Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for participant diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant centred learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorize and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energizing and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /group exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalize the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative assessment tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: WORK AS A TOUR GUIDE		NOMINAL HOURS: 80
UNIT NUMBER: D2.TTG.CL3.01
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with skills and knowledge required to provide ethical, safe, professional and legally compliant guiding services on a day-to-day basis.
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA	UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Describe the context for the delivery of guiding services 1.1 Identify the roles, functions and responsibilities of a tour guide 1.2 List and differentiate between types of tour guides 1.3 Identify and differentiate between the groups a tour guide may lead 1.4 Describe the interpretive approach to tour guiding 1.5 Identify tour types 1.6 List the characteristics of a tour guide 1.7 Describe tour guiding principles Element 2: Develop guiding skills and knowledge 2.1 Identify guide information sources and contacts 2.2 Acquire and up-date industry skills and knowledge	Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment. This unit applies to the provision of ethical, safe, professional and legally compliant guiding services within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Tour Operation Roles, functions and responsibilities of a tour guide will include: • Pathfinder to show the way • Mentor to educate and provide information • Host to accompany and facilitate social interaction • Escort to protect and ensure safety • Entertainer to optimise enjoyment and interest • Problem solver to resolve issues arising within the tour group and within the tour itself • Interpreter to interpret the activities, site and tour and promote cultural awareness • Assistant – to help, encourage and motivate

2.3 Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to provision of guiding services Element 3: Provide guiding services 3.1 Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours 3.2 Apply required legal, ethical and safety considerations to the conduct of tours 3.3 Optimise respect for local culture 3.4 Minimise negative impact on the culture, people and environment Element 4: Communicate with industry personnel 4.1 Communicate with tourism industry operators 4.2 Communicate with colleagues	• Leader to direct, navigate and move participants • Public relations to enhance the reputation and image of the site/employer • Administrator to keep records and monitor groups and activities • The mortar that binds the tour together. Types of tour guides include: • On-site/attractions guides • City guides • Government guides • Driver guides • Specialised guides including action and adventure tours • Independent guides • Business and industry guides • One-day guides • Extended tour guides. Groups relates to domestic and international tour parties that may include: Package groups • Public tour groups • Students • Incentive groups • Families and friends • Clubs and associations • Senior citizens • Special interest groups including groups with a focus on heritage, adventure, sport, culture, arts, indigenous tourism, nature and eco-tourism.

	The interpretive approach commonly uses face-to-face methods and is frequently supported by interpretive media and aids. The interpretive approach includes: • Engaging the participants • Providing a verbal commentary to explain and translate the characteristics, significance and features of the tour • Attributing local and cultural meaning to sights and activities • Facilitating learning, understanding and awareness • Contextualising the tour within a local framework and flavour • Generating respect and appreciation for the local customs, history and people • Provoking curiosity, thought and encouraging personal reflection • Bringing the tour to life by providing opportunities for learning and participation • Building a relationship between the tour groups and the environment/focus of the tour. Tour types may include: • Site-based tours: ▪ Museums, historic sites and galleries ▪ Zoos, preserves and wildlife parks ▪ Gardens, parks, forests and national parks ▪ Factories, businesses, production and processing plants ▪ Government and semi-government utilities including power-generating stations, reservoirs and waste-water treatment plants. • Special interest tours: ▪ Photography ▪ Wildlife ▪ Aerial ▪ Parks and gardens

	▪ Sport including participation and observers ▪ Flora and fauna ▪ Wine and food ▪ Geographical regions, areas and destinations ▪ Scientific and educational. • Water-based tours: ▪ Cruises ▪ Boating and yachting ▪ Snorkelling ▪ Scuba diving ▪ Fishing. • Land-based tours: ▪ Four-wheel drive ▪ Remote area ▪ Bus/coach tours ▪ Bicycle and motor bike ▪ Walking ▪ Horse and camel ▪ Caravan and camper. Characteristics of a tour guide may include: • Honesty • Practicality • Friendliness • Willingness to serve

	• Local knowledge • Personal hygiene and presentation • Skills: ▪ Unique skills relevant to the type of tour being guided ▪ Communication and interpersonal ▪ Negotiation and conflict resolution ▪ Planning, researching, organising and strategic thinking ▪ Risk and emergency management including first aid skills, the ability to respond to accidents, and operate basic emergency equipment and communication systems ▪ Leadership and control. Tour guiding principles must include: • Safety and security including people and property and the development of standard and contingency plans • Care and respect including for the tour group, locals and the environment • Skills, knowledge and ability to conduct/lead the tour • Relevant knowledge in relation to the tour including sites, destinations, environment and activities • Providing an interesting and engaging experience • Ethical conduct • Catering for the needs of those with special needs and individual differences. Guide information sources and contacts may include: • Tour operators and wholesalers • Venue and attraction operators • Internet • Literature including guide books, history books, media articles, brochures and general destination and site publications

	• Network of contacts within the industry including other tour guides • Tour guide bodies and associations including licensing authorities, where applicable • Government and semi-government authorities and agencies • Local identities, stakeholders and landowners • Tour guide codes of practice. Acquire and up-dating industry skills and knowledge may include: • Attending industry seminars • Partaking in industry and related training courses including those provided by industry and by private and public providers • Undertaking familiarisation tours provided by industry attractions, venues and sites • Joining a professional guiding association • Undertaking formal and informal research • Practicing required skills in an industry setting including acting as an assistant to a bona fide tour guide • Arranging objective evaluation and assessment of personal skill and knowledge levels. Legal, ethical and safety requirements relate to civil and criminal liability and may include: • Legal: ▪ Duty of care including levels of liability ▪ False, misleading and deceptive advertising ▪ Breach of contract including conditions, terms and warranties ▪ Complying with specific host country legislation that applies to tour guides in general and specific tour types, locations and/or activities. • Ethical: ▪ Truth and honesty regarding information provided to customers including a total ban on fabrication of information

	▪ Provision of products and services in accordance with advertised itinerary and premises ▪ Demonstration of respect for local communities, local culture, sites and the environment including the objective of minimal impact tour guiding practices aimed at sustainable operations ▪ Maintaining principled relationships with key stakeholders. • Safety: ▪ Complying with occupational health, safety and welfare requirements as they apply to individual tours ▪ Ensuring the responsible behaviour of customers including controlling and modifying unacceptable and unsafe behaviour, where necessary ▪ Checking equipment, locations, facilities and the environment prior to engaging with or using same ▪ Managing risk including identifying and explaining potential hazards ▪ Removing identified dangerous activities or undertakings from the itinerary including replacing them with an appropriate alternative, where possible ▪ Abandoning the tour under conditions where the safety of customers cannot be guaranteed ▪ Providing safety advice, directions and demonstrations to customers including monitoring of the implementation of advice and the provision of supplementary guidance as necessary ▪ Participating in discussions regarding the development of new tours and itineraries. Skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours may include: • Pre-arrival activities: ▪ Checking of arrival schedules ▪ Checking and verifying reservations ▪ Confirming itinerary ▪ Collecting guide kit, cash advance and vouchers • Pre-departure checks: ▪ Confirming tour requirements

	▪ Checking and loading equipment and supplies ▪ Completing documentation • During tour activities: ▪ Conducting tour ▪ Providing commentary ▪ Facilitating interaction, learning, understanding and enjoyment, as appropriate • Post-departure activities: ▪ Reconciling cash and vouchers ▪ Remitting optional payments ▪ Forwarding feedback. Communicate should include: • Using acceptable industry terminology clearly • Achieving mutual understanding • Being able to reach agreement on guiding activities • Providing accurate information and explanations about customer requirements and special requests • Taking into account social, cultural and business requirements and contexts including body language, cultural customs and mores • Identifying operational problems and presenting possible solutions to same • Consulting in an open manner. Tourism industry operators may include: • Coach companies • Tour operators and cruise operators • Airline personnel • Accommodation providers
--	--

- Food and beverage outlets
- Staff and owners of attractions and theme parks
- Inbound tour operators.

Colleagues may include:

- Other guides
- Support staff
- Drivers
- Office personnel
- Owners, managers and supervisors.

Assessment Guide

The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- Enterprise policies and procedures in regard to guiding activities
- Principles of guiding
- Characteristics of a tour guide
- Ability to use first aid and emergency situation techniques
- Ability to undertake research and compile useful information for conversion into guiding knowledge and/or commentary
- General tourism industry knowledge
- Specific information regarding the tour being conducted
- Legal liability issues
- Hazard identification and risk management.

Linkages To Other Units

- Conduct pre-departure checks
- Conduct interpretive activities in the field

	• Coordinate and operate a day-tour (or short excursions) • Develop and coordinate appropriate cultural tourism activity • Establish and maintain safe touring conditions • Lead tour groups in a responsible manner • Manage and facilitate an extended tour experience • Plan, develop and evaluate interpretive activities • Plan, trial and implement minimal impact operations • Prepare and present tour commentaries • Provide arrival and departure assistance • Research and share information on indigenous cultures • Develop and update tourism industry knowledge. Critical Aspects of Assessment Evidence of the following is essential: • Understanding of roles and responsibilities of a tour guide • Understanding of legal, ethical and social issues in tour guiding • Understanding of personal and customer safety and security in tour guiding • Demonstrated ability to research and present hard copy information to support guiding activities for a nominated tour type, at a given location, to a designated group of customers, listing the legal, ethical and safety issues that attach to the conduct of that tour • Demonstrated ability to lead a short, local tour of a nominated type for a designated group of people demonstrating the full range of roles, responsibilities and functions of a tour guide • Demonstrated ability to describe and explain an actual or simulated customer complaint to a colleague, negotiating a resolution to the complaint and identifying how the same sort of complaint can be prevented in the future.

	Context of Assessment Assessment must ensure: - Actual or simulated office environment for the research and development of tour guide knowledge, plus actual tour guide venues for the demonstration of practical tour guiding skills. Resource Implications Training and assessment must include the use of actual tour guiding sources and resources, actual or simulated customers and real sites, locations, venues, attractions and other situations that may be the focus of genuine tour guiding activities. Assessment Methods The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit: - Observation of practical candidate performance - Portfolio of information that may support tour guiding activities - Case studies - Role plays - Oral and written questions - Third party reports completed by a supervisor - Project and assignment work. Key Competencies in this Unit Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectively Level 2 = competence to manage tasks Level 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating
	Key Competencies	Level	Examples
	Collecting, organising and analysing information	3	Research tour guide information; analyse safety and security issues

	Communicating ideas and information	2	Communicate with customers on tour
	Planning and organising activities	1	Lead customers on tour
	Working with others and in teams	2	Liaise with customers, employer, other guides and attraction, operators
	Using mathematical ideas and techniques	1	Calculate safety issues and margins; deal with cash on tour
	Solving problems	2	Resolve situations that present a danger to the tour
	Using technology	2	Use the internet for research; use emergency equipment and communication systems

Class Activity – General Discussion Trainer leads a general class discussion by asking questions such as: • What is a Tour Guide and what do they do? • What experience do you have of being of being a Tour Guide? • What different types of tours are you aware of? • What tours have you been on and what was they experience like? Why? • What do you think are the characteristics required by a good/effective Tour Guide?

Roles, functions and responsibilities of a Tour Guide:

- Manager and leader

Slide 7

Slide No	Trainer Notes
7.	Trainer identifies the range of roles, functions and responsibilities of a Tour Guide: Manager and leader This is vital and central role because tourists/visitors and the employer expect the Tour Guide to take charge/control of the tour and tour group members. This can involve: • Managing the tour group members and leading the tour so: ▪ The schedule of the tour is adhered to ▪ No-one gets lost ▪ Behaviour is acceptable ▪ All participants get maximum value from the tour • Issuing items as required for the tour – such as tickets, badges, equipment, handouts and other group-specific or tour-specific items • Briefing people – on practical tour-related issues, and giving necessary operational and/or safety-related instructions • Taking responsibility for the tour group – highlighting the need to: ▪ Ensure comfort of the group ▪ Guarantee their safety and security

	▪ Respond to their individual needs/preferences ▪ Make sure visitors/tour group members enjoy their experience and ensure the tour lives up to advertisements/promises made about it and enhances the reputation and image of the Tour Operator and the destinations and host country ▪ Comply with all legal, moral and ethical requirements – including commonly accepted social standards/norms ▪ Monitor and supervise actions, language and interactions of the tour group • Escorting tour group members to protect them and ensure their safety – this can mean taking charge and taking appropriate action when an emergency arises or when there is a need to take decisive action to accommodate unforeseen/unexpected circumstances • Demonstrating confidence and credibility – by dressing appropriately, by acting and speaking professionally, by proving things are organised, by providing relevant and interesting information and insight into what is said • Acting as a role model – about how tour group members should act/behave, about where they can go and cannot go, how to talk to others • Directing, navigating and moving people in relation to where they go, what they do, how long they spend in an area/on an activity • Showing people what to do – such as demonstrating skills, demonstrating safety equipment/requirements, demonstrating local activities • Path-finding – to show the way so people know where to go.

- Mediator
- Communicator
- Cultural host

Slide 8

Slide No	Trainer Notes
8.	Trainer continues identifying the range of roles, functions and responsibilities of a Tour Guide: Mediator This is needed in order to: • Mediate problems and/or conflict within the group – or between individuals in the group • Mediate issues between the tour and the place where the tour is being conducted – which may relate to issues such as: ▪ Timing of activities ▪ Access to exhibits/areas ▪ Duration of demonstrations ▪ Movement of groups ▪ Actions of individuals within the tour group. Tourist Guides are often required to be the ‘social lubricant’ (regarded as a ‘social facilitator’) between members of a group to handle disputes and facilitate individual engagement with the tour (that is, to draw out those who appear alone, reluctant to participate or unhappy): high levels of social and interpersonal skills are essential for those who deliver tours. All Tourist Guides must be a ‘people person’.

	Communicator This involves: • Welcoming people to the tour – genuinely, warmly, personally and sincerely • Delivering a commentary to tour group members – to explain, inform, illustrate and interpret the tour and to promote cultural awareness • Responding to questions – asked by tour group members • Providing information – about tour sites, locations, destinations, surrounding areas, products and services, events and festivals, history and culture, business, and (generally speaking) anything to do with the local area/country. Being a good communicator also requires interpretation of aspects of the tour (such as culture and customs, history, the environment, social factors and the economy) Cultural host This relates to promoting and respecting local culture. • More on this is presented on later slides. Class Activity – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for a Tour Operator to attend and talk about their expectations of Tour Guides in relation to their roles, functions and responsibilities.

- Teacher and mentor
- Environmentalist
- Entertainer

Slide 9

Slide No	Trainer Notes
9.	Trainer continues identifying the range of roles, functions and responsibilities of a Tour Guide: Teacher and mentor All tours contain an element of teaching people something or facilitating their learning. This means the tour guide must have: • Extensive knowledge of the topic/area which is the focus of the tour – so they can show, tell and explain as required as well as respond to questions • Extensive knowledge of the wider area/country/region – in order to be an ambassador for the country/location • Skills and techniques to enable them to impart the knowledge they have – to groups and individuals. Environmentalist All Tourist Guides are expected to: • Advise tour group members about actions to help preserve and protect all environments they visit – to demonstrate responsibility and support the principle of sustainable tourism • Take action to minimise tourist impact – on the environment • Subscribe to the principles of sustainable tourism • Inform tourists of relevant local environmental issues and concerns – in relation to environmental issues, problems and initiatives.

	Entertainer All tours have some degree of entertainment and the Tour Guide needs to be able to: • Optimise enjoyment – of the group • Enhance interest – in the tour and activities • Make people smile and laugh - at appropriate times and for appropriate reasons • Captivate and amuse – people on tours, especially younger ones/children. - Sales person
- Administrator

Slide 10

Slide No	Trainer Notes
10.	Trainer continues identifying the range of roles, functions and responsibilities of a Tour Guide: Safety and security officer Delivering a tour can require: • Explanation of safety requirements – telling people what they should and should not do to remain safe • Distribution of safety equipment – and demonstration of how to wear/use it, as well as assisting people to get into safety/protective clothing • Observing and monitoring tour group members – to ensure they do not get lost, injured or place themselves (or others) in danger • Monitoring of the environment – to predict potential threats/warning signs • Taking appropriate action when danger threatens or an emergency situation occurs – or when a person is injured. Sales person A Tour Guide can be required to: • Promote retail opportunities – available within the tour to optimise sales • Encourage referral business – that is, encouraging people on the tour to suggest/recommend the tour and/or the country to their families and friends

	• Generate repeat business – where participants come back for another tour • Advertise any aspect of the business/site – as determined or required by management, Administrator Which can involve: • Liaising with other operators and businesses – to organise or otherwise facilitate tours and visits • Planning and organising tour activities – to suit identified need • Arranging supporting inclusions for the tour – such as food/meals, drinks, transport, accommodation and other items appropriate to the type of tour and identified need of tour group members • Completing necessary reports – as required by employer • Maintaining records – of each tour as necessary. Class Activity – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for Tour Guide/s to attend and talk to students about their job and the roles, functions and responsibilities inherent in their work.

List and differentiate between types of tour guides

There is a need to understand:

- Tour Operators may employ a variety of different Tour Guide types – or just one type
- Tour Guides can elect to be self-employed
- Some countries prescribe certain classifications – requiring Tour Guides to undertake identified training and obtain nominated qualifications

Slide 11

Slide No	Trainer Notes
11.	Trainer discusses context for different types of Tour Guides stating within the industry it is important to understand: • Tour Operators can elect to employ a variety of different classifications of Tour Guides – or they may only employ one type depending on the profile of tours they offer • Individuals can choose to be self-employed – and present/promote themselves as any type of Tour Guide they want to • Some countries stipulate classifications of Tourist Guides – which underpin their attempts to regulate entrants into the Tour Guiding industry.

Slide

List and differentiate between types of tour guides

Types of Tour Guides may include:

- On-site attractions Tour Guide

Slide 12

Slide No	Trainer Notes
12.	Trainer states it is common for the following types of Tour Guides to be available for employers and visitors/tour groups to choose from: On-site attractions guides These Tour Guides: • Are specific to one (or a limited number) of venues, attractions, parks, gardens or destinations • Meet and greet tourists on arrival • Have an extremely detailed knowledge of the site they are working in • Will be expected to promote sales within the site/attraction • Manage tourists and visitors while they are on-site • Will frequently: ▪ Lead on-site tours; Conduct demonstrations relevant to the site/type of attraction; Supervise activities – such as experiential learning; Provide commentaries; Drive site-specific transport/vehicles; Organise and monitor on-site inclusions – such as meals, photo opportunities, displays, events, distribution of materials, rides, games; Farewell visitors and encourage repeat and referral business.

Class Activity – Guest Speaker

Slide

List and differentiate between types of tour guides

- City Guide
- Government Guide

Slide 13

Slide No	Trainer Notes
13.	Trainer continues identifying and describing work of different types of Tour Guides: City guides These Tour Guides: • Specialise in leading tours of one or more cities. May conduct: ▪ 'City walks'; 'Bicycle tours'; 'Hop on, hop off' tours – using public transport; Tours of a specific area of a city; Tours of specific business/property types within the city – such as fashion and clothing houses, restaurants, electronic wholesalers/retailers; Tours of certain lifestyle/life choices – such as medicine, nightlife, arts and culture, museums, history, activity-based options • Often work closely with: ▪ Councils; Tourism bodies including semi-government authorities; Local businesses. Government guides Government guides are employed by the government or government-funded bodies or agencies. These Tour Guides: • Are employed by the government – but may not be obviously designated (to visitors/tourists) as government employees

- Need to comply with pre-requisite compliance requirements – which often relates to minimum requirements for experience as well as holding designated qualifications and/or a local tour licence/permit
- Are often to communicate prescribed information to visitors – as part of the government effort to impart knowledge and/or promote a certain point of view or initiative
- May:
 - Lead tours of government buildings and other government-owned and managed destinations
 - Conduct tours of general areas, cities and other attractions.

- Independent Guide

Slide 14

Slide No	Trainer Notes
14.	Trainer continues identifying and describing work of different types of Tour Guides: Specialised guides These Tour Guides: • Specialise on one or more type of tours – such as, for example: ▪ Action and adventure tours; Historic tours; Culture tours; The Arts' Eco-tourism and nature • Must have: ▪ Extensive knowledge of the areas they are specialising in; Sound skills relating to the activities which are the focus of their tours; Often operate as other guide types – in addition to their chosen specialisation' • May be classified as such by local regulations – for example Singapore STG classification Independent guide An independent guide: • Is self-employed • May also work for Tour Operators, Government agencies or attractions or destinations on a contractual basis – in any Tour Guide capacity as listed in this section

- May need to be registered by local authorities – in order to function in this capacity
- May need to ensure they meet local compliance obligations imposed by law/the authorities – which may relate to:
 - Advertising and promotion; Conduct and ethical practices – including complaint resolution; Insurance coverage.

Slide

List and differentiate between types of tour guides

- Business and industry Guides
- Duration-based Guides
- Driver Guides

Slide 15

Slide No	Trainer Notes
15.	Trainer continues identifying and describing work of different types of Tour Guides: Business and industry guides These Tourist Guides: • Are 'Specialised guides' who focus on leading tours to: ▪ Nominated business houses; Specific industry types or sectors • May be self-employed or employed by the businesses/industries they serve • Can operate (wholly or partially) on a 'commission basis – based on the sales made to visitors/tour groups while they are at individual establishments. Duration-based guides These Tour Guides may be: • One-day Tour guides – leading tours of (generally) six to twelve hours duration • Extended Tour Guides – conducting multiple day tours. They: • May be required to drive a vehicle – or may work in conjunction with a dedicated driver • May be required to cook/prepare meals – or may work with a dedicated cook

- Can be a generalist Tour Guide – with general knowledge about an area and/or a range of topics, or a Specialised Tourist Guide
- May be required to arrange and supervise accommodation of tour group members
- Will need exceptional levels of interpersonal and communication skills – given the length and nature of the contact they have with visitors
- Must monitor group dynamics more than other types of Tour Guides given the longer duration of tours and the greater potential for problems to arise.

Driver guide

These Tour Guides:

- May be any classification of Tour Guide as identified above – who combine their other Tour Guide duties with driving a vehicle
- Often need to hold a nominated type of driving licence as appropriate to the type of vehicle being driven – which may be:
 - A car or van with limited passenger capacity; A four-wheel drive vehicle – especially on adventure/remote area tours; A bus or coach
- May drive:
 - Vehicles on public roads; Conveyances within the boundaries of attractions – such as tractor-trains
- Will often need to have:
 - Specialist driving training; Nominated experience/ability with vehicle maintenance and repairs.

Class Activity – Guest Speakers

Trainer arranges for Tour Guides of the type identified on the slide to attend and talk about their role, functions and responsibilities.

Slide

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

All inclusive tour:

- Covers all 'inclusions'
- Types/form of inclusion will depend on Tour Operator and type of trip/destinations
- Inclusions commonly include:
 - Tickets/fares/travel
 - Meals and accommodation
 - Transfers and tips

Slide 16

Slide No	Trainer Notes
16.	Trainer leads discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: All-inclusive tour • An all-inclusive tour is (more or less) what the name implies ▪ It is a tour where all of the inclusions are included in the purchase price. All inclusive tours generally apply to coach and sea travel/cruises ▪ The exact nature of these inclusions will vary depending on the tour and, of course, they can also vary between providers/Tour Operators • Common inclusions are: ▪ Tickets/fares/travel; Transfers; Accommodation; Meals; Certain beverages – alcohol is usually not included; Side trips and sight-seeing; Listed activities – excursions, attractions, events, entertainment; On-site services/facilities – gymnasium, sports, spa, games; Tips/gratuities. Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses promotional materials from Tour Operators advertising the tour type identified on the slide.

Slide

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

Escorted tour:

- Led by a Tour Guide, Tour Director or Tour Leader
- Favoured by many as they feel safer in a group
- Tour Guide/Leader provides a wide variety of support services to all tour group members

Slide 17

Slide No	Trainer Notes
17.	Trainer continues leading discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: Escorted tour • An escorted tour is a group tour where the travel agent or organising agency provides a Tour Guide (or tour group leader or 'tour director') who escorts the tour group members for the duration of the tour • An escorted tour is distinct from a self-guided tour where the traveller makes their own arrangements and makes their own way • Escorted tours may be sea-based or land-based, and generally all inclusive • Many people prefer an escorted tour as they feel safer and believe they will have less problems and/or get more from the experience when in the presence of an experienced leader. • The tour leader will: ▪ Assist with boarding protocols when getting on a coach, ship, train or other transport ▪ Facilitate check-in at hotels and entry to attractions and other sites ▪ Help solve problems which may relate to customs, immigration, local laws and customs ▪ Provide advice and information in relation to the areas/sites visited

- Liaise as required with local officials, businesses and individuals
- Monitor the safety and security of the group and take appropriate action when needed
- Manage the tour group and address any interpersonal issues which may arise.

Class Activity – Handouts

Trainer distributes and discusses promotional materials from Tour Operators advertising the tour type identified on the slide.

Slide

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

Full independent tour:

- Tourist purchases package/deal
- Trip/tour is undertaken without a Tour Guide
- Gives tourist more flexibility and freedom to 'do their own thing'

Slide 18

Slide No	Trainer Notes
18.	Trainer continues leading discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: Fully independent tour • This is an unescorted tour • The client purchases a package deal/tour – called a Fully Independent Package – (which may include travel, accommodation, meals, admission to sites/attractions, car hire) from an agent or Tour Operator and then undertakes the trip on their own without a tour leader or Guide • This gives the customer the benefit of a planned tour but the flexibility/freedom to do (within the constraints of the itinerary) what they want, when they want. Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses promotional materials from Tour Operators advertising the tour type identified on the slide.

Slide

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

Group inclusive tour:

- Arranged for/bought by a group
- Includes nominated inclusions
- Attractive to groups because they are always 'cost effective' for them

Slide 19

Slide No	Trainer Notes
19.	Trainer continues leading discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: Group inclusive tour • A GIT is a tour arranged for, or bought by, a group from an agent or Tour Operator • All members of the group follow the same itinerary and have access to the same inclusions • It may be escorted or unescorted • It is 'inclusive' because it contains the traditional inclusions of travel, accommodation, meals, admissions, insurance, and transfers • GITs are attractive to groups because the purchase price is usually less than the sum of the elements comprising the package. Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses promotional materials from Tour Operators advertising the tour type identified on the slide.

Slide

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

Itinerary:

- Plan/schedule for a tour or trip identifying times, dates, destinations, travel and other relevant information of importance and interest to tourists
- Developed for every tour
- Used to promote the tour and provided to customers when they buy a ticket

Slide 20

Slide No	Trainer Notes
20.	Trainer continues leading discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: Itinerary • An itinerary is the plan for a trip • Itineraries are developed for travel by air, sea and road (coach trips and extended trips using other land-based options) • An itinerary is commonly provided for every trip and all travel sold, and provided to the client • It may list: ▪ Name and contact details of the organisation which has organised/sold the trip, tour or travel ○ Name of client ○ Dates and times – of travel (arrivals and departures) as well as trip time ○ Destinations ○ Activities ○ Modes of travel ○ Transportation details – such as name of vessel, flight number

	○ Accommodation arrangements – name of facility/hotel, room type, room number, dates ○ Terms and conditions – for carriers, accommodation and other service providers ○ Specific requirements relating to the travel/destinations – such as: ○ Visa requirements ○ Health issues ○ Time to arrive prior to departure ○ Customs and immigration requirements. • When the itinerary is provided the company may also supply additional promotional materials and/or merchandise such as: ▪ Travel bags ▪ Luggage tags ▪ Maps ▪ Fact/information sheets – about the carriers, destinations, specific topics which may be the focus of the type of trip/travel being undertaken Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses sample itineraries.

Seat in Coach:

- Also called 'Seat in Vehicle'
- Shows customer has purchased a ticket on the transportation and guarantees them a seat
- Actual seats may or may not be allocated

Slide 21

Slide No	Trainer Notes
21.	Trainer continues leading discussions on industry terms and their definition/interpretation: Seat in Coach • Also known as 'Seat in Vehicle' this term refers to tours where the customer has purchased a ticket (on a coach, or other vehicle) • This provides a much cheaper way of travelling (when compared to a private tour) • Seats may not be allocated and a 'first come, first served' basis may apply, making this a potential issue for couples, groups and families • The purchase of a ticket simply guarantees a seat • Such arrangements are popular/common for airport/cruise centre transfers and for short-distance sight-seeing trips.

- International groups/tours

Slide 22

Slide No	Trainer Notes
22.	Trainer advises: • Tour Guides may be required to lead: ▪ Domestic tour parties – local nationals who wish to participate in a tour experience ▪ International tour parties – who may be: ○ Structured groups engaging in an organised tour – which often are focused on a central theme or range of themes ○ FITs participating in random tours, trips or excursions – to suit their individual needs as represented by the type of tour they have chosen.

Tour groups may include/comprise:

- Package groups
- Public tour groups
- Students
- Families and friends

Slide 23

Slide No	Trainer Notes
23.	Trainer notes tour groups may be: • Package groups – who have purchased this tour as part of a bigger package, trip or travel arrangements ▪ These groups may or may not have a specific common interest. Often they are simply general-interest groups who share common demographic characteristics such as age, marital status, and/or country of origin. • Public tour groups – are groups comprising members of the general public ▪ They are commonly (but not always) characterised by: ○ Diversity of characteristics ○ Being free-of-charge ○ Operating on a first-come, first served basis – that is, often there is no reservation/booking facility ○ Relatively short duration. • Students – a growing market for tours is students ▪ Their tour is generally: ○ Arranged by the school they attend ○ Conducted to address specific curriculum-based topics ○ Required to include experiential learning activities

	○ Very time-oriented – there are usually strictly defined time parameters for arrival, activities, meals, departures ○ Restricted in terms of what the participants can be expected to spend during the tour – student groups historically spend markedly less (on food, merchandise and similar) than other groups. • Families and friends – many operators and destinations actively promote themselves to family groups declaring they are ‘family friendly’ ▪ These groups: ○ Expect facilities to support their family orientation – such as baby change facilities, children-friendly menus, games, rides, activities and staff ○ Tend to focus expectations and expressions of satisfaction on issues such as relaxation, group experiences, family interactions and time spent together ○ Will seek to purchase ‘family tickets’ – as opposed to single tickets.

Identify and differentiate between groups a Tour Guide may lead

- Clubs and associations
- Senior citizens
- Special interest groups

Slide 24

Slide No	Trainer Notes
24.	Trainer continues presenting tour group types: • Clubs and associations – many clubs and associations use tours as: ▪ Social outings ▪ Learning experiences. • These groups: ▪ Expect a dedicated Tour Guide – for their members while they are in attendance ▪ Generally arrive and depart as a group ▪ Commonly require meals, entertainment, activities and/or other nominated experiences as arranged with relevant Secretaries or other club/association representatives ▪ Often undertake tours to coincide with a special event or commemoration. • Senior citizens – as populations age there has been an increase in older people participating in tours ▪ These groups: ○ May have tours arranged by a club or association ○ Generally require more leisurely itinerary

	○ Tend to focus on observation and entertainment – rather than on activity and participation ○ Seek knowledge and interaction with others ○ Can have specialised dietary needs ○ May require transportation in situations where other groups are able/prepared to walk. • Special interest groups – there is really no limit to what groups may be interested in ▪ Indicative/representative interests can include: ○ Heritage; Adventure; Sport; Culture; Arts; Indigenous tourism; Nature; Eco-tourism.

Describe tour guiding principles

Tour guiding principles may flow from:

- Requirements imposed by employers
- Requirements of various 'Codes'
- Standard ethical business practices
- Experience and the passage of time

Slide 36

Slide No	Trainer Notes
36.	Trainer notes tour guiding principles are guidelines governing how Tour Guides operate and function stating these principles govern and control the thoughts, action and speech of Tour Guides in their day-to-day working life and highlighting tour guiding principles can exist in a number of ways: • They can be requirements imposed on Tour Guides by their employer – as part of the terms and conditions of employment with a Tour Operator • They may be requirements imposed by a governing body (a government agency or a peak industry body) in the form of a Code of Conduct or similar – designed to give tourists confidence in the services provided by Tour Operators who subscribe to the Code • They can flow from standard ethical business practices – which demand honesty, accountability and integrity from all organisations regardless of the type of business they operate • They have evolved over time – in response to issues and problems encountered, feedback from tour group members, market research, common sense and action taken by other businesses in other industry types and sectors. Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses Codes and related other documents which represent/provide guidance or direction in relation to tour guiding principles.

Slide

Describe tour guiding principles

Tour guiding principles:

- Need to ensure safety and security of tour and tour group members
- Need for care and respect

Slide 37

Slide No	Trainer Notes
37.	Trainer observes the following is indicative of what exists and provides a sound basis for the delivery of professional guiding services: Need to ensure the safety and security • This applies to: ▪ Tour group members ▪ Their property ▪ Assets of the employer ▪ Property owned by businesses/sites and people/communities visited.= • It also embraces need for: ▪ Risk management – including risk identification and assessment, and the implementation of risk control for tours ▪ Development of contingency plans – to address identified emergency conditions ▪ Training to enable safe and secure operation of tours ▪ Equipment, facilities and technology to support tour safety and security.

Need for care and respect

- Which needs to be demonstrated/shown towards:
 - The employer
 - The tour group members
 - The host country
 - The sites/destinations to be visited.

Slide

Describe tour guiding principles

- Need for appropriate skills and abilities
- Need for knowledge

Slide 38

Slide No	Trainer Notes
38.	Trainer continues identifying tour guiding principles: Need for appropriate skills and abilities • This highlights the need for Tour Guides to possess the necessary competencies to enable them to conduct/lead the tour/s for which they have responsibility • In general these can be expected to include: ▪ Unique skills relevant to the type of tour being guided – which may (for example) include ability to drive a bus, skills in cooking, language skills as well as abilities related specifically to the type/nature of the tour such as climbing skills, white water rafting skills, animal handling skills, motor bike riding skills ▪ Communication and interpersonal skills ▪ Negotiation and conflict resolution skills ▪ Planning, researching, organising and strategic thinking skills ▪ Risk and emergency management skills ▪ First aid skills and the ability to respond to accidents ▪ Ability to operate basic emergency equipment and communication systems ▪ Leadership and control skills.

Need for knowledge

- Every Tour Guide must have:
 - Comprehensive, accurate and current knowledge of:
 - The host country
 - All areas, businesses, attractions, sites, venues and destinations to be visited on tour
 - Local culture, customs, language, transport, currency, services, facilities, foods
 - The Tour Operator and the services/tours provided
 - Ability to source information as required – to address questions/issues where the information is not known.

Slide

Describe tour guiding principles

- Need to provide a positive and memorable tour
- Need for ethical conduct
- Need to cater for special needs of individuals and groups

Slide 39

Slide No	Trainer Notes
39.	Trainer continues identifying tour guiding principles: Need to provide a positive and memorable tour • This embraces requirements to: ▪ Make all tours interesting and engaging ▪ Provide a tour meeting identified needs of tour group members ▪ Give informative commentary ▪ Include interactive experiences ▪ Ensure all tour group members feel included/part of the tour. Need for ethical conduct • Which requires Tour Guides to: ▪ Act in the best interests of the tour group ▪ Disclose any personal interests, family connections or financial arrangements with sites, businesses or destinations visited on tour ▪ Be honest in all dealings and statements ▪ Never be intentionally misleading or deceitful ▪ Obey all rules, laws, regulations and company policies ▪ Not tout for tips/gratuities.

Need to cater for special needs individuals and groups

- This requires taking appropriate action to effectively accommodate:
 - Visitors with language barriers/difficulties
 - People with physical or mental disabilities
 - Those with limited mobility or other sensory acuity
 - Certain age groups – with a focus on the very young and the very old.

Describe tour guiding principles

Standard protocols for dealing with special needs:

- Recognise and show awareness of special needs
- Explain any arrangements made to cater for them
- Identify relevant facilities available

Slide 40

Slide No	Trainer Notes
40.	Trainer identifies standard protocols for dealing with special needs participants include: • Recognise their special need to indicate awareness of it – this means verbally acknowledging/mentioning the need and how this will impact things for the visitor/tour • Explain arrangements which have been made – to accommodate those needs (where applicable): this demonstrates requests made by the group have been received and actioned and/or willingness to be of service/be accommodating of special needs • Identify the facilities available – within the site/venue/area to meet those needs, and advising these will be pointed out, implemented as and when appropriate.

Slide

Describe tour guiding principles

- Empathise with them
- Be respectful
- Never raise false expectations or make unrealistic promises – ‘under promise and over deliver’
- Be prepared to ask for help/advice from others
- Apologise where special needs cannot be met

Slide 41

Slide No	Trainer Notes
41.	Trainer continues identifying standard protocols for dealing with special needs participants include: • Empathise with their situation – without being condescending, flippant or demeaning them in front of others in the group • Be respectful and never make special needs people think they are being done a favour by meeting their special needs – or that they have created ‘extra work’ • Never raise false expectations – in general terms: ▪ Follow internal policies and procedures – to the extent of individual scope of authority ▪ Tell them what can be done to meet their need – if anything: try/make an effort to accommodate their needs ▪ Never over-promise what can be done – they are better off knowing right from the start if their need cannot be met ▪ Contact management or another worker at the site/venue to determine if they can assist in meeting the special need ▪ Apologise where a special need cannot be accommodated.

Slide

Summary – Element 1

When describing the context for the delivery of guiding services:

- Identify the roles, functions and responsibilities of the Tour Guide as prescribed/required by the employer and tour group members
- Differentiate between types of tours and tour guides
- Determine the characteristics of and differences between the profiles of regular/common tour group members

Element 2 – Develop guiding skills and knowledge

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- Identify guide information sources and contacts
- Acquire and up-date industry skills and knowledge
- Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to provision of guiding services

Slide 44

Slide No	Trainer Notes
44.	Trainer identifies for trainees the Performance Criteria for this Element, as listed on the slide. Class Activity – General Discussion Trainer leads a general class discussion by asking questions such as: • What sources of information for a Tour Guide do you know of/have you used? • Who do you know who could help provide advice about Tour Guide skills and knowledge? • Why is it important for Tour Guides to have up-to-date knowledge and skills? • What legal requirements are you aware of in relation to delivery of guiding services? • What ethical requirements are you aware of in relation to delivery of guiding services? • What safety requirements are you aware of in relation to delivery of guiding services?

Slide

Identify guide information sources and contacts

Sources of guide information:

- Tour operators and wholesalers
- Venue/destination operators
- Industry Codes

Slide 45

Slide No	Trainer Notes
45.	Trainer presents sources of guide information: Tour Operators and wholesalers These are excellent sources of: • Sample tour and travel packages; Available tour options and inclusions; Schedules; Prices; Terms and conditions; Policies and procedures • Insight into: ▪ Customers, visitors and tour groups; Tourist needs, wants and preferences; Experiences with groups. Venue operators These provide excellent information in relation to: • Promotional and advertising brochures and flyers • Opening days and times • Entry fees • Attractions, displays and events • Facilities provided • Meals/refreshments available • Location and access • Booking provisions and ticketing.

	Industry Codes These provide details and insight into ethics and practices deemed necessary/acceptable for the industry. Slide

Identify guide information sources and contacts

- The internet
- Industry agencies, bodies and organisations

Slide 46

Slide No	Trainer Notes
46.	Trainer continues presenting sources of guide information: Internet The internet is an excellent information source but the following advice may be of use: • Never use the internet only for references/information – it is important to make direct contact with ‘real people’ • Travel and tourism blogs can be worthwhile sources for gauging general client thoughts about aspects of the industry – all manner of issues are discussed including agencies and their prices and service; reliability and credibility of providers; satisfaction with carriers, destinations and attractions plus a wide range of other topics • Create a ‘Travel’ folder under ‘Favourites’ and ‘Bookmark’ any site of interest – so useful sites can easily be re-visited • Be prepared to: ▪ Print relevant pages/information ▪ Follow links on pages to other sites ▪ Take notes from the pages visited ▪ Follow-up – take the time to (as appropriate): ▪ Register for free updates, e-magazines, reports ▪ Make personal contact with the organisation – to grow personal network of industry contacts.

Formal industry organisations

These can include:

- Professional Tour Guide bodies and peak industry associations
- Government and semi-government authorities
- Licensing agencies.

Slide

Identify guide information sources and contacts

- Literature
- Network of personal contacts

Slide 47

Slide No	Trainer Notes
47.	Trainer continues presenting sources of guide information: Literature Good sources of information are: • Guide books – such as Lonely Planet, Access, Fodor's, National Geographic, Frommer's; Newspaper and magazine articles; Local telephone books; History books; Reports; Travel and tour/promotional brochures. Network of personal contacts It is vital to develop an extensive network of personal contacts. Those in the network could include: • A selection of Tour Guides – from different employers and who conduct a variety of different tour types • Local Tour Operators and travel agents • Carriers • Venue operators • Government officials • People at local Tourist Information centres. It is important there is two-way communication with people in the network.

	Class Activity (1) – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses sample literature which can be used by Tour Guides for information. Class Activity (2) – Guest Speakers Trainer arranges for a group of local people who may be useful ‘personal contacts’ for the students to attend and talk about their special industry knowledge.

Slide

Acquire and update industry skills and knowledge

Activities/opportunities to acquire and update knowledge are:

- Readily available to everyone
- Relatively inexpensive to access/use

Slide 48

Slide No	Trainer Notes
48.	Trainer notes activities associated with acquiring and up-dating skills and knowledge are: • Readily available – there are many of them, easily accessible • Relatively inexpensive to use/access – most require an investment of time rather than large amounts of money.

Slide

Acquire and update industry skills and knowledge

Activities to acquire and update skills and knowledge:

- Attending industry events
- Partaking in some form of industry-based training or other formal training

Slide 49

Slide No	Trainer Notes
49.	Trainer presents examples of activities to acquire and update industry skills and knowledge: Attending industry seminars • These are advertised in the media, industry magazines and actively promoted through industry associations, websites, newsletters and direct mail • They may be held locally or elsewhere and often feature a wide array of ▪ Exhibitors ▪ Speakers ▪ Products and services • There may be a need to pay to attend or they may be free of charge – there is often a need to register interest or intention to attend to facilitate catering and other arrangements • They are an excellent opportunity for: ▪ Expanding personal networks ▪ Learning about new products, services, packages, initiatives, deals, providers and industry issues.

Partaking in industry and related training courses

- This training may be provided by:
 - Industry stakeholders such as carriers, providers, suppliers, key industry organisations, representative bodies and/or government organisations/authorities
 - Training institutions – both private and public
- These courses may:
 - Be free or fee-for-service
 - Result in formal or informal outcomes – formal outcomes provide recognised/accredited qualification/s and will be formally assessed
 - Conducted on-site in organisations – or at some other remote location such as a training facility, supplier warehouse or government building
 - Feature a mix of theory and practical training
- Inherent in this option is also the potential to arrange for objective evaluation and assessment of personal skill and knowledge levels to gain recognition/certification.

Class Activity – Excursion

Trainer takes students to a relevant industry event, exhibition, seminar, conference.

Slide

Acquire and update industry skills and knowledge

- Undertaking fam tours
- Joining a professional guiding association

Slide 50

Slide No	Trainer Notes
50.	Trainer continues presenting examples of activities to acquire and update industry skills and knowledge: Undertaking fam tours • These are commonplace within the industry • They are conducted/operated by: ▪ Industry attractions; Venues; Sites • They are provided: ▪ Free of charge; To industry personnel; In order to make industry personnel aware of ('familiar with') the destination so they will promote it/recommend it to visitors and tourists • They need to be arranged in advance for a mutually convenient time, usually by contacting the destination and making a request. Joining a professional guiding association • It is strongly recommended all Tour Guide join at least one recognised professional guiding association • The association may be: ▪ A local Chapter/Branch of a larger organisation ▪ A stand-alone local body

- Many Tour Guides belong to more than one such organisation
- In some cases, being a member of a guiding association may be a legislated requirement where the body oversees/administers Tourist Guides licences/permits.

Class Activity (1) – Excursion

Trainer arranges for students to undertake a fam tour of one or more local attractions, venues or destinations.

Class Activity (2) – Guest Speaker

Trainer arranges for representative from local professional guiding association to attend and talk about the benefits of being a member.

Slide

Acquire and update industry skills and knowledge

- Undertaking formal and informal research
- Practicing required skills

Slide 51

Slide No	Trainer Notes
51.	Trainer continues presenting examples of activities to acquire and update industry skills and knowledge: Undertaking formal and informal research • Formal research relates to: ▪ Reading relevant text books; Undertaking formal courses of study; Reading industry reports; ▪ Attending industry-based events • Informal research relates to: ▪ Talking to network of contacts; Reading general media articles; Speaking with tourists/visitors; ▪ Visiting destinations, sites and attractions. Practicing required skills This means implementing newly learned competencies so they become familiar and easy to perform. • It relates to the concepts of: ▪ Drill; Repetition ; Role plays; Practical exercises; Demonstrations • The practice may: ▪ Occur in an actual industry setting; Take place in a simulated environment; undertaken while acting as an assistant to another (or bona fide) tour guide.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

In regard to legal issues there is the potential for:

- 'Criminal' liability
- 'Civil' liability
- Both

Slide 52

Slide No	Trainer Notes
52.	Trainer advises in regard to legal issues there is a need to need to be aware of Criminal liability • Criminal liability refers to situations where a person is found 'guilty' of an offence • Guilt must be proved 'beyond reasonable doubt' • Action is taken against the person by the authorities • A guilty decision may result in: ▪ A fine ▪ Imprisonment ▪ Other outcomes such as business closure, licence/permit cancelation or suspension, legally-binding directive. Civil liability • Civil liability refers to situations where a person is found 'liable' in relation to an occurrence • 'Liability' only needs to be proven 'on the balance of probabilities' • Action is taken against the person by another person or a business for things such as: ▪ Protecting their personal interests

	▪ Failing to take reasonable care ▪ Breach of contract • Being found liable can result in: ▪ Damages being awarded against the person found liable ▪ An injunction being issues forcing them to do, or refrain from doing, certain thing/s. Combination of the two • In some situations the same event/occurrence can give rise to: ▪ Criminal charges ▪ Civil action.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

Tour Guides also need to be aware of:

- Duty of Care requirements under Common law
- Obligations imposed by advertising

Slide 53

Slide No	Trainer Notes
53.	Trainer further observes it is also important for Tour Guides to be aware of the following key legal issues: Duty of care • All Tour Guides are under a common law Duty of Care liability to take 'reasonable' care of the people they are leading/providing guiding services to ▪ In essence this means they must avoid causing 'foreseeable' harm to any tour group members • Failure to discharge this Duty of Care can result in being sued for negligence. Different types/levels of negligence exist: ▪ Contributory negligence ▪ Gross negligence ▪ Vicarious liability ▪ Comparative negligence • The various classifications of negligence help determine the penalty if found liable.

Advertising

- All Tour Operators and Tour Guides are under a legal obligation to ensure their advertising complies with standard 'fair trading' requirements. Advertising in this context refers to:
 - Printed materials, promotional brochures or statements made about tours, Tour Guides (ability, experience, skills, knowledge), destinations, products, services
 - Verbal statement made in relation to any of the above
- The basic requirement is all such claims must be truthful and honest – they must not be:
 - False
 - Misleading
 - Deceptive
- Breaching these requirements may give rise to criminal and civil action.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

- Breach of contract and the causes and possible consequences
- Need to comply with all applicable legislation

Slide 54

Slide No	Trainer Notes
54.	Trainer continues advising of legal issues which are important for Guides to be aware of: Breach of contract • A contract is a legally-binding agreement which imposes rights and obligations on all parties to it. Essentially the parties agree/promise to do something, or refrain from doing something, in return for something ('consideration'). There must be a formal 'offer' and 'acceptance' for a contract to exist ▪ When a visitor/tourist buys a ticket they enter into a contract with the Tour Operator ▪ They have paid money (their consideration) and the Tour Operator agrees/promises to provide an agreed tour with stated/advertised inclusions to nominated destinations subject to conditions, terms and warranties imposed by the business as part of the transaction ▪ Where the Tour Operator or Tour Guide fails to deliver the promises the aggrieved party can choose to take a civil action for breach of contract • In Court the tourist will need to provide evidence to support their claim and the system will determine if the action/inaction was a breach of a term, condition, warranty or guarantee and make a decision based on the evidence and the seriousness of the breach

	▪ Even though the Courts may not allocate large amounts in the way of 'damages' many of these civil cases attract media attention which is far more damaging to the operator than the amounts awarded by the Courts. Complying legislation • It is a standard procedure all Tour Guides comply with all relevant legislation. In practice this means they must identify and meet all requirements and regulations: ▪ Applicable specifically to Tour Guides – where such legislation exists ▪ Applicable in their host country ▪ Applicable in different countries they visit/lead tours to ▪ Applicable to all activities undertaken on tour • It is worth noting: ▪ Employers may be vicarious liable for the actions of their staff ▪ Employees do not have a legal defence if they commit an offence because their employer told them to break or ignore a law. Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses passages of relevant legislation Tour Guides are required to comply with.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

Standard ethical issues:

- Need to be truthful and honest
- Ensure products/services provided meet promises made
- Demonstrate respect
- Maintain principled relationships with stakeholders

Slide 55

Slide No	Trainer Notes
55.	Trainer observes standard ethical issues which impact on Tour Guides include the need to: • Be truthful and honest regarding information provided to customers, including a total ban on fabrication of information • Provide products and services in accordance with advertised itinerary and promises • Demonstrate respect for local communities, local culture, sites and the environment, including the objective of minimal impact tour guiding practices aimed at sustainable operations • Maintain principled relationships with key stakeholders. More on ethics is presented on later slides.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

Safety requirements will vary depending on:

- Type of tour being conducted
- Destinations, sites and venues visited
- Activities, events and inclusions
- Number in the tour group
- Composition and characteristics of the group
- Weather and local conditions

Slide 56

Slide No	Trainer Notes
56.	Trainer states specific safety requirements will vary depending on: • Tour type • Destinations visited • Activities being conducted • Size of the group • Composition and characteristics of the tour group • Weather and local environmental and other conditions.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

Safety requirements may include:

- Complying with legislated health, safety and welfare obligations
- Ensuring responsible behaviour of tour group
- Checking equipment, locations, facilities and environment
- Being able to implement required emergency/risk management protocols

Slide 57

Slide No	Trainer Notes
57.	Trainer notes examples of what may apply include: • Complying with occupational health, safety and welfare requirements – as they apply to individual tours and situations • Ensuring the responsible behaviour of customers – including: ▪ Controlling unacceptable behaviour ▪ Modifying unsafe behaviour • Checking equipment, locations, facilities and the environment – prior to engaging with or using same so there is full knowledge of applicable conditions/the environment • Practising implementation of prescribed emergency responses – to identified emergency situations.

Slide

Identify legal, ethical and safety requirements that apply to guiding

- Managing risk
- Removing dangerous items/activities from itinerary
- Abandoning tour where/when necessary
- Providing safety advice and instructions
- Participating in the development of new tours contributing previous safety-related advice gained from previous experience on-tour

Slide 58

Slide No	Trainer Notes
58.	Trainer continues giving examples of possible safety requirements: • Managing risk – including: ▪ Risk identification ▪ Risk assessment ▪ Risk control ▪ Explanation of potential hazards to others • Removing identified dangerous activities or undertakings from the itinerary – where necessary and (if possible) replacing them with an appropriate alternative • Abandoning the tour under conditions where the safety of customers cannot be guaranteed – and adhering to company policy regarding reimbursement of payment • Providing safety advice, directions and demonstrations to customers – including: ▪ Monitoring of the implementation of advice ▪ Provision of supplementary guidance as necessary • Actively participating in discussions regarding the development of new tours and itineraries and contributing personal experiences and lessons learned from previous tours. More on safety is presented on later slides.

Class Activity – General Discussion Trainer leads a general class discussion by asking questions such as: • What is involved in providing guiding services? • What experience have you had with providing guiding services?

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

Skills and knowledge required can be classified into:

- Pre-arrival activities
- Pre-departure checks
- During tour activities
- Post-departure activities

Slide 63

Slide No	Trainer Notes
63.	Trainer advises Tour Guide requirements can be classified into the following sections to assist with identifying and applying what is necessary: • Pre-arrival activities – concentrating on tasks to be completed before tour groups arrive for their tours • Pre-departure checks –featuring activities necessary to ensure safe and compliant operation of the tour in accordance with legal requirements and promotions • During tour activities – relating to all the duties required to lead the tour and conduct activities. Post-departure activities – focussing on administrative work required by the employer to finalise the departure of tours.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

Pre-arrival activity – Checking of arrival schedules to ensure:

- Hard copy information is obtained about tours/groups
- Knowledge about time and methods/ of arrival
- Knowledge about the group
- Understanding of issues to be clarified on their arrival
- Knowledge about agreed muster point

Slide 64

Slide No	Trainer Notes
64.	Trainer describes pre-arrival activities: Checking of arrival schedules To ensure: • Capturing hard copy information about tours and groups for the day/shift • Knowledge of times groups are arriving • Knowledge about composition of group • Knowledge about any issue/detail to be clarified and/or obtained in relation to the group/individual members of the group • Knowledge about how groups/members are arriving – public transport, private vehicle, shuttle bus • Knowledge about exactly where they will be arriving – booking office, departure lounge, outside on footpath/in car park ('muster point'). Class Activity – Handouts Trainer distributes and discusses sample arrival sheets/reservation documentation used to identify tours and bookings for the shift/day.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

Pre-arrival activity – Checking reservations done to gain knowledge of:

- Payments made and/or to be collected
- Special needs/requests and arrangements for addressing same
- Types of bookings made and what tour group members are entitled to
- Seats/tickets remaining available for promotion or sale

Slide 65

Slide No	Trainer Notes
65.	Trainer continues describing pre-arrival activities: Checking reservations To gain knowledge of: • Payments made and/or to be collected prior to departure • Special requests made by tour groups/members – and: ▪ Tour Operator responses to these ▪ Tour Guide commitments in this regard • Types of bookings which have been made – and how (if applicable) this impacts inclusions and/or tour guiding to be provided • Seats/tickets remaining available for sale – so action can be taken to promote and sell these.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

Pre-arrival activity – Verifying itinerary may involve:

- Checking items to be used by tour group members to participate in scheduled activities

Slide 68

Slide No	Trainer Notes
68.	Trainer continues describing pre-arrival activities: Testing items Which may require: • Testing communication items/devices: ▪ Microphones on PA systems; Megaphones; Walkie-talkies/two-way radios; Cell phones; Pagers; Portable PA systems; Laser light pointers; Personal audio facilities – these are more commonly used for self-guided tours but can be used for certain portions of a longer tour – for example, the headset and player unit may be distributed to tour group members when they are given 90 minutes to wander at their leisure through the museum part of a larger site; Audio-visual equipment – where it is to be used for presentations: ○ PowerPoint/data projectors and screen ○ Overhead projectors and screen ○ DVD players and monitor ○ Movie projectors and screen ▪ Computers – and internet connection where this will form part of the tour or a component of a presentation or tour activity

	• Testing/checking sporting equipment – as required for games and sporting activities to be played: ▪ Bats, racquets and balls ▪ Boats and cars (pedal cars, luge cars; motorised kiddies cars) ▪ Protective clothing and equipment • Checking items required to enable tour group members to participate in scheduled activities: ▪ Ingredients people are going to use ▪ Utensils and items of hand-held or powered equipment.

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

Pre-arrival activity – Preparing scripted commentary:

- A prepared talk and guide about the tour
- Does not need to cover everything which will/needs to be said
- There will always be a need for unscripted commentary to supplement the scripted commentary
- It takes a long time to write a good scripted commentary

Slide 69

Slide No	Trainer Notes
69.	Trainer continues describing pre-arrival activities: Preparing scripted commentaries • A scripted commentary is a prepared talk about an identified topic/topics of interest to a group of tour group members • The scripted commentary may be prepared by the agency and provided for use, or there may be a need to develop a scripted commentary for a certain tour, group and/to meet special requests/needs of a tour • A scripted commentary should be thought of as a guide about what needs to be said rather than a complete list of everything that needs to be said during a tour ▪ There will always be a need to provide some unscripted commentary to supplement whatever scripted commentary is prepared ○ Unscripted commentary refers to the situation where information is provided to the tour throughout the tour but reference is not made to a script when doing so • Writing a commentary takes time – it cannot be done on-the-spot and rarely on-the-day it is required. Writing a commentary can take weeks.

Slide

Activities involved in preparing a scripted commentary:

- Research the tour
- Check the advertising/promises made
- Know/learn the route
- Involve/get input from others

Slide 70

Slide No	Trainer Notes
70.	Trainer presents activities involved in preparing a scripted commentary: • Research the tour – knowledge is a critical underpinning element of every effective and engaging commentary: ▪ Research is required about what the visitors want, need and/or prefer to hear about ▪ Research is essential about the site/location/venue where the tour will be delivered to obtain statistics (people just love figures as part of a commentary – height of things, number of things, weight of things, speed of things, temperatures, size/dimensions), history, details about the facilities, interesting facts about the area or venue, names of owners ... and, of course, loads of facts/details about anything which is the main focus of the tour. For example: ○ If preparing a commentary for a zoo it is vital to know all there is to know about the animals, their habitat and their feeding habits ○ If preparing a script for an historical tour it is critical to know important dates, events, people, and sites • Check the advertising undertaken by the tour company, the site or the venue to identify topics promoted to visitors – and then ensure these are covered by the commentary in order to meet expectations and advertised promises

|--|--|
| | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Know the route – the commentary will/should describe and provide information about the venue/site in general but (more so) on what is visible on the tour itself. This means a need to cover in some detail all buildings, natural and built attractions, events as the tour sees them/passes them<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ There is no need to cover – or cover in far less detail – buildings and similar not viewed or visited as part of the tour however there still remains a need to have knowledge about them.• Involve others – the scripting process should involve others to:<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ Contribute ideas▪ Provide information, facts and figures▪ Bounce ideas off▪ Practice on. |

- Experience some other Tour Guides delivering scripted commentaries
- Avoid personal opinions
- Avoid inappropriate language
- Prepare a draft
- Trial/practice the draft by reading it out aloud

Slide 71

Slide No	Trainer Notes
71.	Trainer continues presenting activities involved in preparing a scripted commentary: • Experience some other commentaries – before starting to develop the commentary to learn from: ▪ What they do/say ▪ How they do and say it ▪ When they do and say things ▪ The amount of commentary they provide • Avoid personal opinions, thoughts, beliefs and prejudices – a commentary is not the place to air personal views • Avoid inappropriate language – such as: ▪ Swearing/bad language ▪ Racist terms ▪ Gender bias • Prepare a draft – and then revise it time and time again until it has been polished to the required standard

- | | |
|--|--|
| | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• ‘Speak’ the commentary when trialling it – it must be spoken aloud to get a proper feel of it. Simply reading it in the mind will not do it.<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ Read it out loud to others for their feedback/comment.▪ Record it and listen to it and self-critique. |

- Write from the visitor's perspective
- Use simple/plain language
- Reflect the nature of the tour

Slide 72

Slide No	Trainer Notes
72.	Trainer continues presenting activities involved in preparing a scripted commentary: • Write the script from the guest/visitor perspective – for example if at the front of a bus or tractor train and facing backwards towards the visitors, the landmarks must be identified from their viewpoint ▪ For example, do not say “On my right is a fine example of ...”, instead say ‘On your left’ • Use simple, plain language – this is not to infer a need to be condescending but highlights the need to keep things simple and easy to understand ▪ Use simple sentences, not long ones and use simple words and not complex ones ▪ The easier a commentary is for people to understand, the more they will enjoy it, the more they will learn from it, the more they will engage with the tour and the more satisfaction they will get from the tour • Reflect the nature of the tour – for example a tour focussing on nature may be expansive and emphasise grandeur and awesome natural spectacle. A tour of prison, museum or war-related tour would take a vastly different approach and be more restrained, respectful and serious. Class Activity – Excursion Trainer arranges an excursion where students can hear a Tour Guide present a scripted commentary.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

- Revise draft on basis of feedback and trials – be prepared to revise the revised draft
- Practice final commentary prior to actual delivery – to gain confidence and familiarity with it

Slide 73

Slide No	Trainer Notes
73.	Trainer continues presenting activities involved in preparing a scripted commentary: • Revise the scripted commentary – as required when things change to keep it current • Practice the commentary before using/delivering it – which means: ▪ Reading it out aloud several times – not just once: five is a minimum ▪ Reading it in situ – this means walking/driving the tour route and commenting to align with points of interest and items mentioned in the commentary ▪ Bringing the standard commentary to life with personal anecdotes or knowledge as appropriate to the venue, topics or interests of the group. Class Activity – Individual Exercise Trainer asks students to prepare a scripted commentary to accompany an agreed tour.

- A verbal welcome and a smile
- Self-introduction
- Thanks for coming
- Introducing relevant others
- Establishing rapport

Slide 79

Slide No	Trainer Notes
79.	Trainer describes during-tour activities: Greeting tour group/tour group members Which requires: • Being there – it is important to be there before the advertised/promised starting time and before tourists arrive to demonstrate preparedness for their arrival • A verbal welcome – to the group and individuals • Introducing self – and role • Thanking them – for arriving/taking the tour • Smiling – the universal language • Making necessary introductions – to other tour group members and to other staff Tour Guides who will be on tour • Establishing a rapport with the group/individuals. Class Activity – Demonstration and Practical Trainer demonstrates greeting of tour group members and provides opportunity for students to do same.

During-tour activities –
Confirming tour details can embrace:

- Providing itinerary
- Distributing materials/resources
- Including a Q&A session
- Mentioning hazards and safety issues/requirements
- Explaining tour group management protocols

Slide 80

Slide No	Trainer Notes
80.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Confirming tour details Which can embrace need to: • Verbally provide itinerary details – highlighting points of interest and special events and arrangements • Distribute materials – such as name tags, itineraries, tickets, vouchers, handouts, tour materials • Include a Q & A session – so participants have an opportunity to clarify issues, ease anxiety and obtain answers to their pressing questions/concerns • Mention potential hazards – and identify safety protocols and emergency measures which have been established • Explain tour group management protocols to ensure safety of all and no-one is separated from group or 'lost' on tour – covering: ▪ Muster points ▪ Need for everyone to check on others ▪ Use of head counts ▪ Provision of cell phone number for Tour Guide, driver, Tour Operator for people to use in emergency.

Slide

During-tour activities –
Commencing the tour can embrace:

- Doing a head count
- Leading tour group members to vehicle/transport
- Explaining on-board facilities
- Starting the tour 'on time'

Slide 81

Slide No	Trainer Notes
81.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Commencing the tour Which can embrace need to: • Do a head count for the tour group – to identify/confirm 'pax' • Lead tour group members to vehicle/bus – and assist with boarding • Explain facilities on board – and any relevant 'rules' relating to the transport • Start the tour on time – so it runs according to schedule: this is important: ▪ Because destinations, sites and attractions are expecting the tour at set times ▪ As tour group members may have made other arrangements based on the advertised finishing time of the tour ▪ So the next tour can start on time.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

During-tour activities –
Continuing relationship building
and interactions with tour group
members can embrace:

- Extending/building on previous conversations
- Asking questions
- Using 'ice breakers'

Slide 82

Slide No	Trainer Notes
82.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Continue relationship building and interactions with tour group members Techniques to build rapport with participants may include: • Extending/building on conversations when people were initially greeted– such as: ▪ Remembering and using the person's name ▪ Mentioning something talked about as part of the previous contact ▪ Checking to ensure something they queries earlier has been resolved to their satisfaction • Asking participants questions – about topics such as: ▪ Their country of origin ▪ Personal interests and specific interests for this tour ▪ Their reasons for being on tour ▪ Their previous experiences and tours

- Using icebreakers – these are quick exercises which can be used to ‘break the ice’ and introduce tour group members to each other. They are really only suitable where:
 - The participants do not already know each other – if the group members already know each other than ice-breakers are often not appreciated and many resent having to participate in them
 - There is sufficient time to conduct them – they can be quite time consuming
 - A suitable, comfortable location exists to do them – standing in the heat is not a good location.

Class Activity (1) – Internet Research

Trainer facilitates student research of and discussion regarding content of following and other similar/relevant websites:

- Using anecdotes
- Using humour
- Checking on people's welfare
- Applying appropriate interpersonal and communication skills
- Involving tour group members in what is happening

Slide 83

Slide No	Trainer Notes
83.	Trainer continues describing relationship building during-tour activities: • Using anecdotes when interacting with participants – these are short stories relevant to the site, location or up-coming tour and are used as they add interest and provide insight into the experience • Using humour when talking with people – most tours contain an element of fun and the use of appropriate humour at appropriate times can set the scene for fun and actually impart fun and enjoyment before the tour starts • Checking on people's welfare – by asking if they need anything, verifying they are OK and prepared, and helping them solve their problems • Applying suitable interpersonal and communication skills at every opportunity/exchange – such as: ▪ Smiling; Eye contact; Demonstrating interest; Responding to questions; Clarifying information • Involving them in what is happening – this can include: ▪ Telling them what is about to happen; Giving them something to do – this may even extend to giving them a simple task to assist (depending on nature of tour and organisational policies); ▪ Giving them something to look at/read.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

During-tour activities – Providing commentary can include:

- Ensuring visibility to best extent possible
- Facing the group
- Speaking loudly enough or using PA
- Being enthusiastic

Slide 84

Slide No	Trainer Notes
84.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Providing commentary Basic communication strategies which can/should be used to deliver commentaries may include: • Ensuring visibility to all tour group members – it is preferable if all people on the tour can also read/see lips but at a minimum they should at least be able to see the person speaking to some extent • Facing the group – to the greatest extent possible • Speaking loudly enough for everyone to hear – or using technology to help project the voice • Remaining enthusiastic and appropriate for the tour content – and as appropriate to the nature/profile of the tour group members: some tours/topics require a sombre approach and others a lively and engaging demeanour.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

- Timing delivery properly according to travel and destinations/attractions
- Focussing attention on everyone in the group
- Communicating at a level/in a way so commentary will be understood by everyone

Slide 85

Slide No	Trainer Notes
85.	Trainer continues describing providing commentary during-tour activities: • Beginning the verbal commentary sufficiently in advance of a scheduled tour stop so participants have time to focus on whatever is the focus of the commentary ▪ Alternatively a decision may be taken to arrive at the stop, and then deliver all the commentary at this point • Focussing attention on entire group – the commentary must be directed at, and embrace, all the tour group members ▪ Never fall for the common traps of: ○ Talking only to those who are closest ○ Directing commentary at those in the immediate line-of-sight ○ Commentating only to one or two 'special' group members ○ Focussing on a certain person, age group, nationality or gender • Communicating at level that will be understood by the audience considering their age, education, language, culture and special needs – this frequently means: ▪ Keeping things simple ▪ Using hand gestures to accompany verbal communication ▪ Using appropriate words, terms and phrases ▪ Highlighting points identified as being of interest to the group.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

- Seeking feedback from the tour group
- Encouraging questions
- Making the commentary 'unique'
- Knowing when to be quiet
- Adjusting commentary as required

Slide 86

Slide No	Trainer Notes
86.	Trainer continues describing providing commentary during-tour activities: • Seeking feedback from the group throughout the commentary: ▪ Can they hear/see? ▪ Anything else they want to know? ▪ Do they want a break/rest? • Encouraging questions – and responding to them in a way which demonstrates questions really are encouraged and appreciated • Making the commentary a 'unique' event – avoid allowing commentaries to: ▪ Become boring and lifeless ▪ Sound rote and mechanised/robotic ▪ Adding comments which include new information and target the interests of the group • Knowing when to be quiet – many people who deliver tours seem to think their job is to talk 'all the time' and this is definitely not the case/requirement. It is important to keep quiet to allow participants to: ▪ Have a break from being talked at/to ▪ Experience the tour in relative peace and quiet ▪ Enjoy the experience on their own

	• Adjusting the commentary as required – to accommodate: ▪ Identified interest of the group ▪ Emerging events.

During-tour activities – Using correct protocols when using communication equipment:

- Keeping communication lines open/free
- Using designated channels
- Using established protocols
- Knowing emergency transmission words
- Checking-in as required

Slide 87

Slide No	Trainer Notes
87.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Using correct protocols when using communication equipment on tour It is common for the following to be standard procedures regarding the use of radios and communication when leading a tour group: • Keeping communication lines clear unless addressing urgent issues • Using designated channels for communication • Using established protocols for: ▪ Responding to a transmission ▪ Sending a transmission ▪ Spelling out a name – using the phonetic alphabet (see following slides) • Knowing emergency transmission words that will give the message priority – ‘Urgent’, or ‘No duff’ • Checking-in as required - at designated times, after completion of designated activities/events, when arriving at a designated location. Class Activity – Demonstration and Practical Trainer demonstrates how to use an assortment of communication equipment and gives students an opportunity to do same.

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

- Using 'go ahead' to indicate readiness to receive
- Identifying self when sending
- Using appropriate language
- Not mentioning 'sensitive' issues

Slide 88

Slide No	Trainer Notes
88.	Trainer continues describing communication protocols as part of during-tour activities: • Ensuring transmissions do not talk over other transmissions • Using 'over' at the end of each sent transmission • Using 'go ahead' to indicate readiness to receive • Identifying self clearly at the start of any transmission sequence – 'Control, this is Lily, over' • Refraining from swearing or bad language when communicating • Not mentioning matters 'over the air' which are sensitive in nature or which could cause panic if heard by a third party. Class Activity – Handout and Exercise Trainer distributes copy of Phonetic alphabet (as contained in Trainee Manual) and asks students to practice by: • Spelling out their name and date of birth using the Phonetic alphabet • Spelling out the name of their home town and country.

Slide

During-tour activities – Using appropriate communication techniques:

- Repeating aspects of commentary as/if/when required
- Paraphrasing
- Speaking at a variety of paces
- Pointing and using hand gestures
- Involving the group

Slide 89

Slide No	Trainer Notes
89.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Using appropriate communication techniques In relation to delivering a commentary the following are useful communication techniques: • Repeating parts of the commentary – to give those who did not hear the opportunity to listen to what was said • Paraphrasing when there is a lack of understanding – this means repeating what was originally said but using different terms/words • Speaking at a different pace – to match the requirements of the participants and/or their stated needs • Using plenty of pointing and hand gestures – to indicate what is being commented on and to provide guidance and direction • Involving the group – ask them questions; seek their feedback; talk about their feelings and what they are experiencing. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

- Addressing emotional barriers/issues

Slide 90

Slide No	Trainer Notes
90.	Trainer continues describing communication techniques for use as part of during-tour activities: • Being constantly alert to barriers to communications – and proactively seek to avoid or address them: common barriers are noise and line-of-sight obstacles • Checking for understanding of what was said – options include: ▪ Asking “Did everyone/you understand?” ▪ Being alert to quizzical expressions and looks of bewilderment ▪ Listing for comments from participants “What did he say?” • Increasing the volume of public address and communication technologies – where there is extra noise, the group is larger than normal or they say they are having trouble hearing • Using extra staff – to assist with delivering the commentary to a bigger than normal group • Addressing emotional barriers (distress, pain, intra-group conflict, conflicting personalities) before continuing with commentary. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

Slide No	Trainer Notes
91.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Conducting hands-on activities For a hands-on activity for the group, points to note are: • Understand all there is to know about the activity – and have some degree of mastery so a useful demonstration can be conducted ▪ All activities should have been trialled before tour group members are exposed to them • Double-check to ensure management have approved the activity for use – sight the signed approval documentation • Ensure a check is made before the group arrives that any staff involved in the activity are present and ready to help/participate • Deliver the preceding parts of the tour so group arrives at the activity site at the time agreed/arranged with support staff.

- Be ready to 'stop' the activity if necessary
- Check suitability of people to participate

Slide 93

Slide No	Trainer Notes
93.	Trainer continues describing conducting hands-on activities as part of during-tour activities: • Provide a demonstration – show people how to undertake the activity – give them tips and 'inside knowledge'/hints about how to succeed, score, achieve the required outcome ▪ People should leave all activities feeling good about themselves, not feeling they are a 'loser' or incompetent • Only allow the activity to occur in accordance with pre-prepared guidelines and within established parameters – this highlights the need to monitor and supervise all visitor action/attempts and provide assistance or corrective advice where needed • Always be ready to stop the activity – or intervene – if it is believed someone is in danger or a dangerous situation has arisen • Check the suitability of people to participate – it is a fact of life some tour group members will not be able to undertake some activities due to health or age reasons. ▪ Be tactful when needing to exclude someone from an activity and try to have a substitute available.

Slide

Slide 94

Slide No	Trainer Notes
94.	Trainer continues describing conducting hands-on activities as part of during-tour activities: • Limit participation to established 'maximum numbers' only – where necessary restrict/control the number of tour group members who can participate at any one time • Help people as necessary – be proactive but realise many people like to find their own way thorough new challenges and work things out for themselves: never impose help or force people to accept it • Encourage people as they participate – and recognise competency and effort • Keep track of time – notify people of the up-coming end of the activity so the conclusion of the activity does not come unannounced: finish the activity on time so the tour can resume on time according to the itinerary/schedule • Congratulate participants – and share their excitement and experiences. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

Slide 97

Slide No	Trainer Notes
97.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Maintaining tour group member interest Options for maintaining interest of people on a tour include: • Demonstrating personal passion – see following slides • Tailoring information to the identified needs of the group – while the prepared commentary will/should have done this, it is also essential to do this with 'issues arising' throughout the tour such as: ▪ In response to questions; When unexpected events and sights arise • Using a prop kit – for activities and points of interest to add action, excitement, interest and flavour. ▪ Always consider including props which can be given to, and used by, tour group participants as a way of involving and including them • Using variety of approaches – this means 'mixing it up' when providing the commentary through the use of: ▪ Humour; Statistics; Questions; Personal anecdotes and experiences • Highlighting unexpected occurrences and including them in the commentary – and integrating them into the prepared commentary

- Interacting with tour group members – through personal exchanges and questions, sharing experiences and feelings: many complaints about a tour guide relate to their failure to mix with people, talk to/with them, and/or to demonstrate engagement with them

Class Activity – Demonstration/s

Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

Slide

Slide 98

Slide No	Trainer Notes
98.	Trainer continues describing maintaining interest as part of during-tour activities: • Improvising the commentary – by incorporating topics of current interest to the group as identified through interaction with them ▪ This highlights the need to develop the ability to ‘think on your feet’ and adjust commentaries ‘on the fly’ to accommodate issues and preferences arising during the tour • Striving to deliver excellent service at all times regardless of the problems or situations which present themselves – this involves: ▪ Turning negative circumstances into positive demonstrations of good service, wherever possible ▪ Asking people to do things, rather than telling them ▪ Smiling ▪ Treating tour group members as individuals and not as a ‘herd’ ▪ Responding to requests where possible – and explaining why not when requests cannot be met ▪ Being polite and courteous ▪ Keeping promises made about the tour – such as the route, activities, inclusions and duration

	▪ Providing relevant, accurate, timely and informative commentary and comments ▪ Keeping tour group members informed about the need to change planned/schedules activities – explaining the reasons why and (where possible) substituting a suitable alternative • Demonstrating interest in tour group members – and their past, current and future experiences: where they have been, what they are doing now and where they are going and what they will be doing tomorrow/next week. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

99.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Accommodating needs and wishes of the group Considering the needs and wishes of participants may include allowing for: • Quiet time – to allow people time to relax and savour a view or experience • Free time – for tour group members to do their own thing: most tour group members will want some time to do what they want as opposed to doing what has been organised for them • A time for people to chat – this may involve chatting amongst themselves, chatting with other people they meet on the tour (locals, shop keepers, other venue staff) or chatting with their Tour Guide • Personal enjoyment of site – this is time enabling tour group members to enjoy the tour as best suits them, rather than as imposed by the tour schedule/itinerary ▪ Some people will prefer a passive orientation where they simply watch and listen while other will want a more active approach where they want to interact with people and activities • Tour group members to have a rest – it is important to monitor the group regarding rest breaks and vital to understand the Tour Guide's level of fitness does not dictate the requirements participants have to rest and recuperate.

Slide No	Trainer Notes
100.	Trainer continues addressing accommodating needs and wishes of group as part of during-tour activities: • Photo opportunities – always be alert to the need for people to take photographs to record their experience. Many of these 'photo opportunities' are predictable and will remain the same for every tour but there are always unique moments which can arise where people wish to capture the moment. Not being able to take photographs to suit individual need is a major source of complaint/dissatisfaction so be aware of the need to facilitate this. Be prepared, for example to: ▪ Allow extra time where everyone is taking photographs – if there is a need to save time to keep the tour on schedule try to save it somewhere else and not at the expense of restricting photos taken by the group ▪ Offer to take photographs for individuals – so they can be 'in the photo' ▪ Be part of the photo – many people will want their Tour Guide to be part of their photograph ▪ Assist with the photo – be holding bags and other items • 'Up close and personal' opportunities – tour group members expect many things of those who deliver tours and one of their main expectations is the presence of a Tour Guide will gain them access to things which are not available to people who are not on a tour. This means they may request: ▪ A meeting with other staff/people at the site or venue

	▪ Access to areas which are 'off limits' to other people/those who are not part of a tour ▪ Introductions to and/or more contact (effectively, more time) with people/other staff who are available – so they can talk more with the, ask them questions and/or watch them at work ▪ Special photo opportunities with (for example) animals, characters or unique sights • Preferential treatment – this often relates to 'small things' but things which are important to the tour group members, such as: ▪ Being served first when meals are taken – as opposed to having to queue in line with the general public ▪ Being able to sit together for meals/refreshments – as opposed to having to take whatever seats are available ▪ Being given the 'best' seats' when dining – seats with the best view, least disruption by pedestrian traffic ▪ Going to the front of lines/queues for rides, activities, displays, events etc ▪ Being loaded first onto transport so they can 'sit with each other' and get the 'best seats'.

During-tour activities – Counting participants techniques:

- Confirm starting numbers
- Update manifest if customers elect to leave the tour
- Do regular head counts at designated times/points
- Physically count people

Slide 101

Slide No	Trainer Notes
101.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Counting participants Techniques to assist with counting tour group members include: • Being certain of the starting number when the tour departed – as this is the reference point for the checks • Updating records (manifests, passenger list) if a person notifies they are electing to quit the tour – tour group members usually have the right to leave a tour whenever they want to. The fact they have started the tour does not compel or obligate them to finish it • Doing a physical head count of participants when the group arrives at a pre-determined head count point – this can involve: ○ Physically counting people as they stand or sit. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

102.	Trainer continues describing counting participants as part of during-tour activities: • Asking people to respond to a roll call using the manifest or passenger list as the basis • Standing by the entry door of a vehicle and checking people as they re-board after a visiting/viewing experience – and ticking them off against the manifest • Counting the number of seats filled on the bus when people have re-boarded – 45 participants should equate to 45 seats filled • Asking tour group members a question “Is everyone here? Can you please check to see we are all here.” – this: ▪ Is an extremely effective approach ▪ Should be accompanied by a supplementary check • Always recording the count to demonstrate ‘due diligence’ – recording: ▪ Pax ▪ Time ▪ Location. Class Activity – Demonstration/s Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide.

Slide 103

Slide No	Trainer Notes
103.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Implementing company policies when tour group members are unaccounted for Company policies will commonly require action covering several of the following points: • Halt the tour • Conduct a re-count • Identify number of people missing and names of same • Notify management, head office, site supervisor, the control room or security staff – and advise of the situation identifying: ▪ Number/s missing ▪ Names of those missing ▪ Location ▪ Time missing person was identified ▪ Checks to-date to confirm absence of person/s.

104.	Trainer continues describing implementation protocols in response to missing person as part of during-tour activities: • Request other tour group members not to move/move away – this is to: ▪ Ensure a bad situation does not get worse by having more people wander off/go missing ▪ Allow access to them so they may be questioned ▪ Where necessary distribute drinks/refreshments – always try to make the sure people as comfortable as possible • Conduct a brief search of the immediate area – call out to the missing person/use megaphone: do not involve other tour group members in the search • Take charge of the situation– show confidence and demonstrate action to retrieve/resolve the situation • Ask other participants if they know where missing person is – ask the group using PA and/or move among group asking people face-to-face ▪ A general question to the group can be effective “Does anyone know where David is?”, or “When was the last time anyone saw Cindy?”

Slide

Demonstrate the skills and knowledge necessary to guide tours

- Confirm group numbers
- Confirm receipts
- Do not allow other tour members to look for the missing person
- Prepare known details of missing person to assist others/authorities in their efforts to search

Slide 105

Slide No	Trainer Notes
105.	Trainer continues describing implementation protocols in response to missing person as part of during-tour activities: • Confirm tour group numbers with group leader – this is really a double-check to make sure the initial count of the group was not incorrect ▪ It is always wise to verify a belief someone is missing is supported by others • Confirm tour receipts with participants – to clarify those who are still with the tour – this, too, is a double-check to identify who is missing • Do not allow other tour group members to go looking for the missing person/s ▪ This risks losing more members and may place them at risk. It is the job of the Tour Operator or leader to conduct and/or arrange search and recovery activities • Prepare details of the missing person/s for hand-over to other staff and/or the authorities – this may include: ▪ Details from the manifest ▪ Photo ID ▪ CCTV footage of group arriving at main departure point – where applicable ▪ Details about the person obtained from the group leader and/or other tour group members (such as those who were sitting next to them; those who shared activities with them; people who were in the same boat/car when they went on a ride) – for example, medical needs/conditions,

- Ensure all identified issues are addressed
- Treat people with respect
- Stay calm

Slide 106

Slide No	Trainer Notes
106.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Handling problems with tour group members Tips include: • Realise no problem will ever resolve itself – problems require action to fix/address them ▪ Take responsibility for taking action – it is part of the job to do so • All identified issues must be addressed – never simply ignore a problem ▪ If appropriate/possible, look for ‘safety angle’ on which to focus the conversation to be had with those creating/causing a problem or issue ▪ People are more likely to listen and comply if it can be demonstrated they need to alter what they are doing because it is unsafe or poses a risk to others • Treat people with respect – talk politely with them allow them their dignity ▪ Aim to make the other person feel special, not to feel victimised ▪ Talk with people who need to be spoken to away from others in order to respect their right not to be embarrassed or challenged in front of others

- Try to stay calm – when a need to intervene and say something to a participant arises.
 - ‘Act’ but do not ‘over-react’
 - Avoid using a loud voice and try to speak so the conversation is private, and so the participant/s do not feel as if they are being reprimanded in front of the rest of the group and being made to look silly or ‘small’

Slide 107

Slide No	Trainer Notes
107.	Trainer continues describing ways to handle problems with tour group members as part of during-tour activities: • Phrase what is said so it is not a personal 'attack' on the other person – for example, instead of saying "You must not do that", re-phrase the statement to "We prefer such action does not take place while here/on tour/in this location" • Try phrasing statements asking people to modify their behaviour as 'requests' rather than 'commands' ▪ Give reasons why the request is being made ▪ There is big difference between 'Stop doing that' and "Could I please ask you not to do that because it scares the animals?" • Look through the eyes of the tour group member and try to see things from their perspective ▪ For example, consider saying "I can see you are tired and I know we have walked quite a long way and it is hot, but I need you to know it is not acceptable for the safety of others for you to wander off on your own to have a rest". Class Activity – Demonstration/s and Role Play Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide and provides opportunity for students to do same.

- Explain how they are impacting others

Slide 108

Slide No	Trainer Notes
108.	Trainer continues describing during-tour activities: Dealing with problems between group members • Ask the two parties to come to one side and talk – it is important everything said when addressing issues involving two parties is spoken in front of both parties so there can be no suspicion/question over what is said • Where the tour is long one, attention should be paid to trying to resolve the root cause of the issue – where the tour is a short one, attention should focus on developing a solution to effectively address the problem until the tour has finished • Ask the parties what the problem is – this allows insight and also allows the parties to get things off their chest • Explain how their behaviour is adversely impacting the enjoyment of other tour group members. Class Activity – Demonstration/s and Role Play Trainer demonstrates application of relevant points as identified on the slide and provides opportunity for students to do same.

Tour Operators and/or Tour Guides may break the law if they:

- Misrepresent tour activities, accommodation and other services and inclusions
- Give negligent or inappropriate advice
- Provide unqualified or inappropriate staff or unsuitable suppliers
- Are negligent in their selection of supplier
- Do not provide for the care, wellbeing, comfort and safety of each individual

Slide 117

It is important to know relevant 'terms and conditions' – as they apply to matters such as:

- Deposits and balance conditions
- Cancellations and amendments/refunds
- Pricing policies
- Exclusions and inclusions
- Changes to planned/bought itinerary
- Personal and property loss/damage

Slide 119

Slide No	Trainer Notes
119.	Trainer states for the employer/Tour Operator they are working for the Tour Guide must learn, understand and ensure they operate in compliance with all 'Terms and Conditions' that apply and have been provided to tour group members for their tour, in relation to: • Deposit and balance conditions • Cancellation and amendment condition charges • Pricing policies – as linked to transport costs and/or currency fluctuations • Exclusions and Inclusions • Itinerary changes • Personal and Property loss/injury/damage. Class Activity – handouts • Trainer distributes and discusses sample 'terms and conditions' for local tour operator highlighting areas students must know about as a Tour Guide.

In addition to previous advice tour group members may also sue if:

- There is non-compliance with any terms and conditions
- Tour leader/guide does not adhere to itinerary
- There is late provision of a service
- They receive inferior service
- A stated inclusion is cancelled

Slide 120

Slide No	Trainer Notes
120.	Trainer highlights it is possible tour group members/clients may also commence legal action if any of the following situations occur: • Non-compliance with stated terms and conditions – as laid down by the Tour Operator in their promotional materials • A tour leader/guide not adhering to the planned itinerary – as is their responsibility: that is, subject to unavoidable events (weather, closure of attractions, traffic accidents) • Late provision of service – or late arrivals at destinations • Inferior and/or cancelled service – when compared to itinerary/advertised tour/s.

- Study and implement all checking procedures
- Learn, practice and be able to implement all contingency plans
- Learn, practice and be able to implement all emergency plans

Slide 122

Slide No	Trainer Notes
122.	Trainer stresses not only must Tour Guides learn the SOPs for a Tour Operator but they must also: • Study and implement all checking procedures as required by the business • Learn, practice and be able to implement all contingency plans – to address situations where planned itinerary, routes, activities and similar cannot be followed • Learn, practice and be able to implement all emergency plans – to address identified emergency events which might occur on tour. Trainer continues to remind students: • Being a Tour Guide requires: ▪ A 'cool head' – in order to deal with the many problems, issues, challenges and issues which can arise in relation to tour and tour group members ▪ Good communication and people management skills – to provide information required, facilitate interactions, resolve problems, negotiate solutions, solve problems and deal with issues ▪ Loads of patience – because of the nature of constantly interacting and communicating with others.

Slide

Optimise respect for local culture

Being a 'cultural host' is important because it:

- Help visitors 'connect'
- Guards against 'culture shock'
- Assists visitors assimilate

Slide 127

Slide No	Trainer Notes
127.	Trainer explains being a cultural host is a major role of Tour Guide and is important because it: • Helps visitors make a connection with the locals and the local culture and local people/communities • Guards against and explains things which may cause 'culture shock' to some tourists • Assists visitors assimilate into local surroundings and the local experience. This is important so visitors are prevented from giving unintended offence to any place they visit, or person they meet. This role is also emphasised in situations where the tour group members cannot speak the local language and the guide is needed to interpret or help with communication. Class Activity – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for local elder/representative of local community to attend and talk about the need for and importance of and respect for local culture explaining how it may be achieved.

Slide

Optimise respect for local culture

Need to demonstrate respect for local culture:

- Meet visitor expectations
- Comply with advertising about tour
- Help minimise impact on locals
- Maximise education
- Demonstrate appropriate reverence
- Generate better local acceptance of tours

Slide 128

Slide No	Trainer Notes
128.	Trainer states it is important for Tour Guides to demonstrate respect for local culture for the following reasons: • Meet expectations of tour group members • Comply with promotional promises made about the tour • Help minimise negative impacts of tour on local communities • Maximise education of tourists regarding the country, area and/or communities • Demonstrate the reverence in which aspects of the local area held by local people • Generate enhanced local acceptance of tours by demonstrating appropriate respect for beliefs, customs and other important aspects of the people/community. Class Activity – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for Tour Operator to attend and discuss importance of Tour Guides respecting local culture explaining policies, SOPs and Codes which apply.

Slide

Optimise respect for local culture

Practices to demonstrate respect for local culture:

- Abide by arrangements made between Tour Operator and local communities
- Ask permission from local
- Use common sense
- Avoid mentioning aspects locals do not want discussed

Slide 129

Slide No	Trainer Notes
129.	Trainer presents the following practices have proved effective in demonstrating respect for local culture: • Abide by Tour Operator arrangements which have been made between them and local communities – in relation to the conduct of individual tours which may impact them • Ask permission from locals – before taking certain actions: ▪ Never assume permission will be given ▪ Always consult before taking action • Always use common sense – but err on the side of being deferential towards local communities • Avoid mentioning certain aspects of the local culture – if asked to do so.

Slide

Optimise respect for local culture

- Be prepared to explain commonly misunderstood aspects of the culture
- Provide anecdotes to illustrate the culture
- Lead by example – role model acceptable and respectful behaviour

Slide 130

Slide No	Trainer Notes
130.	Trainer continues identifying practices which have proved effective in demonstrating respect for local culture: • Be prepared to explain aspects of the culture – which are known to be generally misunderstood by others/tourists • Provide anecdotes which explain and illustrate the local culture – as opposed to providing lectures about it • Ensuring integrity of all guiding and interpretation activities – so accuracy and honesty is provided about local culture • Leading by example – the actions of the Tour Guide are a critical model for those on the tour as they will follow/copy what the leader does.

Slide

Optimise respect for local culture

- Be sensitive to issues (age, gender, dress) which may cause offence or have special significance to locals
- Maintain secrecy about nominated topics
- Support the local community in appropriate and respectful ways

Slide 131

Slide No	Trainer Notes
131.	Trainer continues identifying practices which have proved effective in demonstrating respect for local culture: • Being sensitive to issues which may have significance for certain cultures – such as matters which may relate to: ▪ Gender; Age; Dress; Modes of address • Maintaining secrecy – about certain aspects which locals do not want disclosed or discussed with ‘outsiders’ • Support the local community – which may involve: ▪ Paying entry fees or other charges imposed by local communities ▪ Buying goods and services from locals ▪ Encouraging visitors to buy from the locals ▪ Using a guide from the local community to help conduct local tours of certain areas. Class Activity – Excursion Trainer arranges for students to participate in a local tour where a key aspect of the tour is demonstration of respect for local culture.

Trainer identifies the standard and effective ways to determine what is required to minimise the negative impact of tours on local culture, people and the environment are to: Talk to relevant people • Local elders and communities • Other and more experienced Tour Guides • The employer/Tour Operator • Government officials who have involvement in and responsibility for local areas and tourism • Local industry tour groups and associations – who will have been engaged in liaising with local stakeholders and with developing protocols for minimising impact. Read relevant documentation In many instances documentation has been developed to provide advice, guidelines of mandatory requirements to assist Tour Guides and Tourist Operators to minimise the impact of tours. Documents may include those which are internal to the Tour Operator and imposed externally.

	External documents • Legislation – Acts and Regulations; Local by-laws; Codes of Practice; Charters; Agreements Internal documents • Policies; SOPs; Contracts; Terms and conditions; Commitments – made to compliance with relevant matters. Class Activity (1) – Handouts Trainer distributes documents identified on slide and discusses their role in relation to minimising the impact/s of tours. Class Activity (2) – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for Government official to attend and present requirements for Tour Operators and Tour Guides in relation to minimising impact of tours on local culture, people and/or environment,

Element 4 – Communicate with industry personnel

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- Communicate with tourism industry operators
- Communicate with colleagues

Slide 144

Slide No	Trainer Notes
144.	Trainer identifies for trainees the Performance Criteria for this Element, as listed on the slide. Class Activity – General Discussion Trainer leads a general class discussion by asking questions such as: • Which/what industry personnel might there be a need to communicate with? • Why? • When could/would this occur?

Slide

Communicate with tourism industry operators

Need for communication with industry operators will depend on:

- Type of tours conducted
- Associations and relations between tour company and other operators
- Contracted obligations
- Commitment by business to Codes and accords

Slide 145

Slide No	Trainer Notes
145.	Trainer observes the exact nature of the cross-section of industry operators and personnel a Tour Guide might need to communicate with will depend on: • The type of tours being conducted – daily half-day city walking tours will involve different stakeholders to 10-day camping tours of six different countries • Associations and relations between the Tour Operator and others – under contracts, strategic partnerships, joint ventures, partnerships • Contracted obligations – imposed as a consequence of legally binding contracts requiring (for example) attendance at meetings and/or provisions of feedback or reports • Commitment by the business to Codes and similar other voluntary accords – which require participation in nominated events, seminars, meetings, conventions, conferences and similar.

Slide

Communicate with tourism industry operators

Industry operators to communicate with:

- Carriers
- Destinations and attractions
- Third party providers
- Tour-based operators

Slide 146

Slide No	Trainer Notes
146.	Trainer identifies there can be a need for Tour Guides to communicate with: • Carriers – who can include: ▪ Coach companies ▪ Cruise operators ▪ Airlines ▪ Other transport operators • Destinations: ▪ Businesses ▪ Built attractions ▪ Natural attractions ▪ Boards of Management and/or owners and/or staff • Third party providers: ▪ Accommodation providers ▪ Caterers and food and beverage outlets

- Tour-based operators:
 - Other Tour Operators – local, national and international
 - Inbound Tour Operators
 - Wholesale Tour Operators.

Class Activity – Guest Speakers

Trainer arranges for a range of Guest Speakers from those listed above to attend and talk about the communication they have/want with Tour Guides and Tour Operators.

Slide

Communicate with tourism industry operators

Possible topics for discussion:

- Feedback from tour group members
- Results of market research conducted

Slide 147

Slide No	Trainer Notes
147.	Trainer identifies possible topics for discussion: • Feedback from tourists about: ▪ Satisfaction levels; Suggestions for change; Special requests; Best/worst aspects of their experience; Regular/common complaints and compliments • Results of customer/market research conducted by the business in relation to a range of issues such as: ▪ What they liked /disliked; Reasons for using the services of the business; Needs, wants and preferences • Recommendations for improvements and initiatives – in relation to: ▪ Inclusions; Pricing; Destinations; Itineraries; Scheduling; Carriers • Social, cultural and business requirements and contexts - including practical implementation of tour delivery in relation to issues such as: ▪ Verbal and body language; Cultural customs and mores; Ethical conduct; Sustainability • Identification of operational problems – and presentation of possible solutions to same based on personal experience and known operational parameters.

Slide

Communicate with tourism industry operators

Communication basics to observe:

- Honour commitments made to attend/contribute
- Use industry terms
- Be collaborative and consultative
- Be careful about what is said/shared

Slide 148

Slide No	Trainer Notes
148.	Trainer describes communications which need to be observed in this context: • Honour commitments – make an effort to: ▪ Attend required meetings ▪ Contribute as required or as promised ▪ Learn what is required and meet those obligations • Use industry terminology – but clarify any terms, phrases, acronyms or abbreviations with the potential to confuse • Seek to: ▪ Provide information ▪ Source information ▪ Achieve mutual understanding ▪ Reach agreement on issues and guiding activities and protocols ▪ Consult in an open manner

Slide

Communicate with colleagues

Tour Guides may need to communicate with:

- Other Tour Guides
- Support staff
- Drivers
- Management

Slide 149

Slide No	Trainer Notes
149.	Trainer notes in most cases Tour Guides will have some need to communicate with the following colleagues • Other guides – within the same Tour Operator organisation who may be: ▪ Those who conduct similar/the same type of tours ▪ Those who conduct other tour types with different durations, itineraries, destinations, inclusions and tour groups • Support staff – who can include any employees (but often predominantly office staff and counter service staff) within the host organisation with responsibility for things such as: ▪ Market research ▪ Customer contact ▪ Bookings and sales ▪ Administration which underpins the work of Tour Guides ▪ Staff who arrange and organise activities, products, services and provisions/resources for Tour Guides

	• Drivers – of vehicles such as buses, vans, cars, utility vehicles, four-wheel drives and other specialist vehicles which may be: ▪ Owned ▪ Leased ○ Hired or rented by the employer • Management of the business – which may include: ○ Owners ○ Managers ○ Supervisors.

Slide

Communicate with colleagues

Opportunities for communication:

- Daily briefing sessions
- Internal staff 'Communications' book
- Staff meetings
- Internal forms and reports
- 'Open door' policy of management

Slide 150

Slide No	Trainer Notes
150.	Trainer indicates opportunities for communication with other colleagues include: • Daily briefing sessions • The 'Communication Book' or similar used by many employers • Regular staff meetings • Chance meetings with others • Use of internal communication forms and reports which need to be completed before, during and at the end of tours- and after designated activities such as various checks and inspections • Taking advantage of 'open door' policy implemented by management. It is vital Tour Guides create/make opportunities to communicate when they have something to say/something they want to share or communicate. Class Activity – Guest Speaker Trainer arranges for Tour Guide to attend and discuss communication they have with industry personnel and colleagues identifying when this occurs, how it occurs and the topics/reason for communication.

Communicate with colleagues

Communication methods:

- Making presentations at meetings
- Talking to people
- Using written communication
- Using electronic communication options

Slide 151

Slide No	Trainer Notes
151.	Trainer states methods to communicate with colleagues are likely to include: • Making presentations at meetings – involving a range/combination of: ▪ Speech, discussion and talking ▪ Handouts ▪ Slide presentations ▪ Guest Speakers ▪ Demonstrations • Talking to people: ▪ Face-to-face ▪ On the telephone ▪ One-on-one ▪ In groups • Using written communication options: ▪ Providing handouts of information to be conveyed ▪ Supplying hard copy suggestions/recommendations ▪ Putting complaints and issues in writing
