Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for participant diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant centred learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorize and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energizing and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /group exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalize the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative assessment tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: USE ENGLISH AT A SUPERVISORY LEVEL		NOMINAL HOURS: 120
UNIT NUMBER: D2.LAN.CL10.02
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with the skills and knowledge required to use English at a supervisory level in the workplace.
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Use English to induct new employees 1.1 Welcome new employee(s) and introduce them to key personnel 1.2 Explain how the position relates to others in the company 1.3 Speak positively about the company structure, goals and priorities 1.4 Give information about the new employee's roles and responsibilities 1.5 Show and explain features in the work area 1.6 Outline details of any training requirements Element 2: Conduct a staff meeting 2.1 Notify all relevant staff of scheduled staff meeting 2.2 Draw up an agenda for the staff meeting 2.3 Chair the meeting 2.4 Develop an action plan and dates		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment. This unit applies to supervisors in all industry sectors within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Front Office 2. Housekeeping 3. Food and Beverage Service 4. Food Production 5. Travel Agencies 6. Tour Operation To induct new employees may include: • Being able to make the new employee feel welcome and part of the team through a warm manner and by making appropriate introductions to other employees • Being able to clearly explain company organisation structure and reporting lines

Element 3: Supervise and motivate a work team 3.1 Give clear instructions of work to be completed and realistic deadlines 3.2 Check instructions have been understood by all involved 3.3 Give constructive feedback on performance 3.4 Seek suggestions for improvements from staff	• Being able to explain company goals and priorities • Being able to answer questions about employee's leave entitlements and absence procedures. Key personnel may include: • Human resources department staff members • Team leaders • Co-workers • Information technology (it) support staff • Fire warden • First aid officer • Training manager • Finance staff. Employees roles and responsibilities may include: • Presenting a professional manner • Punctuality • Reporting occupational health, safety and welfare or other issues identified by local rules or regulations • Absenteeism responsibilities. Features in the work area may include: • Personal work space, lockers, bathrooms, lunch room • Security issues such as opening and closing times and routines • Storage of supplies • Notice boards • Computers and log on requirements
---	--

- Location of first aid kits
- Photocopy facilities
- Emergency evacuation points.

Training requirements may include:

- Occupational health, safety and welfare
- Information technology (IT)
- Telephone answering protocols
- First aid
- Customer service
- Sales and marketing
- Equipment maintenance
- Quality assurance.

Chair a meeting may include:

- Welcome and introductions
- Adherence to the agenda
- Appointment of someone else to take the minutes of the meeting
- Management of the group dynamics by allowing contributions from everyone rather than letting one or two people dominate the discussion
- Keeping the discussion on track and sticking to the time allotted
- Clearly stating the problem or priorities
- Summarising points of view objectively
- Agreeing who is going to do what and by when in a set of action steps in the action plan
- Setting the time and date for the next meeting.

	Develop an action plan and dates relates to: • The identification of who is to do the agreed action • The date the action is to be completed. Constructive feedback on performance may include: • Genuine praise • Suggestions on how to improve performance • Suggestions for alternative strategies to complete a task • Outline of consequences if certain steps are not carried out correctly. Assessment Guide The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit: • The enterprise's policies and procedures in regard to a supervisory role • Ability to induct new employees to the enterprise • Ability to explain the employee's role and responsibilities and how the position relates to others within the enterprise • Ability to explain the structure of the enterprise and its goals and priorities • Ability to conduct a staff meeting • Ability to explain the scope of a work task by giving clear instructions • Ability to give constructive feedback to employees. Linkages To Other Units • Build and maintain a team approach to service delivery • Apply industry standards to team supervision • Implement, monitor and evaluate a training and development program • Develop and supervise operational approaches
--	---

- Plan and promote training courses
- Manage and resolve conflict situations
- Use oral English to convey a complex exchange of ideas
- Read and write English at an advanced level
- Read and write English at a supervisory level.

Critical Aspects of Assessment

Evidence of the following is essential:

- Understanding of the role of the supervisor when inducting new employees
- Demonstrated ability to explain job roles, responsibilities and links with other positions within the enterprise
- Demonstrated ability to explain the organisation structure of the enterprise, its goals and priorities for the future
- Demonstrated ability to conduct a successful staff meeting by welcoming and introducing everyone, adhering to the agenda, starting and finishing the meeting on time and developing a clear action plan
- Demonstrated ability to supervise and motivate a work team by giving clear instructions, appropriate feedback and relevant suggestions for improvement.

Context of Assessment

This unit may be assessed on or off the job:

- Assessment should include practical demonstration either in the workplace or through a simulation activity, supported by a range of methods to assess underpinning knowledge
- Assessment must relate to the individual's work area or area of responsibility.

Resource Implications

Training and assessment to include access to a real or simulated workplace with suitably qualified English as a Second Language (ESL) teachers; and access to workplace standards, procedures, policies, guidelines, tools and equipment.

Assessment Methods

The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit:

- Worksheets
- Observation of practical candidate performance
- Role plays
- Oral and written questions
- Case studies and simulations
- Project and assignment work.

Key Competencies in this Unit

Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectively

Level 2 = competence to manage tasks

Level 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating

Key Competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	2	Research information about the enterprise's structure, goals and priorities
Communicating ideas and information	2	Chair a staff meeting
Planning and organising activities	2	Develop an action plan
Working with others and in teams	2	Give constructive feedback
Using mathematical ideas and techniques	2	Develop a timeline in an action plan

	Solving problems	2	Seek suggestions to improve performance
	Using technology	2	Use office equipment, including computers

1.1 Welcome new employee(s) and introduce them to key personnel

An organization only has one chance to make a good first impression with the new hire, and the first few days will leave a lasting impression.

It is important then to make sure that all new employees are provided with an opportunity to meet the people they will work most closely with.

Slide 3

3.	Trainer introduces the slide and explains the importance of inducting staff effectively. The first impression of the organisation or team is important to establish a good rapport with the employee/s.

Slide

Planning for new employees

It is important that all staff receive the same level of support when they join your organisation. An organisation should:

- Have a welcome strategy in place
- Have a personal collage of all immediate staff
- Have a mentor or buddy system
- Express a genuine interest in the new employee as a person
- Immerse the new staff member in the company culture

Slide 4

Introducing people

It is important to practice:

- Introducing yourself
- Introducing others
- Responding to introductions

1.2 Explain how the position relates to others in the company

It is important to understand how a position relates to other positions within an organisation in order to better achieve the overall goals of the company.

Slide 7

7.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and explains the idea that positions interconnect and influence each others' work. All staff rely on the accounting department to get their salary, and accounting requires supervisors to complete working hours of staff before they can pay the salary.

Slide

Role clarity and relationship to other positions

It is necessary to clearly outline the role of the new employee and how their position relates to other roles in the organisation. There may often be different levels within a company such as:

- Managers
- Supervisors
- Operational staff

Slide 8

8.	Trainer presents slide and explains the different levels of authority within organisations. Trainer might want to show examples of organisational charts in the hospitality and tourism industry. There are many various examples available online. Trainees can read through the information in their TMs. Trainer asks trainees to identify how their position relates to others in the organisation.

Slide

1.3 Speak positively about the company structure, goals and priorities

Speaking positively about company goals, structure and priorities is an important role. It helps to:

- Encourage and engage new employees
- Show your awareness of the organisation and to share that knowledge
- Align individual goals with company priorities and strategy
- Identify who does what within the organisation

Trainer explains each type of structure using information from TM. It is possible to incorporate other examples of organisational structure like mechanical and organic and to show companies that use these structures (Google, Airlines, Apple). There is a lot of information available on the internet to support examples.

Slide

Organisational structure details

The significant components of organisational structure are:

- Work specialisation
- Span of control
- Centralisation
- Decentralisation
- Formalisation
- Departmentalisation
- Chain of command

Slide 11

11.	Trainer presents the slide and trainees read through the explanation from their TMs. Trainees explain their own work context and structures using the terms in the slide. Is their workplace highly centralised, with very specific job roles or do staff perform multiple roles? Trainer can use examples of big hotel chains with strict guidelines, departments, SOPs etc. versus smaller more organic hotels or organisations. Trainees complete the activity regarding organisational structure and report back to the class.

Speaking positively in the workplace

Some ideas to support speaking positively:

- Smile when you speak. People will react differently when you put a little smile in your voice. It is human nature to mirror the person we are speaking to.
- Focus on what you can do. Instead of “We can’t do that until next week,” try “We will be able to do that next week.”
- Suggest alternatives and solutions. Instead of “That is okay, except...” say “If you do X , it will be perfect.”
- Take responsibility – don’t lay blame others. Instead of “ It’s not my fault,” say “ Here’s what I can do to fix that.”
- Avoid sounding pushy. Instead of “You’ll have to,” say “Could you” or “Would you be able to” or “What I’ll need is...”
- Use a yes we can attitude. Instead of “No, because...” say “Yes, as soon as...”

Slide 12

Slide No	Trainer Notes
12.	Trainer presents the slide and trainees discuss how they can speak positively about their organisation. Trainees could present different aspects of their organisational structure to the class using positive language. For example “Our company has many departments which makes it easy to find the right person to speak to about a specific issue or activity. Management is approachable and there are regular meetings where ideas or issues are welcomed.”

Vision and mission

Vision and mission statements:

- Are important aspects which influence organisational culture
- Create a foundation for values, priorities, company goals and objectives

1.4 Give information about the new employee's roles and responsibilities

Identifying an employee's roles and responsibilities is important to:

- Show them clearly what is expected from their work
- Set goals
- Inform them of who they will work with
- Allow them to ask for clarification

Slide 14

Slide No	Trainer Notes
14.	Trainer presents slide and asks trainees if they have any other reasons why clear roles and responsibilities are effective. Trainees own responses.

What employees value in their work role

What Employees Say They Want (#1 is most important)

1. Full appreciation for work done.
2. Feeling "in" on things.
3. Sympathetic help on personal problems.
4. Job security.
5. Good wages.
6. Interesting work.
7. Promotion / growth opportunities.
8. Personal loyalty to workers.
9. Good working conditions.
10. Tactful discipline.

What Employers Think Their Employees Want

1. Good wages.
2. Job security.
3. Promotion / growth opportunities.
4. Good working conditions.
5. Interesting work.
6. Personal loyalty to workers.
7. Tactful discipline.
8. Full appreciation for work done.
9. Sympathetic help on personal problems.
10. Feeling "in" on things.

There is obviously a disconnect between employers and employees. Employers believe that monetary compensation is the main thing their employees desire, while employees actually want to be appreciated, cared for and "in" on things.

Job description

- A job description identifies essential and non-essential tasks that are assigned to a specific position
- It also identifies reporting relationships and may also describe required qualifications, minimum requirements, working conditions, and desirable qualifications

Slide 16

Slide No

Trainer Notes

16.

Trainer shows the slide and goes through the purpose of a job description. Trainer asks trainees if their job descriptions clearly explain their roles and responsibilities. Trainer presents task and duty statement information from TMs and trainees read and ask questions as needed. Trainees read through the job description example and identify main duties and responsibilities. Trainer supports.

Slide

Language relating to job roles

Job descriptions and task statements often begin with:

- Job tasks include:
- Responsibilities include:
- Main duties are:

1.5 Show and explain features in the workplace

In explaining a particular work area for a staff member it may be useful to use phrases and expressions such as:

- There is/There are
- You will need....
- This is where you will be working
- This is a/an.....
- Have you used a before?

Slide 18

Slide No	Trainer Notes
18.	Trainer goes through the introduction to the performance criteria and students look at the slide. Trainer asks what other language may be useful to explain features in the workplace? Trainees respond as appropriate. Trainer facilitates discussion. Activity: students look at the equipment or items and decide which person may use the item. Trainer supports. Activity: Write down all of the main items, materials and equipment that is needed in your position or choose a job and list the relevant items. Describe the main items to your partner. Trainees complete the activity and share with their groups. Who has the longest list?

Slide

1.6 Outline details of any training requirements

A job role may require certain training to be completed and it is important that any required training is explained clearly to a new employee.

Slide 19

Slide No	Trainer Notes
19.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and explains that training may be a requirement for certain roles.

Slide

Training requirements

In describing training requirements, it may be useful to use expressions like:

- It is a requirement of the organisation that.....
- You will be required to.....
- You are expected to be able to.....
- You will have to attend training for.....
- Training will be provided for.....
- This position requires that you are trained in these areas:....

Slide 20

Slide No	Trainer Notes
20.	Trainees read through the information from their TMs and practice the language that may be useful for informing employees about training requirements. Trainer explains any unknown phrases and expressions.

Slide

Training requirements cont'd

It will be important to be able to explain the main information relating to the training such as:

- When and how the training is delivered
- How long it takes
- What materials, items, clothing, or equipment is needed
- Who arranges the training and how they contact the employee to inform them of the training
- Where training takes place
- What happens if the training outcome is unsuccessful
- Is further training needed
- How often training must be updated
- Why the training is needed

Slide 21

Slide

Training requirements cont'd

General training in organisations may include:

- Evacuation and emergency procedures
- First aid
- How to use equipment specific to a position
- HR manual/Operations manual use
- Annual/Sick leave procedures
- Customer service management
- Quality assurance
- IT
- Meeting request/attendance procedures

Slide 22

22.	Trainer presents the slide and asks students if they have experienced any of this training. Trainees respond and share other training experiences as appropriate. Perhaps they have delivered training or received training. Trainees complete activity from their TMs. Activity: Read through the training plan below (TM) and determine how you would describe this training to someone. Practice summarising the training with your partner. Trainer reminds trainees of Work Projects and due dates. Trainer goes through summary of the Element and clarifies any questions from trainees.

Slide

Element 2: Conduct a staff meeting

Performance Criteria:

- 2.1 Notify all relevant staff of scheduled staff meeting
 - 2.2 Draw up an agenda for the staff meeting
 - 2.3 Chair the meeting
 - 2.4 Develop an action plan and dates

Slide 23

Slide No	Trainer Notes
23.	Trainer introduces the element and explains the assessment and work project requirements. Trainer asks if trainees have attended meetings or conducted them before?

Slide

2.1 Notify all relevant staff of scheduled staff meeting

Each organisation will have different ways of organising and conducting meetings so it is important to be able to explain company specific meeting procedures clearly and effectively.

Slide 24

Slide No	Trainer Notes
24.	Trainer introduces the slide and performance criteria. Trainees discuss the modes of communication within their organisation such as: emailing, notice boards, verbal, text messages etc.

Slide

Communicating with staff

The screenshot shows the Google Calendar 'Create Event' interface. The event is titled 'Doc Review' and is scheduled for 7/24/2014 from 11:00am to 12:00pm. The location is 'EUG-Conf-Cfm'. A blue arrow points to the 'Where' field. The 'Video call' section shows a 'Join meeting: doc-review' link and a 'Change name' link. The 'Calendar' dropdown is set to 'EUG-02-01-Conference'. The 'Add: Guests | Rooms, etc.' panel on the right lists several rooms with 'Add' and 'Remove' buttons. The 'Event color' is set to blue, and the 'Reminders' are set to 'Pop-up' 10 minutes before.

Slide 25

Slide No	Trainer Notes
25.	Trainer explains the different ways of communicating within the workplace and students look at the example in the slide (TM). Have they seen this type of meeting request before? Have they used the system? What other methods do they use in their workplace?

Slide

Noticeboard

One common way to inform staff of a meeting is to use a staff noticeboard. The meeting information should include:

- Meeting title
- Date and time
- Location
- Reason for meeting
- Materials to bring or information to prepare
- Duration of meeting
- Attendees (people who need to attend)

Slide 26

Slide No	Trainer Notes
26.	Trainer asks trainees what should be included in a meeting request before showing the slide. Trainees respond and then trainer shows the slide. Trainer asks if a noticeboard is used in their organisation

Slide

Online meeting requests

Below are some ideas for writing effective online meeting requests:

- Succinct Subject Line (required)
- Personal Introduction
- Required Preparation
- Meeting Date and Time (required)
- Location (required)
- Meeting Purpose (required)
- Agenda
- Invitee List

Slide 27

Slide No	Trainer Notes
27.	Trainer asks students what information is needed for an effective online meeting request. Trainees read through the slide information. Have trainees used this method before? Trainees read through the explanation of each idea in their TMs and trainer supports as required.

Slide

Meeting requests

Things to consider:

- Send detailed meeting invitations for scheduled business meetings. Invitations aren't necessary for ad-hoc meetings
- Failure to send a good invitation is inconsiderate and makes people unhappy!
- The amount of information you need to write from scratch depends on the software you use to send your email
- There are 4 required and 4 optional pieces of information to include

Slide 28

Slide No	Trainer Notes
28.	Trainer goes through summary with trainees. Trainees explain the process in their workplace.

Slide

2.2 Draw up an agenda for a staff meeting

An agenda:

- Communicates important information
- provides an outline for the meeting
- is a checklist to ensure that all topics are covered
- lets participants know what will be discussed and gives them a chance to come prepared for the meeting
- provides a focus for the meeting

Slide 29

Slide No	Trainer Notes
29.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and asks trainees to explain what an agenda is. Have trainees used an agenda before? Trainer explains why an agenda is important using the information in the slide and from the TM. Trainees read through the create an effective agenda ideas in their TMs and trainer supports. Trainees complete the agenda activity from their TMs. Trainer supports.

Slide

2.3 Chair the meeting

The chair controls the meeting:

- All remarks are addressed through the chair
- Members do not interrupt each other
- Members aim to reach a consensus
- A vote is taken if consensus is not reached
- The majority wins the vote
- All members accept the majority decision

Slide 30

Slide No	Trainer Notes
30.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and explains the idea of a chair/chairperson. Trainer asks trainees what the role of a chairperson is? Trainer uses TM and slide to answer.

Slide

Meeting chair duties

Summarising by the chairperson during meetings can:

- Indicate progress, or lack of
- Refocus discussion that has wandered off the point
- Conclude one point and lead into the next
- Highlight important points
- Assist the secretary if necessary
- Clarify any misunderstandings

Slide 31

Slide No	Trainer Notes
31.	Trainer goes through the information with trainees and explains the role of the chair in relation to successfully running a meeting. Trainees could provide examples of good and bad meetings they have attended or conducted. What were the major factors that influenced the success or failure of the meetings? Trainees provide answers and trainer facilitates discussion.

Slide

Role of attendees

To ensure an effective meeting, all participants should:

- Undertake any necessary preparation prior to the meeting
- Arrive on time
- Keep an open mind
- Listen to the opinions of others
- Participate
- Avoid dominating the proceedings
- Avoid conflict situations
- Avoid side conversations which distract others
- Ask questions to clarify understanding
- Note down any action agreed upon
- After the meeting, undertake any agreed action and brief others as appropriate

Slide 32

Slide No	Trainer Notes
32.	Trainer highlights the need for attendees to participate in meetings actively to make them successful. Trainer goes through the slide with trainees and elicits any other ideas from students. Trainees provide ideas on why a meeting may be unsuccessful. Trainees read through the information in their TMs regarding why meetings fail. Trainer encourages trainees to offer examples of when they have experienced similar situations.

Slide

2.4 Develop an action plan and dates

Often during a meeting certain actions will become apparent and it is important to develop a plan that details how these actions will get done.

Slide 33

Slide No	Trainer Notes
33.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and explains how meetings often result in actions or activities that are determined need to be completed.

Slide

Action plan development

When developing an action plan it is important to:

- Express your solution as a series of goals
- Generate a list of Actions for each goal
- Prepare a timeline
- Allocate resources
- Develop strategies for monitoring progress
- Assign tasks
- Estimate costs/materials
- Implement the plan

Slide 34

Slide No	Trainer Notes
34.	Trainer explains that an action plan is an important way to monitor the progress of actions and to be able to identify issues or areas that require support. Trainer can access many examples of action plans online and share with trainees. Trainees can identify the important aspects of an action plan and check against the information in the slide and in their TMs.

Element 3: Supervise and motivate a team

Performance criteria:

- 3.1 Give clear instructions of work to be completed and realistic deadlines
- 3.2 Check instructions have been understood by
- 3.3 Give constructive feedback on performance
- 3.4 Seek suggestions for improvements from staff

Slide 36

36.	Trainer introduces the element and explains the work projects and assessment due dates.

Slide

3.1 Give clear instructions of work to be completed and realistic deadlines

Giving clear instructions:

- Don't assume they know what you mean
- Be clear and specific
- Give timeframes
- Give examples
- Give alternatives
- Set boundaries

Slide 37

Slide No	Trainer Notes
37.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and ask trainees to read through the slide. Trainees explain what they think each point means. Trainees read through the information in their TMs and trainer answers any questions as necessary. Trainees can write a set of clear instructions to do something simple that they know. Then share with their partner and see if their partner understands.

Slide

3.2 Check instructions have been understood by all involved

Before you let your staff loose on the basis of your instruction, it is useful to seek clarification from staff to ensure that they understand what the task at hand is and what is expected.

Slide 38

Slide No	Trainer Notes

38.
-----	--

	Trainer introduces the slide and explains that checking for understanding is not as simple as saying "Do you understand?" Participants will often just answer yes when in fact they don't understand as they don't want to lose face in front of the group.
--	---

Slide

Concept checking

For example, some questions that could be asked to make sure staff have understood instructions are:

- How long have you got to complete these tasks?
- Who is responsible for task A, task B...?
- What do you need to complete the tasks?
- Who should you contact if you have a problem?
- Should you?
- Will you?
- Gary, when is the next project update meeting? (Use names)

Slide 39

Slide No	Trainer Notes
39.	Trainer explains the idea of concept checking using information from the TM. Trainees read through their TMs and ask questions as needed. Trainer goes through the slide and explains how these questions check that participants understand the instructions.

Slide

3.3 Give constructive feedback on performance

Feedback is an essential element for everyone in an organisation's workforce:

- Feedback is a useful tool for indicating when things are going in the right direction or for redirecting problem performance

Slide 40

Slide No	Trainer Notes
40.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and goes through the introduction from the TM. Trainer asks trainees why feedback is important? Trainer asks why people are often afraid of feedback? (Scared they have done something wrong, take it personally, feedback may be incorrect) Trainer asks if trainees like receiving/giving feedback? Trainer asks what they think are important aspects in giving constructive feedback?

Slide

How to give useful feedback

Some situations which require giving constructive feedback include:

- Ongoing performance discussions
- Providing specific performance pointers
- Following up on coaching discussions
- Giving corrective guidance
- Letting someone know the consequences of their behaviour

Slide 41

Slide No	Trainer Notes
41.	Trainer asks trainees when feedback is required in the workplace. Trainees offer own ideas then trainer shows the slide. Trainer asks what feedback participants have given in the past. Was the feedback successful? If not, what went wrong? Trainer encourages discussion.

Slide

Constructive feedback

Six ways to make feedback constructive:

- If you can't think of a constructive purpose for giving feedback, don't give it at all
- Focus on description rather than judgement
- Focus on observation rather than inference
- Focus on behaviour rather than the person
- Provide a balance of positive and negative feedback
- Be aware of feedback overload

Slide 42

Slide No	Trainer Notes
42.	Trainer asks trainees how they give feedback. What techniques do they use to make feedback successful and effective? Trainer presents the slide and uses information from the TM to explain each point. Trainees read through the six step constructive feedback suggestions in their TMs and discuss as a group. Trainer facilitates discussion and answers any questions.

Slide

3.4 Seek suggestions for improvement from staff

Why is it important to provide opportunities for staff to give feedback?

- Engages staff
- Makes them feel like they have a voice
- They often have good ideas because they are closest to the work

Slide 43

Slide No	Trainer Notes
43.	Trainer introduces the performance criteria and asks trainees why feedback from staff is important. Do they seek feedback from staff? How? Why? Are staff comfortable to provide feedback? Trainees discuss in small groups. Trainees read through the feedback section in their TMs and discuss in groups. Trainer asks if they have staff feedback surveys in their workplace. How often? Are they effective? Trainer encourages discussion about staff feedback. Trainer reminds trainees of work projects and assessment. Trainer summarises the element and trainees ask questions as needed.
