiatives and goals can be attained/implemented
- Setting departmental/workplace targets – for individual staff which enable achievement of the required goals
- Monitoring related action on a day-to-day basis – through observation and discussion and checking of relevant records and performance and other data
- Checking compliance levels – with what is required in a high-profile manner
- Talking with staff – about their problems and successes regularly as part of everyday workplace management
- Setting an agenda item for each enterprise goal as a standing item in each staff/departmental meeting – so the importance of the goal is demonstrated to employees on an ongoing basis
- Mentioning issues to do with the goals at other times – such as staff briefings, staff de-briefing sessions and during chance meetings with staff
- Celebrating successes – when KPIs and/or other targets are achieved
- Involving staff – in how they can assist in goal attainment.

9. Illustrate three ways a manager/leader can demonstrate they are treating staff with integrity

- Being honest with them – and telling them things the way they really are but with tact and sensitivity
- It means being truthful (within internal limitations of confidentiality and privacy) about things
- Being sincere – and not saying one thing and meaning or doing another
- Not promising things – which cannot be delivered or about which there is no intention to provide
- Not taking the credit for the work of others – and making sure those who deserve it get the raise they are entitled to.

10. Give three ways a manager/leader can show respect towards their staff.

- Realising and appreciating the work staff do – and making sure they know their efforts have been recognised and are appreciated
- Acknowledging their talents, effort and commitment to the organisation – this orientation realises staff are human beings rather than simply numbers or inanimate resources
- Allowing individuals to be different – in terms of their lifestyle choices and factors associated with race, religions, culture, age, gender and other issues
- Talking to them and treating them in an appropriate manner – and not speaking to them or dealing with them as inferior people despite the fact they are (in terms of the structure of the business) sub-ordinates.

11. What is the key for managers in relation to treating workers fairly?

Answer must address not playing favourites and sharing the 'good' and 'bad' jobs/tasks event/equally between workers.

12. Give five reasons why managers/leaders need to plan their actions.

- Establishes an integrated, coordinated effort and gives direction to people
- Reduces the negative impact of change – through the preparation of strategies to manage/cope with the introduction of change
- Minimises repetition and waste – by ensuring elimination of duplication and the streamlining of procedures
- Reduces levels of uncertainty – as the plans show staff what is expected of everyone with roles and responsibilities under the plans
- Focuses on specific targets – and directs employee effort toward outcomes which combine to achieve the desired result/outcome
- Enables all decisions to be rationalised – in accordance with an over-arching goal
- Sets standards of performance – to enable evaluation and control.

13. Identify four areas/topics a manager may develop plans for

- Sales targets – described in terms of volume/number of units or in monetary terms
- Performance targets for a particular project – such as ‘increasing sales by 10% by the end of the quarter’
- Increased productivity – for example, requiring more units to be produced in the same time or increased sales to be achieved by the same staff numbers
- Achieving KPIs – as they relate to specific goals: KPIs may be seen as stepping-stones/indicators along the way to achieving the final goal/plan
- Organisational strategies – showing what needs to be done, by whom and when in order for the business to attain the outcomes it has decided to achieve
- Operational activities – covering the day-to-day SOPs required in order to deliver the products and services the organisation needs to provide
- Task management – outlining what needs to be done in order the established strategies can be effectively and successfully implemented
- Contingency management – setting down the actions to be taken in the event nominated circumstances arise where SOPs will not apply.

14. Identify five key components of a performance plan a manager might develop

- Basic information
- Action
- Resources
- Timelines
- Allocation of work/responsibilities.

15. Name four opportunities a manager has to share performance plans with teams

- Holding a specific staff meeting – convened solely/specifically to present/discuss the plan
- Talking about it at regular staff briefings/de-briefings – held as part of normal operating practice each day/shift
- Posting a notice – on the staff notice board
- Sending electronic copies of the plan – via email
- Distributing hard copies of the plan – at meetings.

16. Describe four points to note to ensure departmental plans align with enterprise goals.

- Aligns with the Mission of the business – as stated in the Mission Statement
- Supports the stated Vision of the organisation – as contained in the Vision Statement for the business
- Reflects the public Value Statement – made by the business
- Accords with strategic and business plans – of the organisation
- Helps achieve/maintain the desired image of the business – as required by management
- Helps achieve/maintain the desired market position of the business – in the marketplace.

17. Differentiate between ‘goal’, ‘strategy’ and ‘tactic’.

- A goal is the objective – it is what is to be achieved, the ‘expected’ outcome
- A strategy is the general plan to enable the goal to be reached/achieved
- A tactic is a technique which will be used within the strategy to enable the strategy to achieve the goal.

18. In relation to setting goals, what does the acronym ‘SMARTER’ stand for?

- S – goals need to be Specific
- M – goals need to be Measurable
- A – goals need to be Assignabl
- R – goals must be Realistic
- T – goals should also be Track-able
- E – goals should be Evaluated
- R – goals need to be Reviewed.

19. In relation to communicating expectations, roles and responsibilities to staff identify three options a manager can use

- Job descriptions
- Inductions and orientations
- Staff meetings.

20. Briefly differentiate between an 'autocratic' leader and a 'democratic' leader

An autocratic leader is one who:

- Centralises authority
- Relies only on legitimate reward and coercive power.

Under this style of management employees perform well as long as the leader is present.

A democratic leader is different in that they:

- Delegate authority to others
- Encourage participation
- Rely on expert and referent power to influence others.

21. Give five key characteristics of charismatic leaders

- Self-confidence – charismatic leaders have complete confidence in their judgement and ability
- Vision – they have an idealised goal that proposes a future better than the status quo the greater the disparity between these two, the more likely the follower will attribute extraordinary vision to the leader
- Ability to articulate their vision – they are able to clarify and state the vision in terms which are understandable to others: this demonstrates an understanding of the followers' needs and hence acts as a motivating force
- Strong convictions about the vision – charismatic leaders are perceived as being strongly committed, willing to take on high personal risk, incur high costs and engage in self-sacrifice to achieve their vision
- Behaviour which is out of the ordinary – they engage in behaviour perceived as being novel, unconventional and counter to norms; when successful, these behaviours evoke surprise and admiration in followers
- Appearance as a change agent – charismatic leaders are perceived as initiating change rather than as caretakers of the status quo
- Environment sensitivity – they are able to make realistic assessments of the environmental constraints and resources needed to bring about change.

22. Briefly distinguish between 'transactional' leaders and 'transformational' leaders

- Transactional leaders are leaders who guide or motivate their followers in the direction of already set goals by making them clear and explaining task requirements
- Transformational leaders are leaders who inspire people beyond their own goals through individual consideration and charisma.

23. Identify five topics/issues which need to be addressed when communicating expectations, roles and responsibilities to staff

- Nature and scope of the work to be done – including identification of relevant workplace practices and organisational policies
- Relationships with others in the workplace – identifying those with authority in relevant areas, methods of communication used in the business, common issues necessitating communication and cooperation
- Independent areas of activity – describing the scope of authority for the individual and proscribing the exact nature, roles and dimensions of each discreet area so there is absolute clarity about the function of each area and how it fits with and contributes to the overall performance of the organisation
- Roles of leaders and managers – including description of their individual role in terms of providing information, making decisions, planning and organising work activities, and staff monitoring
- Communication – this is vital in every organisation and the need for ongoing communication between staff members and between staff and management must be emphasised. Opportunities to communicate should be highlighted as well as the communication channels used by the business
- Reporting requirement – most staff will have only verbal reporting requirements (such as during briefing and debriefing sessions or in staff meetings): where staff have additional formal/written reporting obligations these must be explained and examples of what is required should be provided to guide their reporting.

24. List ten ways in which leaders can encourage development of ideas for innovation

- Asking for ideas – encouraging staff to make suggestions about better ways of doing things
- Describing the criteria which need to be met – for a suggestion to be regarded as ‘viable’.
- Having an ‘open door’ policy regarding suggestions – to encourage staff to discuss suggestions at any time without the need to make an appointment or wait for a nominated time
- Sharing ideas – encouraging others to alert team members to the potential of new technologies
- Being prepared to trial/test new ideas – this demonstrates management is prepared to try new ideas as opposed to insisting the old ones are adhered to
- Making ‘innovation’ a standing topic at all staff meetings – so it is continually being flagged as an important thing, and so staff have regular opportunities to make contributions
- Creating ‘innovation teams’ – whose task is to address a particular issue
- Training staff in the use/application of creative thinking techniques – such as brainstorming, lateral thinking, ‘Six thinking hats’
- Seeking information and ideas from non-traditional places – such as other departments, other businesses (including the competition), trade shows, internet research
- Thanking people for their contributions – even where their ideas do not translate into standing practice/SOPs
- Creating an environment which is supportive of innovation – and is prepared to try new ideas and not criticise or ‘punish’ those who try something new which fails to work as hoped, promised or intended
- There needs to be a culture which values effort as much as it values outcomes/results, and an environment where staff feel comfortable to contribute ideas for change and are comfortable in identifying areas/activities which need improvement or attention
- Rewarding people – for contributions and for effort in this regard: see next section
- Taking the time and effort to explain to someone who contributed an idea why their idea was not implemented – as opposed to appearing to simply ignore the suggestion: getting back to people and explaining why their idea was deemed ‘not viable’ shows the idea was considered but rejected on certain grounds
- This should encourage further contributions/suggestions while providing additional context regarding criteria which need to be met for innovations to be implemented
- Ensuring the person responsible for suggesting/developing an effective new approach/idea receives the credit for doing so – rather than the manager taking the credit.

25. What two broad categories of staff input should rewards acknowledge?

- Endeavour
- Outcomes.

26. Give three examples of reward and recognition for team members which a manager might use

- Informal acknowledgment of the work which has been done
- Acknowledgment of individual good performance to the whole team
- Presentation of internal organisational awards – which focus on/relates to the work which has been done.
- Written report to management – this is an internal report top senior management identifying those who have done good work, describing what they have done, their effort and the outcomes/results they have achieved.
- Incentive initiatives – these are rewards/bonuses of some sort for staff when they achieve nominated goals or targets.

27. Identify and briefly describe the five stages of team development

- Forming – this first stage occurs immediately after the team has been put together and is a period of orientation and getting acquainted
- Storming – here, different personalities emerge and conflict creates a general sense of disunity
- Norming – in this phase conflict between team members is resolved, team harmony and unity is developed and team norms and values are established
- Performing – this is where the major focus is in problem solving to accomplish the team tasks/objectives
- Adjourning – where the team is disbanded upon task completion: applicable where teams are formed to achieve a short-term task.

28. Describe four ways a manager can create an environment which is supportive of team members

- Invite team members to question the opinions and thoughts held
- Do not 'shoot the messenger'
- Create an environment where it is OK to make mistakes
- Walk the talk
- Offer help and advice
- Put 'issues' in perspective – most staff do many, many things right and relatively few things wrong.

29. Identify four ways a manager might communicate with staff

- Individual, one-on-one talks – these can/should range from the casual and social chit-chat through to the structured yet informal talk where you need to convey certain information about a task/objective
- Formal, group meetings – these are very time effective and should be scheduled for every team
- Formal meetings also send a message the team is important and warrants such attention and time
- Non-verbal communication – never underestimate the value of body language throughout the working day
- Written communications – whilst more impersonal in nature, it is better to have this type of communication than to have none at all.

30. Give six examples of information from the wider environment which managers should seek and share with teams

- Overall enterprise objectives
- Rationale for management decisions
- Changes in enterprise policies
- Marketing information and targets
- Business performance information
- Technology updates
- Plans for new equipment
- Training developments.

31. Give three examples of the ‘wider environment’ managers should seek information from to share with their teams.

- From higher-level management/Board meetings
- From other departments
- From market research undertaken by the business
- From administration
- From customers
- From the competition
- From industry events.

32. Give five reasons managers/leaders need to share information from the wider environment with their teams

- Demonstrates their commitment to the team
- Indicates their willingness to help the team
- Shows faith in the ability of the team to use the information provided and (where necessary) keep it confidential
- Assists them achieve their identified goals.
- Demonstrate involvement with their teams
- Supports the work of the organisation
- Gives a wider and more detailed context and framework for decision making and action.

33. Describe four standard options managers have for communicating/sharing information from the wider environment with teams

- Discussing matters face-to-face with team members at staff/team meetings and briefing sessions
- Using hard copy handouts detailing relevant information
- Emailing information to employees
- Posting notices on the staff notice board
- Making entries in the 'Communications Book'.

34. A manager must decide if they want to support the boss or their team: discuss

Answer must address need for balance and harmony as opposed to supporting one side or the other.

35. What three critical areas need to be considered when assessing staff/teams?

- Skills
- Knowledge
- Attitude.

36. Define what is meant by the term 'training gap'.

The training gap is the difference, for each person, between what the organisation requires them to do, and what it is they can actually do.

37. What are the five drivers of need in Maslow's theory of hierarchical needs?

- Physiological needs: which refer to standard food, drink, shelter and sexual satisfaction needs plus other requirements within an organisation, such as adequate heating, cooling, air quality and base salary to ensure survival
- Safety needs: such as security and protection from physical and emotional harm at work, including needs for safety in the workplace, fringe benefits and job security
- Social needs: relating to affection, belongingness, acceptance and friendship; on the job this includes a desire for good relationships with co-workers, participation in a work group and a positive relationship with superiors
- Esteem needs: includes internal esteem factors such as self-respect, autonomy and achievement, and external esteem factors such as status, recognition and attention; within the organisation this is a motivation for recognition, increased responsibility, high status and credit for contribution
- Self-actualisation needs: centres on growth, achieving one's potential and self-fulfilment; the drive to become what one is capable of becoming.

38. What are the three categories of need in ERG theory of motivation?

- Existence needs – which are the needs for physical well-being
- Relatedness needs – which are the needs for satisfactory relationships with others
- Growth needs – which focus on the development of human potential and the desire for personal growth and increased competence.

39. Briefly describe the expectancy theory of motivation.

Expectancy theory says motivation depends on an individual's expectations about their ability to perform tasks and receive desired rewards.

It focuses on the thinking processes individuals use to achieve rewards.

Expectancy theory is based on:

- An individual's effort = the effort-performance linkage
- An individual's performance = the performance-reward linkage
- The desirability of outcomes associated with high performance = attractiveness.

The effort-performance linkage is the probability, perceived by the individual that a certain amount of effort will lead to performance.

The performance-reward linkage is the degree to which the individual believes performing at a particular level will lead to the achievement of a certain outcome.

Attractiveness is the importance the individual places on the reward or outcome that can be achieved on the job. This considers the goals and needs of the individual.

40. In your own words describe the ‘empowerment’ concept of motivation.

Empowerment is the handing down of power to employees in an organisation.

This power heightens motivation for achieving tasks because people improve their own effectiveness, choosing how to do a task using their creativity.

Empowering employees means giving them the ability to act more freely and independently in their jobs through providing them with:

- Information
- Knowledge
- Power
- Rewards.

41. Identify six guidelines for managers to motivate staff

- Recognise individual differences – and try to cater for them
- Match people to jobs – not vice versa
- Use goals – people tend to work better if they know what it is they are trying to achieve
- Ensure goals are perceived as attainable – do not set goals considered impossible
- Individualise rewards – tailor-make them where possible to reflect effort or results and to meet individual preferences
- Link rewards to performance – those who do better, get more
- Check the system for equity – all team members should have an equal chance of achieving their goals and obtaining a reward
- Do not ignore money – money is an excellent motivator
- Ensure what is used to motivate people has value – in the eyes of those being motivated.

42. List the five basic applications for job design in relation to motivation.

- Job simplification
- Job rotation
- Job enlargement
- Job enrichment
- Job characteristics model.

43. Name four opportunities for individual development within the workplace.

- Training – internal and/or external as well as other means of PD
- Change in job responsibilities – to create interest (help avoid boredom) and to diversify the experiences workers are exposed to and can learn from
- Opportunity for greater autonomy or responsibility – giving the individual a greater sense of being able to determine their own way of working and/or a fuller sense of fulfilment and achievement
- Formal promotion
- Chance to perform in a higher position – in a caretaker mode whilst the incumbent is away
- Becoming a mentor for someone – as acknowledgement of their experience and capacity to nurture others
- Leading a training session – for another department or group of new staff as reward/recognition of personal expertise and competency
- Being sent to a conference or similar – as the establishment's representative.

44. Give five reasons managers/leaders need to monitor team performance

- Allows evaluation of team/performance plans
- Demonstrates involvement in workplace activities
- Shows interest in individuals and the team
- Enables identification of issues requiring attention at the earliest opportunity
- Helps identify the need for assistance
- Provides part of the basis for future planning and action
- Supplies evidence to be used for reward and recognition.

45. Identify five simple and effective ways for a manager to monitor team performance

- Watching staff/teams as they undertake activities
- Talking to customers/guests
- Talking to staff/team members
- Talking to other managers and/or supervisors
- Analysing plans
- Monitoring the budgets
- Inspecting the workplace.

46. What are the three main causes of workplace conflict?

- Communication differences
- Structural differences
- Personal differences.

47. Identify the five major ways of handling workplace conflict.

- Avoidance
- Accommodation
- Forcing
- Compromise
- Collaboration.

48. List six points to consider when delegating tasks and responsibilities to team members/staff as part of their standard allocated workplace activities

- Be clear about all the tasks to be done – and all the work and responsibilities to be delegated
- If appropriate, explain why the task has to be done, why the responsibility is being delegated, and why it has to be done in the way specified – clear communication (as is so often the case in so many other areas) is critical here too
- Choose the right time to inform staff/the staff member of the work which has been delegated to them – and do not hurry the explanation/delegation as this will sound as if something is being ‘covered up’
- Provide whatever instructions are necessary to get the delegated work done – in the correct/logical sequence, explaining any/all of the steps
- Provide training and/or demonstration – as required so the staff are supported in what they are being expected to do
- Continually check if the employee has any questions – and encourage them to ask questions ensuring it is understood questions are expected
- Continually check the staff member genuinely understands what is being said/shown to them – ask them questions or get them to paraphrase a point, or get them to demonstrate what is actually required
- Give them positive feedback – people operate better from a level of optimism and a history characterised by success, so make them positive and confident.

49. Identify three real benefits to managers in delegating management-level work and responsibilities to other staff

- It frees managers up – to do other things
- It gives staff experience at managerial type tasks and responsibilities – providing them with additional skills and potentially more interesting work
- It promotes a team approach by sharing tasks and responsibilities amongst everyone – it signals the manager has faith in their work, efforts and decisions
- It supports the career advancement of staff – wise staff will realise they have to be able to take orders before they can give them, and they will also regard delegation as an opportunity to show their worth to others.

50. Describe four points to note when delegating management-level tasks to others

- Only delegate to those staff who are interested in taking on the work and responsibilities – these may be staff who have confided they are seeking promotion, looking for advancement or willing to accept more responsibility
- Delegate interesting and varied work and responsibilities, not just the boring and unpopular tasks – it is unfair just to palm off the tedious and repetitive tasks to others: if staff do not appreciate the tasks delegated to them in the first instance they will be unlikely to want extra work later on
- Make sure the work and responsibilities are suitable and achievable – do not 'force' staff into doing things they are not cut out for, or which they have said they are unsuitable for: where there are issues of security, confidentiality or commercially sensitive areas it may be best not to delegate
- Provide necessary training and support – this means ensuring the person to whom work is delegated is encouraged and provided with all the necessary resources to do the job
- Inform other staff of the delegation before the delegated work and responsibilities have started – this makes sure everyone knows what is going on, and provides a basis of legitimacy for the person to whom the work is delegated
- Review progress at agreed times – so both parties know everything is progressing satisfactorily: it also gives the staff member a formal chance to ask questions and share experiences
- Be available for questions and queries at all times – staff who have agreed to take on additional duties must never feel they are on their own or they have been abandoned.

51. Differentiate between 'mentoring' and 'coaching' as ways of providing support to team members.

Answer should address the skills-based acquisition nature of coaching as opposed to the reflective, contemplative and developmental (sounding board) nature of mentoring.
