1 OVERVIEW

The Final Draft of CATC & RQFSRS has been developed after several reiterations through the “Design”, “Development” as well as the “Validation and Revision” Phases of the project.

This is the third and Final Draft. The Final Draft is the end product of the concerted efforts of 410 participating stakeholders across the ASEAN region, incorporating feedback and comments on the 1st and 2nd Draft when possible.

In-country workshops were held with stakeholders from all countries to explain the proposals and to actively solicit written and verbal feedback that was used to validate and revise earlier versions and serve as the basis for change for the Final Draft.

The participating ASEAN Member Countries are:

- o Brunei Darussalam PDR¹
- o Cambodia
- o Indonesia
- o Lao PDR
- o Malaysia
- o Myanmar
- o Singapore
- o Thailand
- o The Philippines
- o Viet Nam

The proposed Curriculum Framework was required to be structured across six Labour Divisions:

- o Food Production
- o Food and Beverage Service
- o Front Office
- o Housekeeping
- o Tour Operation
- o Travel Agencies

Changes were made to 1st Draft including the removal of Certificate I level from all Labour Division qualifications and input from participating countries was used as the foundation for the 2nd Draft proposal.

This Final Draft integrates the feedback received from circulation and comment on the 2nd Draft proposal and contains numerous changes reflecting the needs and wants of member countries.

¹ In-Country workshop in Brunei Darussalam was cancelled unfortunately after the initial changes and confirmation of the date of workshop in the 3rd rounds of visits to ASEAN.

Appreciation for the Effort of Participants

This project could not have succeeded to the stage that it has without the time and application that member countries have devoted to it.

It is appropriate that their contribution in terms of thought, participation and commitment are recognised and their efforts applauded.

2 FEEDBACK & ASEAN COUNTRIES RESPONSES TO 2ND DRAFT

The following is an overview of countries' responses to the Feedback Instrument used to provide feedback on the 2nd Draft. A matrix of specific countries on six labour divisions is contained in Appendix 3.

3 FINAL DRAFT CHALLENGES

The greatest challenge in the development of the Final Draft of CATC & RQFSRS is to incorporate the feedback from the nine (9) country national responses in each labour division from 304 workshop participants where there were some conflicting views.

There is demonstrable evidence in this Final Draft that where there was consensus, rationality and practicability of recommendations these submissions have been adopted and there appears to be widespread agreement as to the direction the project is taking.

Some of the participants' feedback on the 2nd Draft could be addressed when the details of the competency standards are produced, and that the concerns of individual countries can be addressed with reference to 'Contextualisation' (please refer to Appendix 1 for more information and for an example of how this may operate).

In a project of such magnitude, seeking to implement acceptable change across a variety of countries, it is to be expected that not all suggestions made can be adopted: indeed, suggestions from some countries ran contrary to the suggestions and comments made by others.

3.1 General comments

Several suggestions were made that deserve special mention.

3.1.1 Internships/Practical Placement

There is no doubt that Internship/Practical Placement in industry can be a valuable component of vocational training however it does not need to be made a compulsory component of all curriculum and qualifications framework.

For example, Internship/Practical Placement is not needed where students have already had 'sufficient' opportunities to practice in a simulated industry environment and demonstrate the ability to perform the tasks to the performance standards criteria stipulated in the units of competency.

This situation may also arise with mature age students who currently work in the industry and able to demonstrate their ability to perform the tasks. Then the Internship/Practical Placement requirement would deem to be redundant.

As a result, Internship/Practical Placement has not been included in Final Draft, but any providers wishing to include it as part of their training delivery should note that they are free to do so, establishing their own programs to suit individual student need, the needs of specific industry sectors and/or the requirements of the provider.

The provision of an Internship/Practical Placement program is one way that providers can 'add value' to their training and establish a 'point of difference' between themselves and their competitors.

3.1.2 Specification of Units

Many countries contributed extensive and comprehensive suggestions identifying specific units for inclusion in various Certificate levels, various streams and various Labour Divisions.

While there was considerable input in this regard there was little consistency across-the-board as to what all countries wanted. Again, there were even diametrically opposed suggestions in some instances.

To address this obviously important issue, all Certificate levels in all Labour Divisions in all streams have had proportionately substantial additional Functional Competencies allocated to them to assist in accommodating these needs in a generic way.

Member countries will note that the selection of these Functional Competencies is elective in nature and these Functional Competencies may be chosen by the student, the provider or by the employer/industry. There is no compulsion as to which Functional Competencies are to be included providing the Packaging Rules are adhered to.

Several new units of competency have also been added to Clusters in response to demand.

3.1.3 Removal of Certificate I

Certificate I was deemed by participating countries to be too basic, and consensus was that it should be totally removed but its removal across all Labour Divisions has caused some confusion.

To address this confusion the Final Draft has added a statement to all Certificate II levels noting 'Incorporating Certificate I': it is hoped that this will clarify the revised position.

The current Framework across all Labour Divisions therefore now provides for:

- o Certificate II - Incorporating Certificate I
- o Certificate III
- o Certificate IV
- o Diploma
- o Advanced Diploma

Framework Level	Level Indicator
Level 5 - Advanced Diploma	Sophisticated, broad and specialised competence with senior management skills
	Technical, creative, conceptual or managerial applications built around competencies of either a broad or specialised base and related to a broader organisational focus.
Level 4 - Diploma	Specialised competence with managerial skills

	Assumes a greater theoretical base and consists of specialised, technical or managerial competencies used to plan, carry out and evaluate work of self and/or team.
Level 3 - Certificate IV	Greater technical competence with supervisory skills
	More sophisticated technical applications involving competencies requiring increased theoretical knowledge, applied in a non-routine environment and which may involve team leadership and management and increased responsibility for outcomes.
Level 2 - Certificate III	Broad range of skills in more varied context and team leader responsibilities
	Skilled operator who applies a broad range of competencies within a more varied work context, possibly providing technical advice and support to a team including having team leader responsibilities.
Level 1 - Certificate II	Basic, routine skills in a defined context
	A base operational qualification that encompasses a range of functions/activities requiring fundamental operational knowledge and limited practical skills in a defined context.

3.1.4 Future Action

The 'Recommendations' section of this Final Draft contains suggestions for future action to progress this project.

Many countries noted that they had specific concerns regarding matters such as 'implementation of the project and guidelines for implementation', 'Recognition of Prior Learning' (RPL), assessment, content of and details about the curriculum, articulation into tertiary courses etc.

It is anticipated that all the above concerns will be addressed at this next stage: countries will have the opportunity to make a contribution to this stage of the project and to provide feedback.

3.1.5 The Use of Job Titles

There were several suggestions regarding the use of 'Job Titles' in the title of Certificates, for example 'Certificate II in Front Office (Telephonist)'.

While this suggestion has merit it has not been adopted because the Competencies needed for each potential Job Title have the potential to be severely limited: given general feedback that the requirements for 1st Draft and 2nd Draft competencies were too basic, it was deemed inconsistent to attach Job Titles to Certificate titles.

Students and providers are free to select Functional Competencies to meet their need (and/or the need of the employer) and may/can thus choose to undertake only those specific Functional Competencies they wish to study.

Note also, that a student can elect to study one or two units of their choosing without undertaking a complete Certificate.

3.1.6 Specific Content

There were some comments that specific items of content be included within nominated units or elsewhere.

Several new units of competency have also been added to Clusters in partial response to this demand and much of this requirement will be addressed, and become obvious, when the curriculum proper is developed.

Providers should however note they are free to add their own 'extra content' within any unit they deliver and, as mentioned above, are also free to add extra non-accredited units they deem appropriate/necessary.

Readers are further referred to Appendix 1 ('Contextualisation') for further information about how they can tailor units of competency to suit their specific industry, country or other needs

This is another way that providers can 'add value' to their training and establish a 'point of difference' between themselves and their competitors.

4 CHANGES MADE TO FINAL DRAFT

4.1 Overview

The project has met with majority agreement in every aspect of its development.

There are no major issues or points of contention from any participating countries.

For example:

- 96.% of respondents either preferred the 2nd Draft proposal or had no preference for 1st Draft or 2nd Draft
- The number of levels of qualifications in each Labour Division was agreed to by 82.7% of respondents
- 79.2% of respondents agreed with the allocation of Core and Generic competencies at each qualification level
- The clustering of Functional Competencies at each qualification level was agreed to by 82.7% of respondents
- 84.6% agreed with the number of Functional Competencies allocated to each qualification level
- Agreement about names/titles for the qualifications was obtained from 69.2% of the respondents
- 92.5% of respondents agreed that all qualifications should have a standard name across all countries
- Exactly 80% of respondents had additional feedback to make to the 2nd Draft proposal.

4.2 The main ‘feedback’ topics

The main topics that emerged from countries providing feedback can be classified as follows:

- The desire for more country-specific information and detail in various units of competency
- Need for more detail on content of units of competency
- Need for advice and direction on the practical implementation of the project
- Minor variations to the titles of units of competencies and qualifications
- Addition of extra units of competency at most qualification levels
- Changes to the blend of units of competency at certain qualification levels with many countries specifying particular units of competency they deemed relevant
- Addition of several new units of competency that were not included in the original suite of units provided at the start of the project.

There were numerous changes made within all Labour Divisions and across all qualifications in response to the feedback that was provided: many alterations were minor and several were substantial.

4.3 Details of changes made

The most significant changes can be identified as:

- New unit 'Perform child protection duties relevant to the tourism industry' created and included as a Core unit for all Labour Divisions in all streams at all Certificate levels
- New unit 'Develop protective environments for children in tourism destinations' added to Core at both Diploma and Advanced Diploma levels in all streams at all Certificate levels
- 'Perform Basic First Aid procedures' added so that it is now a Core unit all Labour Divisions in all streams at all Certificate levels
- New unit 'Develop new products and services' to Food Production and Food and Beverage Service Labour Divisions
- New unit 'Develop and implement operational policies' added to all Labour Divisions to the 'General Administration' cluster
- The unit 'Read and interpret basic directions and/or diagrams' has been re-named to 'Read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams'
- The unit 'Manage intoxicated persons' has been added to the 'Food and Beverage Service' Cluster as an additional Functional Competency: it previously existed only in the Front Office and Housekeeping Division
- Several units have been standardised in terms of unit titles where variations of titles existed – for example:
 - o 'Monitor staff performance' and 'Monitor staff performance standards' have been given the one title of 'Monitor staff performance'
 - o 'Manage physical assets' and 'Manage physical assets and infrastructure' have been given the one title of 'Manage physical assets and infrastructure'
 - o 'Manage stock purchases and inventories' and 'Manage stock purchases and inventory' have been given the one title of 'Manage stock purchases and inventory'
 - o 'Follow workplace hygiene procedures' and 'Comply with workplace hygiene procedures' have been given the one title of 'Comply with workplace hygiene procedures'
 - o 'Perform clerical procedures' and 'Perform basic clerical procedures' have been given the one title of 'Perform clerical procedures'
 - o 'Compile and update tourism industry knowledge' and 'Develop and update tourism industry knowledge' have been given the one title of 'Develop and update tourism industry knowledge'
 - o 'Use English effectively at a supervisory level' and 'Use English at a supervisory or senior operational level' have been given the one title of 'Use English at a supervisory level'
 - o 'Read/ write English at a basic operational level' and 'Read and write English at a basic operational level' have been given the one title of 'Read and write English at a basic operational level'

Note: it is anticipated that more units may be standardised during the curriculum writing phase to avoid unnecessary duplication.

Several units have been removed from a Cluster where they were listed twice (under different Clusters) within the one Labour Division – for example:

- o 'Develop and manage business strategies' was listed in Travel Services under both the 'General Administration' and 'Resource Management' Cluster: it has been removed from the General Administration Cluster
 - o 'Develop and implement operational plans' was listed in Travel Services under both the 'Tour Operations' and 'Resource Management' Cluster: it has been removed from the Tour Operations Cluster.
 - o 'Establish and maintain a safe and secure workplace' was listed in Travel Services under both the 'Tour Guide Services' and 'Resource Management' Cluster: it has been removed from the Tour Guide Service.
 - o 'Process financial transactions' was listed in Travel Services under both the 'Financial Administration' and 'Core' Cluster: it has been removed from the Financial Administration Cluster
 - o 'Develop and update local knowledge' was listed in Hotel Services (Restaurant Services) under both the 'Common Core' and 'Customer Service, Sales and Marketing' Cluster: it has been removed from the Customer Service, Sales and Marketing Cluster
 - o 'Read and write English at a basic operational level' was listed in Travel Services under both the 'Travel Agencies - Ticketing' and 'English Language Proficiency' Cluster: it has been removed from the Travel Agencies - Ticketing Cluster
- Increase in Functional Competencies in Food Production:
 - o CII from 6 to 8
 - o CIII from 9 to 12
 - o CIV from 14 to 16
 - o Diploma from 20 to 23
 - o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 28
 - Increase in Functional Competencies in Food and Beverage Service:
 - o CII from 6 to 10
 - o CIII from 9 to 14
 - o CIV from 14 to 18
 - o Diploma from 20 to 24
 - o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 29
 - Increase in Functional Competencies in Front Office:
 - o CII from 6 to 10
 - o CIII from 9 to 14
 - o CIV from 15 to 20
 - o Diploma from 20 to 24

- o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 28
- Increase in Functional Competencies in Housekeeping:
 - o CII from 6 to 10
 - o CIII from 9 to 14
 - o CIV from 15 to 20
 - o Diploma from 20 to 24
 - o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 28
- Increase in Functional Competencies in Travel Agencies:
 - o CII from 6 to 10
 - o CIII from 9 to 14
 - o CIV from 14 to 20
 - o Diploma from 20 to 24
 - o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 28
- Increase in Functional Competencies in Tour Operation:
 - o CII from 6 to 8
 - o CIII from 9 to 14
 - o CIV from 14 to 18
 - o Diploma from 20 to 24
 - o Advanced Diploma from 27 to 28
- Combined Certificate IV in Front Office (Guest Services) and Certificate IV in Front Office (Supervision) into Certificate IV in Front Office (Guest Services Supervision): there is now only one Certificate IV in Front Office
- Combined Certificate IV in Housekeeping (Guest Services) and Certificate IV in Housekeeping (Supervision) into Certificate IV in Housekeeping (Guest Services Supervision) : there is now only one Certificate IV in Housekeeping
- Removed 'Guest Services' from title at CII and CIII level in Housekeeping
- Removed 'Guest Services' from title at CII and CIII level in Front Office

Other changes, which include identification of errors in previous documents and rectification of same, include

- Adjusted individual location of units within Packaging Rules to follow numerical sequences of unit identifier codes
- Additions of various Job titles as suggested to the list of 'Job titles at this level may include' within the Packaging Rules section
- 'Comply with workplace procedures' should have been 'Comply with workplace hygiene procedures' in the Front Office competencies: it has been removed from the 'Core and Generic' list but remains as an option for selection under 'the 'Core' cluster
- Corrected 'Prepare and yeast goods' to 'Prepare and produce yeast goods'

- Corrected 'Promote hospitality products and services' to 'Promote products and services to customers'
- Corrected D2 (used in error) in some Cluster codes when it should have been D1
- 'Follow safety and security procedures' was included in Housekeeping 'Core and Generic Competencies' at Diploma and Advanced Diploma but was not listed as a unit in the Clusters so replaced it with 'Establish and maintain a safe and secure workplace'
- Added requirement at Diploma and Advanced Diploma levels for units from 'Front Office' and 'Housekeeping' to be included in the Functional Competencies required: this was an oversight in the original document – if uncorrected it would have meant students could enter at Diploma and Advanced Diploma levels and not study any units from the 'Core' of that Labour Division: the change rectifies this meaning that a Supervisor or Manager must have completed some practical units specific to their Labour Division.

4.4 SUMMARY

This Final Draft for the project 'Developing Common ASEAN Tourism Curriculum' has been the culmination of consultation with, and feedback from, member countries and builds on the two previous Draft Proposals that have been presented.

Project development and consultation was based on a suite of competency standards that were provided to the project as the building blocks for the final product.

Competency standards were provided for:

- Hotel Services – Restaurant Services
- Hotel Services – Front Office and Housekeeping
- Travel – Travel and Tour Services.

These competencies were aligned to the six Labour Divisions of:

- Food Production
- Food and Beverage Services
- Tour Operation
- Travel Agencies
- Front Office
- Housekeeping

4.5 THE FINAL PRODUCT

The project focuses on the use of Competency Based Training (CBT) that is recognised world-wide as being the most effective means of delivering vocational training.

CBT is training that provides trainees with skills, knowledge and attitudes necessary to demonstrate competence against prescribed and endorsed Industry Competency Standards.

This concept is especially applicable to Tourism where 'attitude' is an extremely vital element of all customer-contact and service situations.

Against this background the project has:

- Developed five qualification levels across all six Labour Divisions providing vocational streams within each Labour Division that reflect the stated needs of member countries and the needs of industry. In all cases Certificate II incorporates Certificate I on the advice of participating countries.

Each of the qualifications has been holistically designed with a focus on essential Core and Generic units of competency together with the ability for trainees to select the most appropriate Functional Competencies to support their workplace needs or aspirations.

This approach has produced qualifications that represent a blend of industry-identified competencies that enable practical workplace application as well as providing the basis for both promotion and continued learning, and the ability for trainees to move between Labour Divisions as the need or opportunity arises.

A key to the development of the system is to facilitate movement between qualifications, streams and Labour Divisions for trainees thereby providing a system that meets and can respond quickly to changing employer demand and one that maximises trainee choice of units of competency, streams and Labour Divisions.

While providing freedom and flexibility the educational integrity and robustness of the framework is guaranteed by the need for trainees to complete the designated number of units at each qualification level before a complete credential can be issued.

This approach will enhance the portability of qualifications between industries and countries and the intended audit requirements that will be imposed on all training providers will assure provider integrity, reliability and commitment. It will be a requirement that any statement of attainment issued by any training provider must be recognised for the purposes of 'prior standing' by every other training provider within the system regardless of where that training provider is located and regardless of the perceived reputation of that organisation.

In workplace terms this means that trainees can readily move from (for example) Housekeeping to Front Office or Food and Beverage service and can move readily from Tour Operations to Travel Agencies. The structure also enables trainees to move easily into supervisory or managerial qualifications, or retain an operational role within the industry while gaining additional skills.

The key to this capability lies in the freedom of people to choose units of competency from Functional Competency clusters that best suit their individual workplace and training needs, and yet still be credited with (some) previous units they have already studied. In this way, this framework actively supports the concept of life-long learning by encouraging further study through acknowledgment and recognition of past study.

The underpinning intention of this approach is to provide a vocational education and training system that enables trainees to accumulate skills and knowledge as they move through the system, and study to gain higher qualifications.

- Included Core and Generic units of competency at each qualification level that reflects increased personal responsibility as the trainee expands in their workplace role, and matches the growing workplace requirements that accompany such growth
- Provided at each level and across all qualifications for selection of a wide variety of units of Functional competency (by either the employer, the trainee or the provider) to enable maximum choice and flexibility, and to enable optimum tailoring of training to meet workplace and industry need
- Incorporated new units of competency to meet the stated needs of certain member countries and increased the number of competencies that need to be gained in each qualification across all Labour Divisions
- Provided guidance for the selection of Functional Competencies for each qualification across all Labour Divisions – these are indicative recommendations only and the over-arching requirement is that the choice of Functional Competencies matches./addresses the industry/training need or role of the trainee.

5 RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended that the following action be taken as the next stage in order to facilitate implementation of the project:

1. Development of 'Bridging programs' to facilitate movement of students currently studying, or having recently completed, existing qualifications into the revised framework
2. Development of the full curriculum for all units identified by the project so far. This should include:
 - o Unit Descriptor
 - o Elements and Performance Criteria
 - o Range Statement – describing contextual variables that might apply
 - o Evidence Guide – including:
 - i. Essential Knowledge and Skills to be Assessed
 - ii. Linkages to Other Units
 - iii. Critical Aspects of Assessment
 - iv. Context of Assessment and Resource Implications
 - v. Assessment Methods
 - vi. Key Competencies in the Unit
3. Preparation of a 'Training Toolbox' for each Labour Division which will contain:
 - o Student training notes for all Units within each Labour Division
 - o Sample 'Assessment Tools' for all Units within each Labour Division which should include:
 - i. Written Assessment
 - ii. Training Activities
 - iii. Third Party Report
 - iv. Observation Checklist
4. Development of the Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) process to assist those with experience but no formal qualifications to have this experienced formally recognised and facilitate their movement into the formal vocational training system
5. Development of the formal Credit Transfer process that is to apply to enable those with existing qualifications to have these recognised for the purposes of gaining standing within the new system
6. Development of appropriate articulation describing the pathways that students can take to move from Advanced Diploma into tertiary study and qualifications
7. Development of an independent third party auditing process for providers to ensure minimum standards in relation to trainers, resources, training facilities, training, assessment, general levels of professionalism etc and other compliance requirements are being met.

22 APPENDIX 1 - CONTEXTUALISATION

Tailoring every unit to suit the needs of each country -

The Industry Competency Standards can be tailored to suit the individual needs of different countries through the way the curriculum is written and interpreted by those who use it.

In practice, each country can use their own regulations, legislation, codes of practice, rules etc because of the way the curriculum is written. They can also make reference to their own authorities, bodies, agencies and organisations.

This can be achieved via the ability of training providers to contextualise units of competency to reflect local outcomes required. Contextualisation could involve additions or amendments to the unit of competency to suit particular delivery methods, learner profiles, specific enterprise equipment requirements, or to otherwise meet local needs. However, the integrity of the overall intended outcome of the unit of competency must be maintained.

Within the Australian system any contextualisation of units of competency must be within the bounds of the following advice:

- Must not remove or add to the number and content of elements and performance criteria
- May add specific industry terminology to performance criteria where this does not distort or narrow the competency outcomes
- May make amendments and additions to the range statement as long as such changes do not diminish the breadth of application of the competency and reduce its portability, and/or
- May add detail to the evidence guide in areas such as the critical aspects of evidence or resources and infrastructure required where these expand the breadth of the competency but do not limit its use.

AN EXAMPLE

Using the following example (taken from the Australian system) it can be seen how each country can deliver information/content specific to its individual needs, or expand content to cover whatever it deems relevant.

Develop and update tourism industry knowledge

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
(1) Seek information on tourism industry	1.1 Identify sources of information on the tourism industry correctly identifying information relating to: • economic and social significance of the tourism industry and the role of the local communities • different tourism markets and their relevance to industry sectors • relationships between tourism and other industries • different sectors of the industry. Their inter-relationships and the services available in each sector • major tourism industry bodies • environmental issues for tourism • industrial relations • specific features of the local/regional industry • career opportunities within the industry • the roles and responsibilities of individual staff members in a successful tourism business including ethical practices • work organisation and time management • quality assurance • current and emerging industry technology including e-business 1.2 Access and update specific information on relevant sector(s) of work 1.3 Access and use knowledge of the tourism industry in the correct context to enhance the quality of work performance
(2) Source and apply information on legal and ethical issues which impact on the tourism industry	2.1 Obtain information on legal and ethical issues to assist effective work performance 2.2 Conduct day-to-day activities in accordance with legal obligations and ethical industry practices
(3) Update tourism industry knowledge	3.1 Identify and use a range of opportunities to update general knowledge of the tourism industry 3.2 Monitor current issues of concern to the industry 3.3 Share updated knowledge with customers and colleagues as appropriate, and incorporate into day-to-date work activities.

The curriculum document then presents a 'Range Statement' that gives direction as to what may be included in the specific content – note that this can be added to if required, or topics may be omitted. Remember the previous 'rule' stated providers 'May make amendments and additions to the range statement as long as such changes do not diminish the breadth of application of the competency and reduce its portability.'

Range Statement

This unit applies to all sectors of the tourism industry.

Information sources and opportunities to update knowledge may include:

- media
- reference books
- libraries
- unions
- industry associations and organisations
- industry journals
- computer data, including Internet
- personal observation and experience
- industry seminars or training courses
- informal networking.

(You will note that the above does not specify which industry associations etc are to be referred to: providers are free to select the ones relevant to them/their country and the needs of their industry.)

Legal issues which impact on the industry include:

- consumer protection
- duty of care
- equal employment opportunity
- anti-discrimination
- workplace relations
- child sex tourism.

(Again, providers are free to add topics/legal issues as they see fit)

Ethical issues impacting on the industry may relate to:

- confidentiality
- commission procedures
- overbooking
- pricing
- tipping
- familiarisations
- gifts and services free of charge
- product recommendations.

Industries other than tourism may include:

- hospitality
- entertainment
- arts
- sports
- agriculture
- conservation
- science and research
- retail.

Environmental issues may include:

- protection of natural and cultural integrity
- minimal impact operations
- environmental sustainability
- waste management
- energy-efficient operations
- land ownership
- land access and usage.

Economic and social issues may include:

- employment
- effect on local amenities/facilities
- population change due to tourism development
- community role in tourism.

Issues of concern to the industry may be related to:

- government initiatives
- emerging markets
- environmental and social issues
- labour issues
- industry expansion or retraction.

The key to contextualisation is that the rigour and structure of each unit remain, but that the content can be varied to suit the needs of the user, provided the four 'rules' (see above) are complied with.

23 APPENDIX 2 – RATIONALE UNDERPINNING THE PROPOSAL FRAMEWORK

The suggested Framework for training Tourism professionals will provide an efficient and practical model for the delivery of vocational training which can be expected to prove popular with industry, students and training providers.

The model is straight-forward and consistent across all Secondary Labour Divisions of Travel Agencies, Tour Operation, Housekeeping, Front Office, Food and Beverage Service, and Food Production.

It offers qualifications in each of the above from Certificate II level to Advanced Diploma level (see above for more details and an explanation of each level).

The suggested framework will be effective and popular because it is:

- Industry-based – the units of competency and the content for each one has been set by industry: qualifications will match industry need making qualifications relevant and useful to both students and industry
- Flexible – allowing students, industry and training providers the highest level of flexibility in the selection of units for each qualification: stakeholders can individually determine on a case-by-case basis the actual mix of units that will combine to fulfil the packaging requirements for a qualification
- Structured – there is a logical flow between qualifications: this facilitates advancement through qualifications, enables movement between streams and enables students to gain higher level managerial qualifications while still retaining a practical and operational focus.

Industry-Based Content and Units of Competency

The qualifications listed in the proposed Framework are based on units of competency developed by industry making the training content relevant and responsive to industry need.

As the qualifications rise through the levels (Certificate II to Advanced Diploma), so to do the choices of Units of Competency that exist within the packaging rules vary to respond to the changing workplace nature of the tasks that need to be completed.

These changes to selection options reflect the required Functional Competencies identified by industry as being necessary for the various job titles that have been classified.

Every qualification requires participants to undertake a blend of mandatory Core and Generic competencies as well as elective Functional competencies.

Highest Level of Flexibility

The Regional vocational training model is based on the concept of 'Qualifications, not courses' and it is an approach that has proved most successful.

No two hospitality/tourism properties are identical and no two hospitality/tourism properties have training (or any other) needs that are the same so it is irrational to impose on such an environment a constant vocational training system that fails to take this distinctiveness into account.

The proposed Framework requires students to undertake industry-based Core and Generic units of competency but incorporates the highest possible level of flexibility into the supplementary Functional units that complete the packaging requirements for each qualification.

This enables students to:

- Select Functional units to suit their workplace needs and/or personal career aspirations
- Pick an industry stream most relevant to employer needs which will deliver targeted training appropriate to workplace requirements
- Move easily between streams most relevant to their changing or emerging professional and workplace needs
- Engage only in vocational training that is directly relevant to identified industry and personal imperatives.

Flexibility is further enhanced by virtue of the fact that participants can enter – or leave - the qualification Framework at any level: there is no obligation to complete, for example, Certificate II before undertaking Certificate III or higher.
