Introduction to trainee manual

To the Trainee

Congratulations on joining this course. This Trainee Manual is one part of a 'toolbox' which is a resource provided to trainees, trainers and assessors to help you become competent in various areas of your work.

The 'toolbox' consists of three elements:

- A Trainee Manual for you to read and study at home or in class
- A Trainer Guide with Power Point slides to help your Trainer explain the content of the training material and provide class activities to help with practice
- An Assessment Manual which provides your Assessor with oral and written questions and other assessment tasks to establish whether or not you have achieved competency.

The first thing you may notice is that this training program and the information you find in the Trainee Manual seems different to the textbooks you have used previously. This is because the method of instruction and examination is different. The method used is called Competency based training (CBT) and Competency based assessment (CBA). CBT and CBA is the training and assessment system chosen by ASEAN (Association of South-East Asian Nations) to train people to work in the tourism and hospitality industry throughout all the ASEAN member states.

What is the CBT and CBA system and why has it been adopted by ASEAN?

CBT is a way of training that concentrates on what a worker can do or is required to do at work. The aim of the training is to enable trainees to perform tasks and duties at a standard expected by employers. CBT seeks to develop the skills, knowledge and attitudes (or recognise the ones the trainee already possesses) to achieve the required competency standard. ASEAN has adopted the CBT/CBA training system as it is able to produce the type of worker that industry is looking for and this therefore increases trainees' chances of obtaining employment.

CBA involves collecting evidence and making a judgement of the extent to which a worker can perform his/her duties at the required competency standard. Where a trainee can already demonstrate a degree of competency, either due to prior training or work experience, a process of 'Recognition of Prior Learning' (RPL) is available to trainees to recognise this. Please speak to your trainer about RPL if you think this applies to you.

What is a competency standard?

Competency standards are descriptions of the skills and knowledge required to perform a task or activity at the level of a required standard.

242 competency standards for the tourism and hospitality industries throughout the ASEAN region have been developed to cover all the knowledge, skills and attitudes required to work in the following occupational areas:

- Housekeeping
- Food Production
- Food and Beverage Service

- Front Office
- Travel Agencies
- Tour Operations.

All of these competency standards are available for you to look at. In fact you will find a summary of each one at the beginning of each Trainee Manual under the heading 'Unit Descriptor'. The unit descriptor describes the content of the unit you will be studying in the Trainee Manual and provides a table of contents which are divided up into 'Elements' and 'Performance Criteria'. An element is a description of one aspect of what has to be achieved in the workplace. The 'Performance Criteria' below each element details the level of performance that needs to be demonstrated to be declared competent.

There are other components of the competency standard:

- Unit Title: statement about what is to be done in the workplace
- Unit Number: unique number identifying the particular competency
- Nominal hours: number of classroom or practical hours usually needed to complete the competency. We call them 'nominal' hours because they can vary e.g. sometimes it will take an individual less time to complete a unit of competency because he/she has prior knowledge or work experience in that area.

The final heading you will see before you start reading the Trainee Manual is the 'Assessment Matrix'. Competency based assessment requires trainees to be assessed in at least 2 – 3 different ways, one of which must be practical. This section outlines three ways assessment can be carried out and includes work projects, written questions and oral questions. The matrix is designed to show you which performance criteria will be assessed and how they will be assessed. Your trainer and/or assessor may also use other assessment methods including 'Observation Checklist' and 'Third Party Statement'. An observation checklist is a way of recording how you perform at work and a third party statement is a statement by a supervisor or employer about the degree of competence they believe you have achieved. This can be based on observing your workplace performance, inspecting your work or gaining feedback from fellow workers.

Your trainer and/or assessor may use other methods to assess you such as:

- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Role plays
- Log books
- Group projects
- Practical demonstrations.

Remember your trainer is there to help you succeed and become competent. Please feel free to ask him or her for more explanation of what you have just read and of what is expected from you and best wishes for your future studies and future career in tourism and hospitality.

Element 1:

Prepare for visits by VIPs

1.1 Identify the nature of the visit by the VIP

Introduction

The first step in preparing for a visit from a VIP is to identify the nature of the visit and the identity of the VIP.

This section explains what a VIP is and presents the details you need to identify when determining the nature of the visit.

VIP – defined

The acronym VIP stands for 'Very Important Person'.

VIPs may be:

- Male or female
- Local or foreign
- On their own
- Accompanied by:
 - Other VIPs
 - An entourage of people.

Entourage

An entourage is the group of people who accompany a VIP.

These are often personal staff (see below) or third party providers or contractors they have employed to provide services such as security and driving.

Personal staff who are likely to be part of the VIP entourage include:

- Personal assistant
- Media liaison and PR
- Cook/chef
- Bodyguard
- Valet.

Examples of VIPs

VIPs may include:

- Royalty. In our industry context the interpretation of royalty is quite liberal and tends to include anyone such as:
 - Kings and Queens
 - Princes and Princesses
 - Dukes and Duchesses
 - Counts and Viscounts
 - Barons and Baronets
- Politicians. This can include:
 - Presidents
 - First ladies
 - Prime Ministers and their spouses
 - Heads ('Ministers') of government departments
- Entertainers such as:
 - Pop stars and bands
 - Film stars and actors
 - Television performers
- Sporting stars:
 - Local and foreign
 - Individuals
 - Teams
 - All types of sports
- Celebrities which can include:
 - Popular individuals
 - Those who have achieved a certain level of fame or notoriety
 - People who have won a competition
 - Anyone with a prominent profile
 - Someone with a high-profile media presence
- Those who have special honours such as:
 - Knights
 - Certain medal holders
 - People who have been given certain awards.

Nature of the visit

VIPs can visit for a wide range of reasons.

These include:

- As a stopover on the way to another destination
- To perform in a professional capacity which may involve:
 - To play sport
 - To present entertainment
 - To attend a meeting
 - To open an event or building
- For holiday purposes for rest and relaxation.

Details to identify

For each VIP visit you need to identify not only the reason for the visit but also the following information:

- Date of the visit, including day of the week to use as a cross-check to verify the date
- Time and duration of the visit in relation to:
 - Date and time of arrival in the country, where applicable
 - Date and time of arrival at the venue
 - Dates and times of trips from the venue and return to the venue during the stay
 - Date and time of final departure from the venue
 - Date and time of departure from the country, where applicable
- Entourage details, addressing:
 - Numbers in the entourage
 - Their names
 - Their positions and responsibilities
- Special requests which have been notified, such as requirements for:
 - Arrangements to be observed 'on arrival' at the venue:
 - Do they want a discreet arrival?
 - Do they want media attendance?
 - Do they need food and beverages?
 - Preferences and requirements in relation to issues such as:
 - Security
 - Accommodation
 - Service provision
 - Transportation.

Record the details

You must record all the information you capture about the visit, the VIP, their entourage and their requirements.

Your venue may have forms to do this but where they do not, a small notebook which will serve as your constant reference point for the visit should be used.

This small notebook should be used to record all information gathered about the visit and be a constant companion as you prepare for the visit, deal with the visit and conduct an evaluation of the visit.

1.2 Liaise with relevant people regarding the visit

Introduction

When preparing for a VIP visit there will always be a need to liaise with others regarding the visit.

This section explains the need for this liaison and identifies the people with whom you may need to communicate.

Need to liaise with relevant people

There is a need for two-way communication between you and the VIP visitor:

- The VIP – or their entourage – will need to contact you to ask questions, seek clarification and give instructions
- You will need to communicate with the VIP or their representatives for the same reasons.

Remember to record all relevant information in your small 'VIP visit' notebook (see previous section).

Examples of relevant people

Relevant people may include the VIP as well as:

VIP managers and handlers

Many VIPs travel with managers and handlers.

These people are responsible for arranging and organising the visit.

They manage the visit from the VIP's perspective and handle things such as problems, media, requests from the public, movement between locations, transportation, and general day to day issues that arise.

They will need to regularly communicate with you to provide direction and verify arrangements.

They will:

- Usually provide a standard list of requirements for the VIP especially where the VIP travels frequently.
This list provides an extremely useful and non-negotiable list of issues which need to be addressed
- Provide you with updates about the visit since factors impacting on the visit change.
You must expect there to be regular updates and changes
- Require you to communicate with them when:
 - Arrangements have been finalised
 - Requests have been met
 - Problems arise
 - There is any need to clarify requirements
- Expect you to:
 - Be available 24 hours per day. This is necessary due to the differences in time zones which often apply
 - Be available by telephone. Having a cell phone is vital as this is always their preferred method of communication
 - Have email facilities to facilitate the exchange of hard copy information, agreements, arrangements etc.

Local authorities

Local authorities often want to be included when a VIP visits.

These authorities can include:

- Local politicians
- Local council members
- Managers of authorities and agencies.

Local authorities may want to:

- Meet the VIP
- Make a presentation to them
- Provide a gift
- Acknowledge the visit or person
- Offer assistance
- Promote the local area.

Local police will always be notified of a VIP visit (for operational reasons and as a courtesy) and be available to:

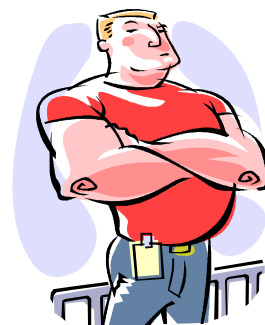

- Assist with security
- Provide crowd control
- Facilitate traffic movement
- Provide relevant intelligence about the visit and the VIP.

Staff and entourage of the VIP

The staff and entourage accompanying the VIP may also want to make direct contact with you (in addition to managers and handlers) to:

- Advise of their individual needs. These are the requirements they personally want met
- Pass on amendments to previous communications or agreements
- Identify arrangements which have been made between you and the managers and handlers
- Seek local knowledge, for example, about:
 - The venue and the local area
 - Local contacts
 - Facilities and services available.

Security staff

Where security staff have been engaged by the VIP or the authorities they will need to liaise with you regarding:

- Identifying security arrangements
- Integrating their provision of services with those provided with the venue
- Determining security systems, equipment, resources and facilities which exist at the venue
- Providing details about previous security arrangements and threats
- Pre-arrival inspections and sweeps
- Security rosters for patrol, static guard, surveillance and close escort duties
- Screening staff who will be working with the VIP.

Government/embassy staff

Traditionally government and embassy staff will only be involved where the VIP is royalty or a very senior government official (local or foreign).

Liaison will address:

- Development of the programme for the visit
- Protocols to be used for the visit
- Security support.

Topics which may be addressed

In addition to topics presented above, the topics which may be covered within the communication process often also include:

- Arrival and departure arrangements
- Side travel, trips and tours such as sightseeing and shopping
- Entertainment – type, date, numbers, venues, seats and tickets
- Use of in-house facilities – what and when, how many

- Integration of your services with those to be provided by the VIPs or their staff with reference to:
 - Service provision
 - Security
 - Support services
- Food and beverages and other dining-related issues such as service style and criteria, privacy requirements, wines, order of service
- Timing issues for a wide range of activities
- Media liaison and opportunities for interviews and photographs
- Personal preferences for food types and cooking styles, seating and sleeping, brand names of products to be provided
- Settlement of the account.

1.3 Identify factors impacting on VIP safety while at the premises

Introduction

An essential pre-requisite for preparing safety plans for a VIP visit is to identify factors impacting on their safety while at the venue.

This section explains how to identify these factors and presents a sample range of factors which have often impacted VIP safety.

Identifying the factors

You can identify factors potentially impacting VIP safety through various channels.

You are advised to use a combination of these.

Information may be sourced as follows:

- Speaking directly with the VIP – which is not always possible but is an option which should always be considered
- The managers, handlers or security staff of the VIP can provide details of relevant factors to you. This may relate to:
 - Previous occurrences involving the VIP
 - New behaviour the VIP is recently displaying
 - Special requests, requirements and preferences which may raise potential safety and security issues. This can involve communicating to you things such as:
 - Where they want to go
 - What they want to see
 - Activities they want to engage in

- The authorities can be asked for advice or they may be proactive in providing information as a pre-visit briefing and on an ongoing basis prior to the actual visit – this can include input from police and embassies who may:
 - Advise of threat analyses they have undertaken
 - Explain issues associated with similar previous visits by VIPs
 - Highlight local issues they believe will impact on the visit
- Monitoring the media. A lot of useful ‘threat’ information can be obtained by monitoring:
 - The internet
 - Newspapers
 - Magazines
 - Radio
 - Television.

In this context the media should involve:

- Local media
- Media in the city and country the VIP is currently in
- Media in the home-town of the VIP

Attention should be paid to identifying:

- Responses in other cities and countries to the presence of the VIP
- Depth, extent and nature of the reaction
- Cross-section profiling of those involved in presenting a threat
- How the threats were addressed.

Points to note

In relation to factors impacting on safety when there is a VIP visit it is important to bear the following points in mind:

- Even a crowd which is positive towards the VIP (that is, they are supports and fans) can pose a safety risk
- There is no comprehensive list of threats; you have to do research to determine what the threats are
- Security staff (‘minders’) employed by the VIP are usually very honest when they talk to venue staff about the behaviour and habits of the person or persons they are protecting. They are very concerned about preserving the safety of the VIP so will usually be very cooperative and very forthcoming about threats
- Many VIPs think they are above the law. For example, just because a country bans drugs does not mean they will respect this law.

They often think they can get away with it even if they are caught because the country will not want the negative publicity which accompanies an arrest or detention.

This underlines the fact that many VIPs cannot be expected to take personal responsibility for their own safety.

In reality, many VIPs genuinely expect and believe someone else will take care of any problems they create

- The reputation of the venue relies to a great extent on the way the visit of the VIP is handled and the way in which the portrayal of the visit takes place in the media.

You really have to remember everything which is done or which occurs will be recorded and broadcast

- Prepare for the worst and hope for the best. Your planning should always adopt a 'worst case scenario'.

Once you have identified a potential threat you need to address it.

You can never afford to ignore what has been flagged as a possible factor impacting on safety or security

- Develop and maintain regular, open and honest communication between yourself and the VIP or their handlers.

It is vital you know what they know as soon as they know it.

You also need to advise them of arrangements which have been made to protect their safety

- Do your research; threats are rarely what they appear to be on first glance.

Take time and make the effort to investigate and gather intelligence about the issue before you make decisions regarding it.

Examples of threats, issues and factors to address

Your responsibility is to:

- Identify and address safety and security factors which exist within the venue and the grounds of the property. It is up to others (police, private security) to deal with issues outside the boundaries of your venue
- Liaise with external personnel and assist them in providing optimum safety and security within the venue and adjacent to the venue as VIPs arrive and depart.

Crowd control

Your responsibility in this regard is limited to:

- Access to the venue for the arrival of the VIP and their party
- Departure from the venue; when the VIP leaves for an engagement and/or when they depart the venue at the end of their stay
- Movement of the VIP within the venue.

Threats or issues which may be posed by a crowd can include:

- Blocking of access (vehicles and foot traffic) and general nuisance
- Risk of injury to members of the public through, for example, mobbing and crushing problems

- Assault on the VIP. This may be a physical or verbal assault, a threatening gesture which causes alarm or any action giving rise to negative or sensationalist publicity
- Delays to the scheduled programme for the VIP. Most VIP visits run to a very tight programme and delays caused by crowds can cause situations which are difficult, if not impossible, to retrieve
- Demonstrations, including the potential for negative media images, conflict, projectiles and delays.

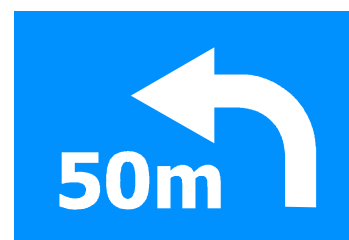

Even demonstrations which are indicated as being 'passive' in nature must be taken into account as they often transition into 'active and negative'.

Routes to be taken

When the route of the VIP into the venue and within the venue has been determined you must check to ensure no problems exist on those routes.

You should look to identify and address issues relating to:

- Physical hazards which may exist within the premises such as slippery floors, heights and clearances, stairs
- Doors, windows and similar along the route which need to be cleared and locked
- Possible hiding places for assailants
- Shortest possible routes from Point A to Point B. These are usually the safest ways
- Privacy (protecting the VIP from the eyes of others and/or contact with others) unless, of course, they prefer a high-visibility route for the purposes of publicity or 'meeting the people'
- Visual lines-of-sight and considerations relating to coverage by internal CCTV cameras, snipers and shooters.

Media coverage

It is important to determine the potential media presence for a VIP visit.

You should try to identify:

- How many there will be
- Where they will be from
- What their needs are.

Some VIPs are very 'media friendly' and will be prepared to give interviews, photo opportunities and media kits.

This may require you to:

- Provide a venue for media interviews
- Instruct them regarding privacy and confidentiality issues
- Schedule media time with the VIP
- Supply refreshments for the media
- Distribute media kits.

Other VIPs will shun all media attention and begrudge any contact with the media.

The orientation of the VIP to the media needs to be identified as part of the planning and preparation phase for the VIP visit.

Weather and time of the day

Weather and the time of day a VIP arrives, moves around or departs are always potential threat factors and/or issues in any VIP visit.

You need to:

- Identify the times of the day the VIP is expected to need to move into, within and out of the venue so appropriate plans for safe movement can be put in place.

In most cases the movement of the VIP needs to be integrated with the normal operational requirements of the venue to provide service to other guests so it is important you accommodate the VIP needs as well as the needs of other guests

- Stay informed of the expected weather conditions for the VIP visit and plan to accommodate the type of weather expected.

The protocols you will arrange will be hugely different for the arrival of a VIP during a storm compared to their arrival on a pleasant day.

Intoxication

Whether intoxication of a VIP on the premises is caused by drugs or alcohol you need to determine what your response will be.

It is best if this response is developed with local authorities.

The agreed response must be communicated to all venue and external staff involved with the VIP.

It is common for the standard responses taken by the venue in cases of intoxication or drug use to be varied when a VIP is involved, and the usual aim is to keep things 'in house'. This may mean:

- Not notifying local authorities
- Not advising or speaking to the media about the situation.

Other behaviour

It is also standard practice for the following to be kept in-house:

- Anti-social behaviour
- Discriminatory language or action
- Harassment
- Indiscretions
- Damage caused to property or rooms.

1.4 Create safety plans for the VIP visit

Introduction

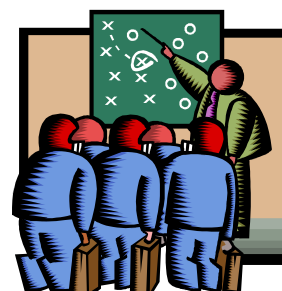

It is a standard requirement that safety plans must be prepared for every VIP visit.

This section explains why safety plans need to be prepared, gives a range of points to consider when preparing these plans and presents the generic contents of safety plans.

Reasons to prepare safety plans

Safety plans need to be prepared in order to:

- Protect the VIP against threats, problems and danger. This is a primary reason the safety plans are created
- Minimise the potential to adversely affect on others who may be impacted by the visit such as other guests in the venue and members of the public in general
- Meet VIP expectations. All VIPs expect action to have been taken to guarantee their safety and provide a trouble-free visit
- Protect the reputation of the business in the public eye and in terms of marketplace positioning of the venue
- Encourage repeat business so the VIP and other VIPs will use the venue when they return to or visit the area
- Demonstrate due diligence in relation to the effective and professional management and operation of the business
- Discharge 'duty of care' obligations. The venue has a common law duty of care to protect all people using the premises against foreseeable harm.

Preparing safety plans

Important points when preparing safety plans include:

- They must always be prepared for every VIP visit. Never feel you can omit this stage of planning and preparation
- Plans must be in writing so they can be shared for information and comment, and so they can be used for reference purposes.

You can never have safety plans which exist only in your mind

- All identified threats must be addressed by the plans you create.

If you have identified a potential risk or threat then there must be a plan for it

- Some threats require several plans to be created.

For example, if you believe there is a crowd threat on arrival for a VIP you may prepare a different safety plan for each of the following scenarios:

- Large, medium and small crowds
- Different locations of crowds – front entry area to the venue, side entries, car parks, gardens within the premises, rear entries to the property

- Different crowd moods. You may prepare for:
 - An angry or aggressive crowd
 - A supportive and positive crowd
- Communicate with others when developing the plans. This means there is commonly a need to cooperate with:
 - Management of the venue
 - Internal security staff
 - Staff who have had previous experience with VIP visits at the venue
 - Local police
 - Representatives, handlers and security staff employed by the VIP
- Refer to previous internal documentation which exists in this regard. This can mean looking at and learning lessons from:
 - Previous safety plans which have been prepared by the venue for earlier VIP visits
 - Evaluations of previous VIP visits
 - Any draft safety plans which were developed on the basis of feedback received and analysis undertaken after previous VIP visits (see Section 3.3)
- Prepare contingency plans. These are plans to follow ('Plan B') if the original plans cannot be implemented for some reason.

Contents of safety plans

Background to preparing safety plans

Safety plans will traditionally include coverage of the following as well as any 'special needs' requested by the VIP or specific action deemed necessary based on:

- The individual VIP who is visiting and the local reaction of the public to them
- Reason for visit
- The timing of the visit
- The duration of the stay
- Weather
- Local political, social and economic conditions
- The size and composition of the VIP party
- Assistance available from local authorities
- Input from VIP handlers and security staff and others associated with the VIP and/or their entourage
- Experience with the VIP and their previous visits to the country and/or the property
- Identified threats received regarding the visit.

Specific requirements

Your safety plans must include:

- Preparing necessary procedures. These will always include description of the protocols you have developed for the following four stages of the visit:

‘Prior to arrival’ which can include:

- Whether the arrival is to be covert or ‘public’
- Internal arrangements regarding rooms to be used by the VIP. Some VIPs will have a floor to themselves; some will require a vacant floor above and beneath them
- Inspections, sweeps and checks to check the safety of the areas and rooms to be used
- Liaison with others, internally and externally, including:
 - Meetings and briefing sessions
 - Drills, trials and practice runs
- Development of communication protocols covering:
 - Terms of address when speaking with the VIP
 - Communication protocols between integrated internal security personnel
- Communication protocols between the venue and external security services including police
- Development and confirmation of schedule of events for the visit focussing on:
 - Days and dates
 - Timing
 - Locations and destinations
 - Associated issues
 - Support required
 - Distribution of schedule to those identified on a restricted Distribution List
- Identification of internal and external staff to be used for service provision and arrangements, if required, for:
 - Screening those staff
 - Training
 - Briefing

‘On arrival’. This can include coverage of:

- Vehicles to be used
- Drivers and security staff to be used
- Identification of:
 - Route to be used
 - Entrance into the venue
 - Crowd control
 - Media liaison

- On arrival protocols which may relate to:
 - Movement from cars to the venue or lobby area
 - Meet and greet
 - Those who want to be present
 - Speeches and other on arrival activities
 - Gift giving
 - Handling of luggage
 - Processing of registration of all people in the VIP entourage
 - Rooming procedures
 - Shut down or limitations on normal venue operation when the VIP arrives at the property
- ‘During stay’ procedures which should address:
 - Schedule and itinerary of the VIP
 - Schedule and itinerary for entourage
 - Venue staff to be used
 - Privacy requirements
 - Physical and other resource requirements
 - Internal security arrangements which may include reference to:
 - Video surveillance
 - Static guards
 - Close escorts
 - Bodyguards
 - Restrictions on access to the VIP and/or the areas they are occupying when in-house
 - ‘On departure’ procedures, addressing:
 - Timing requirements
 - Whether the departure is to be covert or ‘public’
 - Crowd control
 - Media notification
 - Transportation
 - Luggage handling
 - Account settlement
 - Formalities which need to be observed
- Preparing running sheets for distribution according to the relevant Distribution List internally and externally to reflect and communicate the list of activities, their sequence, timing and allocated responsibilities:
- ‘On arrival’
- ‘During the stay’
- ‘On departure’.

Liaison with relevant people

The safety plans should contain a section or Appendix:

- Listing all relevant internal and external people with interest in and/or responsibilities for the VIP visit
- Identifying their contact details. This may be a cell phone number, an internal extension number, a landline telephone number and/or an email address and/or fax number
- Specifying their roles and responsibilities in regard to the visit. This should focus on identifying the areas for which they have the authority to make decisions and/or take action in relation to the visit.

In addition:

- If personnel listed in this section reside in a different time zone it is standard practice to include details of the time difference
- A list of country codes and international dialling protocols are often also included
- A scheduled list of meetings (face to face or telephone hook-up including the use of VoIP or Skype) should be prepared and communicated to relevant people to:
 - Get to know others
 - Discuss requirements
 - Confirm arrangements
 - Exchange information.

Identifying roles and responsibilities

The safety plan should specify those who are to provide work for the VIP visit and those who will have access to and/or direct contact with the VIP.

This is done to:

- Ensure only the people named on the list are allowed access to the VIP
- Allocate individual members of venue staff to VIPs and their predicted or identified needs throughout their stay
- Allow screening and background checks to be undertaken of all personnel
- Give the VIP managers or handlers the opportunity to reject certain people they deem inappropriate or a security risk
- Help generate the list of people who need to be included for visit-related:
 - Training
 - Briefings
 - Distribution Lists.

Examples of personnel who are usually identified in this section of the safety plan traditionally include:

- Chefs and kitchen staff
- Venue security
- Room attendants
- Valets and butlers
- Drivers
- Personal assistants
- Room service staff
- Local guides
- Managers of Front Office, Housekeeping, F&B, Kitchen and Security.

Communication strategies

An effective communication must be agreed between all stakeholders.

This communication plan must be developed and cannot be left to chance.

Issues to be addressed when developing a communication strategy in this content include:

- Dates, times and locations for regular or scheduled face to face meetings including list of persons to attend.
These meetings or briefings include pre-arrival and during stay events
- Daily briefings during the stay. These are usually conducted:
 - At the start of each day – early in the morning
 - During the day – often when the VIP is having lunch
 - At end of day
- Method of communication to be used. This will address:
 - Preferred methods of communication by others
 - Contact numbers
 - Second-option methods to use, for example, where the preferred method is unavailable
- Communication protocols for use where radio communications are to be used.

Identifying control action

A core element of the safety plan is to detail the specific action to be taken to address identified threats.

Obviously the nature of the action to be taken will reflect and depend on each identified threat.

The following provide generic response options which need to be considered:

- Controlling ingress and egress including:
 - Identification of restricted and 'no-go' zones
 - Determination of rear of premises access
 - Staffing of doors
 - Restricting movement of members of the public and unauthorised persons with reference to closing or locking doors, erecting barricades, keying off elevators and placement of redirection signage
 - Floor lock-downs
- Security protocols such as:
 - Identification and tagging of authorised personnel including security checks of the same
 - Identification of appropriate uniforms and equipment for security staff. There can often be an issue here regarding the carrying of concealed and other weapons which will need to be resolved in consultation with local police and/or government agencies
 - Screening of:
 - Mail
 - Email
 - Telephone calls
 - Use of detection equipment and technology (X-ray devices and scanners/wands) in relation to:
 - Visitors
 - Luggage
 - Parcels
 - Flowers
 - Gifts
 - Vehicles.

Emergency response procedures

A standard component of all safety plans must be the development of response procedures to be implemented in the event an emergency arises while the VIP is at the venue.

These emergency procedures must include evacuation procedures.

The emergency response procedures should:

- Be formulated using the established Emergency Management Plans for the venue. Reference to previous emergency response procedures for previous VIP visits is recommended
- Shared with authorities for their feedback, comment and/or approval as well as for their information to assist with coordination of activities in the event of an emergency

- Be the subject of drills
- Clearly define relevant trigger points for the decision to 'lock down' (and stay in the venue) or 'flee' (and evacuate the premises).

Evacuation procedures should:

- Be based on established evacuation procedures incorporating any special requirements as appropriate to the individual VIP
- Feature a primary escape route with a minimum of one secondary route for each primary route
- Be inspected and approved by VIP minders or handlers
- Be the subject of drills
- Feature action attaching to successful evacuation such as:
 - Relocation to safety, specifying:
 - Mode of transport
 - Destination
 - Security
 - Rehousing of the VIP in alternative accommodation
 - Provision of support and services.

Verifying insurance

While taking out insurance coverage will not help provide safety and security to the VIP or their entourage it is something which needs to be addressed as part of the overall process of preparing safety plans since proper and adequate insurance coverage can help protect the viability of the business in the event something goes wrong.

You need to:

- Liaise with management of the venue to determine their requirements in this regard
- Read any existing insurance policies held by the venue to identify the coverage they provide
- Determine if extra coverage or additional policies are required to meet the requirements of the VIP visit
- Meet with insurers to:
 - Discuss coverage available
 - Fully disclose all matters relevant to the situation and the coverage required
 - Determine the policy which best suits your needs
 - Identify any requirements they insist on as a pre-requisite for issuing a policy. Most policies of this nature come with requirements such as ensuring standard precautions are taken, and specifying nominated security measures are put in place

- Take out the necessary policies and obtain:
 - A copy of the policy as it applies to the risk being covered stating:
 - Details of the coverage
 - Amount insured
 - Relevant days, dates, times and other pertinent information which may include locations, pre-requisites for coverage, numbers of people
 - A receipt proving the premium was paid.

1.5 Identify resources required to support safety plans

Introduction

When the safety plans have been developed there is a need to identify and acquire the necessary resources to support implementation of those plans.

This section (which should be read in conjunction with the next section) stresses the need to provide the required resources and presents a list of what these resources might be.

The need to provide the necessary resources

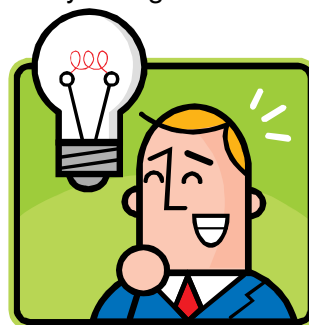

You must understand:

- The plan must be used as the basis for determining the resources required.
Using the plan as the central reference point helps ensure:
 - All requirements of the plan are met
 - No irrelevant or excess materials or items are purchased
- Resources necessary to implement the plan must be obtained unless an alternative strategy can be developed which (a) achieves the original outcome, and (b) is approved by the client/VIP.

It is never acceptable to compromise the safety and security of a VIP by failing to provide the necessary resources

- Resources can include:
 - Time
 - Physical resources
 - Staff
 - Intelligence
 - Money
- The list of resources required is likely to change with every different VIP stay. Some resources are constant but there is always the potential for individual VIPs to have unique resource requirements.

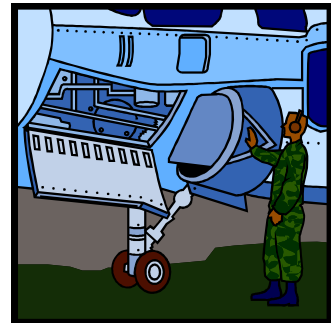

The key is to address identified resource needs rather than try to force your client to work only within your existing resources.

Examples of resources

Resources may include:

- Personnel such as:
 - Internal and external security staff – bodyguards, static guards, patrols, crowd controllers, control room staff and operators, operators of hand-held detectors (scanners, wands and under-vehicle mirrors) and scanning devices (X-ray belts and walk-through detectors)
 - Specialist operational staff to:
 - Provide nominated service to VIPs. It is common practice in some venues to nominate certain staff as dedicated service providers to the VIP and/or their entourage. This means they only serve the VIP and no-one else. This allows them to focus on delivering high-quality service and providing the standard of service expected by the VIP
 - Maintain service delivery to other guests at the venue
 - Rostering staff to reflect the needs of the VIP visit. This may include:
 - Allocating extra hours
 - Backfilling of staff who are rostered on VIP duty
 - Providing time for training, drills and briefing session
- Transport requirements. These relate to:
 - Initial arrival at the venue
 - Final departure from the venue
 - Travel to and from engagements, appointments, trips and tours
 - Travel arrangements for all designated members of the VIP party or entourage
 - Transport of luggage, equipment and other materials accompanying the VIP
 - Vehicles and drivers
 - Bearers and porters
 - Provision of boxes, crates and other containers and ancillary requirements to facilitate packing and safe and secure transport of items
- Weapons. While local laws must be considered you will need to communicate with authorities to determine their position in relation to the presence of weapons as part of a VIP visit.

In practice, compromises are always made when visits include royalty and certain politicians.

General requirements require the holder of any firearm to have completed a stipulated training course and be approved, registered and licensed to carry and use the weapon.

Restrictions may apply to the type of weapon which can be carried and the ammunition which can be used.

Special requirements can apply where the weapon is to be carried in a 'concealed' manner.

In addition to firearms your preparations for a VIP visit may necessitate the presence of a variety of 'less than lethal' equipment such as:

- Batons
- Sprays – such as OC spray
- Restraints
- Handcuffs
- Tasers

- Protective equipment. Where protests or riots are expected it is standard to acquire a range of PPE (Personal Protective Equipment) and clothing for use by security staff.

These items can include:

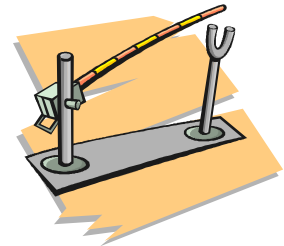

- Helmets
- Shields
- Gauntlets
- Body armour
- Steel-capped boots.

In many cases the venue may already own these items

- Barriers to limit access and control flow of foot traffic and vehicles.

Resources can include:

- Facilities to screen areas and restrict vision
- Bollards
- Signage
- Boom gates
- Chains and ropes

- Internal protocols. The standard policies and procedures in the workplace may need to be considered whenever there is a VIP visit.

Consideration should be given to the need to:

- Provide authority to override traditional internal scopes of authority
- Amend traditional lines of communication and/or authority
- Introduce new policies and procedures or revise existing ones for a limited period

- Cash or funding to:

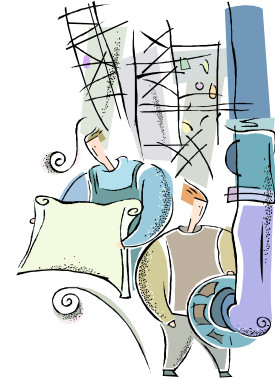

- Enable purchasing of equipment
- Purchase external services
- Support staffing arrangements such as training, extra staff and extra hours

- Operational documentation. This relates to documents developed specifically to support implementation of the visit.

These documents may be used for internal reference by other staff at the venue, external service providers and local authorities and agencies.

Examples of documents which need to be prepared as part of the 'resources required' to support safety plans include:

- Plans of the venue covering:
 - General venue plans (inside and outside)
 - Floor by floor plans
 - Evacuation plans
 - Location of security and surveillance systems and technology
- Maps of:
 - The layout of the venue
 - Local environs
- Schedules and programmes which have been arranged for the VIP
- Staff rosters for those working with the VIP
- Relevant venue SOPs (Standard Operating Procedures) and policies
- Running sheet to guide security activities by identifying the work to be done, when it needs to be done, who is responsible for undertaking it and the resources available.

The running sheet may address, for example:

- Checking people on arrival for an event at the venue hosted by the VIP
- Vehicle searches of:
 - Vehicles arriving for the VIP or with goods for the VIP and their entourage
 - Vehicles departing after visiting the VIP or their entourage
- Dog searches
- Electronic sweeps
- Road closures
- Crowd control activities
- Observation and monitoring activities
- Close escort duties
- Loss prevention duties to protect items and to guard against theft of goods which belong to the VIP
- Static guard duties to provide a visible presence and deterrent
- Inspection of areas prior to allowing the VIP into the area
- Searching and clearance of nominated areas

- Intelligence. This is information relating to the visit.
Intelligence is the basis on which all other arrangements are made.
In addition to the initial details you identified when first notified of the VIP visit you will need to update this information as:
 - New requirements emerge
 - Fresh information becomes available about threats, about the visit and about arrangements that have been made
 - The schedule/programme changes
 - Composition of the entourage alters
 - Travel arrangements, dates and timing issues are modified
 - Agreed contributions by external providers and agencies vary
- Communication equipment – see next Section
- Electronic surveillance and detection equipment – see next Section.

1.6 Acquire necessary surveillance and communication equipment

Introduction

To optimise security and safety of the VIP there is a need to use and rely on a range of security systems and technology.

This section identifies surveillance and communication resources which may need to be used and presents pre-requisite preparations for their use in a VIP visit.

Examples of surveillance and communication equipment

The requirements of the safety plans which have been prepared for the visit must provide the basis for determining the equipment required.

Remember, the security detail accompanying the VIP will often want to know what surveillance and communication equipment you have. In many cases they will also want to inspect it.

Surveillance and detection

Surveillance and detection equipment may include:

- The overall security system used by the venue as incorporated into the security room.
This system will involve:
 - Alarms for all security and detection sub-systems
 - Screens, monitors and indicator boards
- Electronic detection equipment which includes:
 - Sensors to detect:
 - Movement in a room/space ('motion sensors')

- A door or window which has been opened ('intruder alarms')
- Heat and/or smoke
- CCTV cameras with:
 - Recorders (DVRs)
 - Monitors
 - Standard 'zoom', 'tilt' and 'pan' facilities

CCTV cameras may be 'wired' or 'wireless' and be of various types such as dome, bullet, covert/hidden, indoor and outdoor, and infrared security cameras (so-called 'night vision' cameras).

See <http://www.securitycameraking.com/securityinfo/2012/11/different-types-of-security-system-cameras/>
- Metal detectors including:
 - Walk-through type
 - Conveyor-belt scanners
 - Hand-held wands
- Video analytic systems and software intended to facilitate crowd and person movement and to enable facial and specific object recognition
- Access control technology which may include:
 - Biometric identification technology:
 - Palm-scanning technology
 - Retina and iris scanning technology
 - Coded key pads
 - Data capture technology/swipe card machines
- Binoculars
- Hand-held cameras:
 - Video
 - Still picture.
- Audio surveillance equipment.

Communication

Communication equipment which you might need can include:

- Hand-held two-way radios (UHF and VHF) which may feature lapel microphones
- Communication headsets with microphones and earpieces allowing the hands to be free for other work
- Intercoms for internal communication between two or more points
- Landline telephones such as the internal telephony system in a venue
- Cell phones provided by management
- Pagers. These are of limited use but can be used as a back-up to summon assistance or ask a security officer to check in or contact someone

- Public address systems. These can be used to communicate generally with customers, or the systems can be used in defined areas and sections (sectors) only
- Megaphones for communicating with the public where the PA system does not operate, as an alternative to the PA system or during emergencies and evacuations.

Ways to obtain equipment

Standard options are:

- Buy
- Borrow
- Rent/hire
- Lease.

Pre-requisite preparations

Prior to the arrival of the VIP party you need to ensure you have:

- Established a control and communications room which will be the command and control room in the event there is an emergency while the VIP is at the venue
- Delivered necessary training to all staff who are involved in use of surveillance and communication equipment
- Ensured sufficient logs, registers and documentation to support and record surveillance and monitoring activities
- Conducted tests of all workplace surveillance and communications equipment and recorded or documented the fact this has been done
- Developed standard communication protocols for using communication equipment – see below
- Patched venue facilities into communications systems used by support agencies and personnel and tested these connections
- Conducted a mock response scenario. This is a drill in response to a simulated emergency or event/incident.

Communication protocols

Possible communication procedures may include:

- Ensuring all two-way radio equipment is operational prior to patrol – especially checking battery levels are as required
- Keeping communication lines clear unless addressing security issues; radios are communication devices and not toys
- Using designated channels for communication
- Using established protocols for:
 - Responding to a transmission
 - Sending a transmission
 - Spelling out a name using the phonetic alphabet (see below)

- Knowing the emergency transmission word or phrase that will give your message priority and immediate attention/ or response – such as ‘Urgent’, ‘No duff’ or ‘Officer in trouble’
- Checking-in as required such as reporting-in at designated times, or after the completion of designated duties and inspections, on arrival ‘on scene’
- Ensuring individual transmissions do not interrupt or talk over another transmission
- Using ‘over’ at the end of each sent transmission
- Using ‘go ahead’ to indicate you are ready to receive
- Identifying yourself clearly at the start of any transmission sequence – ‘Security Control, this is James Bond, over’
- Refraining from swearing or using bad language when communicating
- Not mentioning matters ‘over the air’ that are sensitive in nature or which could cause panic or distress if heard by a third party.

Phonetic alphabet

There are a variety of phonetic alphabets used by different countries and different organisations. A phonetic alphabet serves to guide the pronunciation of words and the spelling out of names and other things.

You need to find out which phonetic alphabet your workplace uses and stick to that when sending transmissions.

The phonetic alphabet most commonly used was developed by NATO and is used to help prevent the confusion with radio transmissions where letters that sound similar over the air (such as ‘D’ and ‘B’) can be quickly differentiated.

The use of the alphabet (below) also helps to overcome the operational problems (such as weak signals, background noise, audio distortion) that accompany two-way radio transmissions, and assist accuracy where an operator speaks with an accent.

A = Alpha	B = Bravo	C = Charlie	D = Delta
E = Echo	F = Foxtrot	G = Golf	H = Hotel
I = India	J = Juliet	K = Kilo	L = Lima
M = Mike	N = November	O = Oscar	P = Papa
Q = Quebec	R = Romeo	S = Sierra	T = Tango
U = Uniform	V = Victor	W = Whisky	X = X-ray
Y = Yankee	Z = Zulu
0 = Zero	1 = Wun	2 = Two	3 = Three
4 = Fower	5 = Fife	6 = Six	7 = Seven
8 = Ait	9 = Niner

For example

If you were using this alphabet and you wanted to transmit the name of a witness, for example 'Alan Hickman', you would say:

"Name of the witness is Alan Hickman, that's first name Alpha, Lime, Alpha, November. Second name Hotel, India, Charlie, Kilo, Mike, Alpha, November."

1.7 Select staff to provide for VIP safety

Introduction

When a VIP visits there will be a need to select staff to provide for VIP safety.

This section identifies personnel who may be required and gives an indication of the duties they will be required to perform.

Personnel

Personnel to provide for VIP safety may include:

- External security companies who may provide:
 - Bodyguards
 - Close escorts
 - Static guards
 - Drivers
 - Operators for security/detection equipment and devices
- Police, to provide:
 - Crowd control
 - A legal presence
 - A visible deterrence to potential criminals
- Internal security staff:
 - These are the regular security staff at the venue who provide normal patrol, detection and deterrent services
 - The standard roster for internal security staff is commonly changed to:
 - Extend the hours normally worked
 - Increase the number of personnel on duty
 - Allocate certain staff to VIP-only duty
- Staff provided by, or accompanying VIP. These can include:
 - Personal bodyguards who:
 - Are employed by the VIP
 - Operate in rotation, cycling through a team so there is protection provided 24 hours a day
 - Are in constant contact with the VIP throughout their stay
 - Minders and handlers.

All personnel who will be engaged in providing security (with the exception of local police) may need to have background checks or screening undertaken to clear them for duty.

Security-related tasks

Duties the above personnel may be required to undertake include:

- Security checks of:
 - Rooms and spaces
 - Vehicles
 - Deliveries to VIP
 - People requiring access to the VIP
- Crowd control:
 - Inside and outside the venue
 - When the VIP moves
 - When the VIP engages in an activity or appearance
- Access control in relation to:
 - Determining who gets access to the VIP
 - Controlling time people spend with the VIP
 - Securing areas where access is granted
- Background checks on staff – see previous notes
- Observation and monitoring of all factors likely to impact the security of the VIP. This can include observation and monitoring of:
 - Crowds
 - Individuals
 - Weather
 - Traffic patterns
 - Security systems and alarms
 - Communications
- Liaison with each other
- Close escort duties – see below.

Close escort duties

Close escort duties are duties performed by bodyguards, also known as security escorts or CPOs.

Bodyguards may be:

- Venue employees with special skills. Venue staff who perform close escort duties will commonly have special training and accreditation in:
 - Driving – with a focus on defensive and evasive driving techniques

- Martial arts and close combat
- First aid
- Firearms
- Provided by external security companies.

Most people only see the public 'action-oriented' face of close escort duty which has been severely over-dramatised by Hollywood.

In reality the responsibilities of these staff include:

- Planning travel arrangements to and from the venue:
 - Routes – primary and secondary
 - Means of transportation
 - Decoys
 - Security
 - Itinerary
- Planning movement within the venue:
 - On arrival
 - When attending meetings, appointments, meals and other nominated engagements or activities
 - On departure
- Driving duties, including:
 - Movement of person from, for example, airport to venue
 - Travel as required throughout their stay to local attractions, destinations, engagement and return
 - Travel on departure
- Physically inspecting (searching and checking) and electronic 'sweeping' of rooms, venue facilities and vehicles to:
 - Detect and neutralise bugging or surveillance devices
 - Detect and defend against explosive devices
 - Identify and respond to 'other threats'
- Undertaking background checks on people who will meet or be in close proximity to the client. This may involve checks on:
 - Service staff
 - Identified members of the public
 - Suppliers and providers
- Protecting the client against identified and emergent threats such as:
 - Intrusive media
 - Unwanted people
 - Stalkers
 - Known persons who are classified as threats

- Accompanying the client to:
 - Provide a physical presence and give the client a sense of safety and security
 - Present a visible deterrence to threats
 - Provide venue information and service as required
 - Respond to threats and incidents
 - Communicate with other bodyguards, security staff and agents/authorities
 - Facilitate movement within the venue and access to required areas
 - Clear the way
 - Monitor implementation of protection plans
 - Observe and note issues for immediate action and/or later follow-up
- Facilitating the carrying of valuable items in the presence of, or separate from the client which will involve:
 - Participating in the planning process – routes, timing, equipment to be used, threat analysis
 - Physically accompanying those who are carrying the valuable items to afford a physical presence and deterrent value
 - Clearing the way for those who are physically carrying the items
 - Overseeing the carriage of the items to ensure those involved move the items to where they are supposed to go, according to the plans made, and nothing is lost or stolen on the way.

1.8 Provide information to staff in relation to VIP safety and plans

Introduction

When safety plans have been finalised and approved and all necessary arrangements have been made to enable implementation of the plans it next remains to inform venue staff about these plans.

This section presents options for advising staff of arrangements and requirements, and describes issues which may need to be addressed as part of this communication and information sharing activity.

Ways to communicate the information

Staff with whom you may need to share information can include:

- Local police and authorities
- External service/security providers
- Managers, minders, handlers and staff employed directly by the VIP
- Internal venue staff.

You can use the following approaches for informing staff about requirements and arrangements:

- Meetings and briefings
- Distribution of documents such as:
 - Safety plans
 - Schedules and programmes
 - Running sheets
 - Contact list for security personnel
 - New or revised SOPs for the visit
 - Rosters.

Venues may produce a 'VIP Visit' manual containing all the above together with additional details (such as a biography of the VIP, where they have been and where they are going next).

- Email
- Memorandum.

A general aim is to keep the amount of hard copy information to a minimum (to reduce potential for security breaches) but it is unrealistic to expect there to be no documentation.

There will always be some form of paperwork which needs to be developed and circulated which has the potential to jeopardise safety and security arrangements.

Points to note

- A combination of approaches will achieve the best results – never rely on one approach only
- Be sure to use languages which will be understood by the staff – different staff may require different languages
- Prepare a list of staff who need to be provided with information and track attendance at meetings so appropriate follow-up can occur
- Record your efforts at providing information to staff so you can prove what you have done if the need to do so arises
- Stress to staff the information you are providing them with is confidential – they must not share it with anyone else.

It is vital secrecy is maintained regarding preventative measures which have been taken

- Details and information must only be provided on a 'need to know' basis. The information relating to a VIP visit and the arrangements which have been made is not for general release to all staff.

Issues to address

When sharing information with staff the topics which may be addressed can include:

- Advising of changes to standard operating procedures. This can include:
 - Revisions to definitions and classifications of 'restricted areas' for the duration of the visit
 - Provision of no-go zones where members of the public and/or any persons are prohibited entry
 - Allocation of standard duties to other personnel to release certain staff for VIP-dedicated duties
- Advising of:
 - Emergency procedures as they apply to the VIP
 - Evacuation procedures that have been established
 - Special requests made by the VIP and/or the entourage
 - Threat warnings – explaining specifics of the threat, threat level, planned responses and threat mitigation
- Notifying staff of drills to be undertaken prior to actual arrival of VIP, specifying:
 - Focus for the drills
 - Rationale for the drills
 - Date and time
 - Roles and responsibilities
 - Reference to emergency and evacuation procedures for the visit
- Prohibiting certain activities relating to interactions between staff and the VIP. These standard prohibitions include:
 - No taking of photographs
 - No staring
 - No pointing
 - No seeking of autographs
 - No proactive contact with the VIP. Staff (with the exception of management) are expected to respond to requests for service rather than initiate contact
- Prohibiting staff contact with media. This means:
 - Not talking to the media, such as no answering of questions asked by the media and no interviews with the media
 - Not releasing information about the VIP (or arrangements for the stay/visit) to the media
 - Not sharing with the media anything relating to the stay of the VIP at the venue such as:
 - Not communicating who the VIP met with, dined with, entertained or had in their room
 - Not mentioning anything about what they said, did or the way they behaved and/or treated others
 - Not advising of any excesses, indiscretions or illegal or dubious behaviour.

1.9 Establish media liaison facilities and procedures

Introduction

Most VIP visits will involve a need for you or the VIP to interact with the media.

This section describes activities involved in establishing media liaison for a VIP visit.

Pre-requisite knowledge

Before taking action in relation to establishing contact with the media and putting media liaison facilities in place you must:

- Determine the orientation of the VIP towards media attention and coverage of their visit:
 - Do they want all the media coverage possible?
 - Do they want the least amount of attention possible?
 - When are they able to meet with the media?
 - Where do they want media interviews to take place?
Do they have a preferred location or a certain context? International VIPs often want interviews to be conducted against a setting which reflects the country or destination they are speaking from
 - Will they be prepared to give TV interviews? Some VIPs will only do 'off camera' interviews and refuse to be recorded. Other VIPs prefer to be recorded as they believe this helps retain the message they want to send
- Identify the information they have developed to give to the media. Many VIPs have Media Liaison officers or PR people who have prepared and have available for release to the media:
 - Biographies of the VIP
 - Media kits
 - Programmes and schedules
- Find out dates and times (if any) the VIP has set aside to meet with the media for:
 - One on one and group interviews
 - Photo opportunities
- Liaise with VIP managers/minders to determine the security and other arrangements for media contact such as:
 - Procedures for screening media access to the VIP
 - Close protection arrangements
 - Time constraints and booking schedules.

Activities involved

Activities involved in establishing media liaison facilities and procedures may include:

- Creating a media room which media can use during the visit as a meeting point and work room for their reporting on the event
- Identifying and preparing an interview room. This is a room where group interviews are conducted when and if the VIP agrees to them.

The room should feature:

- Adequate seating for the number of media representatives expected
 - A back-drop which features the name of the venue
 - A main table with facilities to support microphones
 - Suitable power, lighting and video/TV connections
- Developing procedures for media contact in the event of:
 - Breaking news
 - Special announcements
 - Regular/daily communications such as morning and evening updates provided to the media by the PR/media liaison person travelling with the VIP
 - Problems
 - Emergencies
 - Breaches of security
 - Nominating a single media contact person for the venue and providing relevant contact details to facilitate contact
 - Advising times and dates available for media interviews and:
 - Screening applicants for interviews
 - Making bookings
 - Communicating bookings to VIP/manager
 - Preparing media releases about:
 - The VIP
 - Their visit
 - Activities they have participated in.

Standard requirements are the VIP or their managers need to approve any media releases prior to their distribution.

Always keep a copy of media releases and always keep a copy of approval granted to distribute media releases

- Preparing and distributing required media protocols for the VIP visit which may include:
 - Forms of address to use when talking to the VIP
 - Need for question lists to be submitted in advance
 - Bans on photographs or filming
 - Topics which must not be mentioned
 - Signing a media agreement, indicating formal compliance with requirements
 - Determining hospitality to be provided to the media which may include:
 - Accommodation in relatively limited cases such as where the venue believes it can gain positive PR from offering it
 - Food and beverages which can include:
 - Light snacks and refreshments
 - Full meals
 - Tea, coffee and non-alcoholic beverages
 - Wine, spirits and beer
 - Entertainment and/or general access to venue facilities
- It is important to negotiate with the VIP as to what they want to provide for the media and what they are prepared to pay for.
- There is never a situation where the media can be given whatever they want, without limit. However the venue may be prepared to contribute to costs in order to generate positive media relations
- Advising media of arrangements which have been made (see above) which is usually done through a telephone call and/or email contact
 - Responding to media questions about the VIP, arrangements, schedules and associated issues.

1.10 Conduct drills to trial safety plans

Introduction

It is recommended and standard practice to conduct drills for the safety plans which have been developed for a VIP visit.

This section explains why these drills should be undertaken and identifies practical aspects of conducting them.

Reasons to conduct drills

You should conduct drills of your approved safety plans in order to:

- Demonstrate due diligence in your management of the VIP visit
- Give staff experience and practice in implementing requirements so they can better respond when and if an actual emergency arises
- Prove the plans. Drills can help:
 - Identify problems or unacceptable situations which were not visible when planning occurred
 - Verify responses and actions stated in the plans
 - Generate options and alternatives for emergency responses and action.

Factors to include

When conducting drills you should take the following into account:

- Include all stakeholders – internal staff, external providers, members of the VIP entourage and local emergency service workers
- Notify the authorities you are conducting a drill so they do not initiate an emergency response if members of the public contact them to advise of an issue
- Trial all details of the safety plans which have been developed
- Test communications and surveillance equipment and protocols as part of the drill
- Conduct drills focusing on potential and probable safety breaches and identified threats
- The focus for each drill should vary so participants are exposed to a variety of 'realistic' situations.

Drills should be proper and detailed 'dress rehearsals' rather than 'activities' simply designed to 'tick the box' for complying with the need to undertake a drill.

Incorporating reality into the drills means:

- Conducting drills at different times of the day with an emphasis on drills at night because many emergencies occur at night

- Conducting drills on different days of the week because the pattern and level of trade can vary significantly at different times creating new or different conditions
- Integration of realistic 'problems' into the drills. For example, the evacuation drill could include some factor introducing an element of unpredictability or surprise

For example the drill may involve:

- Unexpected reactions from the VIP and their entourage
 - People trapped in rooms
 - Blocked primary and/or secondary evacuation routes
- Evaluate the drills involving all stakeholders and participants
 - Revise safety plans on the basis of feedback and observation of drills and re-circulate as necessary
 - Record dates and times of all drills and the names of those who participated
 - Re-run drills based on alterations made to safety plans on the basis of observation and feedback.

Work Projects

It is a requirement of this Unit that you complete Work Projects as advised by your Trainer. You must submit documentation, suitable evidence or other relevant proof of completion of the project to your Trainer by the agreed date.

1.1 Identify an actual visit to a local venue which has recently been undertaken by a VIP.

Using information available to you and your industry knowledge, industry or venue contacts and your imagination and knowledge of requirements prepare a submission:

- Explaining the nature of the VIP
- Classifying the VIP
- Identifying people in the VIP entourage
- Listing factors you believe impacted on the safety of the VIP
- Including a safety plan which would optimise the safety of the VIP while at the venue
- Naming the resources which would be required to protect the VIP while at the venue
- Identifying the roles and responsibilities of internal and external staff required to provide safety and allow implementation of safety plans
- Describing how information about security arrangements could have been provided to venue staff
- Detailing the media facilities made available
- Illustrating the drills conducted in preparation for the event.

Summary

Prepare for visits by VIPs

When preparing for visits by VIPs:

- Determine the nature of the visit
- Research details of the visit and the VIP and their entourage
- Liaise with relevant managers, handlers and minders as well as local authorities and agencies
- Investigate and identify threats
- Prepare safety plans
- Identify and obtain resources to allow safety plans to be implemented
- Document and record action taken as part of the planning and preparation
- Screen and select appropriate personnel to implement the safety plans
- Share security and safety information with nominated internal and external personnel
- Determine media requirements for the visit and establish appropriate facilities
- Conduct and review drills to practice implementation of safety plans
- Revise safety plans on the basis of drills and redistribute revised plans as required.

Element 2: Implement plans for VIP safety

2.1 Apply pre-arrival preparations

Introduction

A standard requirement prior to a VIP visit is to implement the planned pre-arrival preparations as identified in the planning and preparation phase.

This section presents a list of activities which may need to be undertaken.

Timing of the pre-arrival preparations

Pre-arrival preparations for a VIP visit occur over a range of timelines.

For example:

- Buying, installing, commissioning and testing new security systems and technology may take place six months in advance of the visit
- Staff training and painting rooms can occur three months plus in advance of the arrival of the VIP and their entourage
- Preparing in-door facilities for the visit will take place one to two days in advance
- Erecting barricades and cordons may occur on the day or within 24 hours of the arrival of the VIP
- Cleaning of spaces, rooms and facilities may occur hours before the VIP arrives.

Examples of pre-arrival preparations

Pre-arrival preparations may relate to:

Training staff

Staff identified as providing service to the VIP and their party will need to be trained in required responsibilities and tasks.

This can include training in relation to:

- Use of relevant equipment, systems, technology and utensils
- Cultural awareness and sensitivity
- Application of designated protocols
- Practical operational requirements
- Revisions to standard venue practices as required for the VIP visit.

Providing food and beverages

Activities which need to be addressed in relation to supplying food and beverages for the VIP and their entourage may include:

- Identifying types of food and beverages required such as, for example, snacks and refreshments, meals, banquets, suppers
- Identifying timing requirements, dates and numbers
- Identifying required items by name of dish, brand name of beverages, cooking style
- Purchasing raw materials and ingredients
- Trialling and taste-testing recipes
- Determining presentation and service protocols.

Preparing and providing support facilities

Providing necessary support facilities for the visit will involve providing and preparing certain facilities required not only by the VIP but also for their entourage, visitors, media and others who will be attending the venue to meet the VIP and attend VIP-related events or functions.

Preparations for these facilities may involve a range of actions ranging from significant to the very basic such as:

- Refurbishment
- Painting
- Service and maintenance to items in the area to ensure they are fully functional
- Cleaning
- Replenishment of supplies
- Closing of areas to the public at a designated time to prevent unauthorised use of the areas (which may compromise the appearance of the facilities) and to help maintain security.

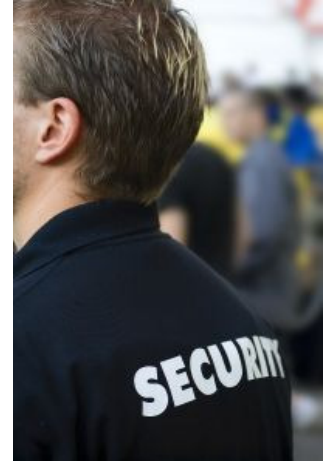

Facilities which may need to be prepared can include:

- Toilets and wash rooms
- Make-up rooms
- Media interview rooms
- Change rooms
- Holding rooms for luggage and other items
- Business support where support staff can conduct business-related activities on behalf of the VIP.

Controlling access

Controlling access must be undertaken in accordance with a safety plan which can include requirements relating to:

- Closing and locking doors, gates, windows and other access points
- Positioning signage to advise of:
 - Closed areas
 - Restricted access
 - Detours
- Erecting physical barricades
- Cordoning off areas
- Inspecting vehicles
- Screening luggage and articles
- Conducting personal screening
- Issuing identification cards
- Positioning guards and security staff at nominated locations.

Addressing operational issues

There will always be a need to:

- Reallocate staff to different tasks as required to reflect the involvement of certain venue staff with the VIP visit
- Draft revised rosters for the visit period
- Advise staff within the venue in relation to:
 - Revised or new standard operating procedures for the visit
 - Changed operating times for areas of the venue
 - Expected impacts of the visit on other guests and strategies to address or mitigate these.

Why is this important?

Applying pre-arrival preparations is necessary to:

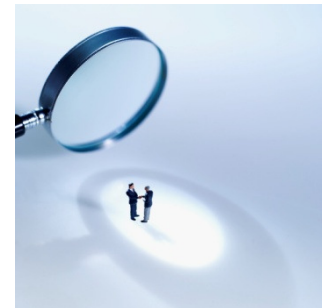

- Optimise safety and security of the VIP
- Meet expectations of VIP and their entourage
- Keep promises made or ones which are imposed under the terms of any contract which might apply
- Help deliver seamless and high-level service to the VIP and their entourage
- Demonstrate importance the venue places on the visit and the VIP.

2.2 Conduct final pre-arrival checks

Introduction

Immediately prior to the arrival of the VIP there is a requirement that you conduct identified pre-arrival checks.

This section describes pre-arrival checks which often need to be completed.

Timing and context

Points to note about pre-arrival checks include:

- Comparing 'actual' venue preparation and condition against the safety plan requirements, featuring:
 - Physical inspections of the venue
 - Testing of equipment and systems
 - Implementing actions identified as being required in the safety plan
- Pre-arrival checks are conducted close to the expected arrival time of the VIP. The exact time of these checks will vary.

Some checks will be done 'within 24 hours', others will be undertaken within hours of the ETA and some checks will be ongoing
- Once pre-arrival checks have been completed, the areas which have been checked need to be secured, for example, to:
 - Prevent secure areas from being compromised or breached
 - Stop unauthorised use of areas which may spoil the appearance of facilities and areas
- These checks are often collaborative events. You will usually be required to:
 - Undertake the checks with VIP representatives or representatives from their security personnel, the police or other authorities
 - Allow other security personnel and/or authorities to undertake their own, independent set of pre-arrival checklist
- A checklist should be used as part of the checking process to:
 - Ensure no area is overlooked
 - Record the fact that the check was undertaken
 - Note issues to be addressed
- Identified issues must be addressed. These can include:
 - Variances between safety plans and what is discovered as part of the checks, tests and inspections
 - Issues arising
 - Changed conditions
 - New or revised threats.

Examples of pre-arrival checks and activities

Final pre-arrival checks and activities may include:

- Confirming functional operation of communications and control centre which can include:
 - Physical checks and tests of communications devices
 - Running system checks to verify operational status
 - Testing of alarms and detection devices
 - Verifying readiness and operational status of security devices
 - Sighting presence or availability of emergency plans, evacuations plans and contact lists as appropriate to the visit
- Keying off elevators in accordance with safety plan including:
 - Ensuring lifts bypass nominated floors
 - Closing down certain elevators
 - Providing elevator keys to VIP security staff
- Conducting sweeps of area looking for:
 - Suspicious packages
 - Unauthorised persons
 - Electronic surveillance
- Confirming identity of all persons within restricted areas via standard protocols such as:
 - Uniforms
 - ID cards
 - Personal recognition of individuals
 - Bio-security protocols
- Checking locked areas. It is always important to check locked areas which exist in designated security areas.

These checks must address:

- Internal and external areas
- Front of house and back of house.

You can never assume a locked door equates to a safe and secure area as:

- Someone may be hiding inside a locked area
- Someone may have planted a device in the area.

Always remember 'a locked door only keeps out honest people'

- Confirming lines of sight are protected and/or available as required for:
 - CCTV/remote surveillance
 - Live observation

- Confirming:
 - Key personnel are in position in accordance with safety plan
 - Security of all areas is in accordance with safety plan
 - Finalisation of pre-arrival preparations
 - All pre-arrival checks and briefings have been completed
 - Necessary follow-up action on the basis of identified issues has been effectively addressed
 - Final arrangements for the visit including last minute changes
- Issuing 'all clear' notification to internal and external stakeholders indicating all checks have been completed in accordance with safety plans and the venue is ready for the arrival of the VIP.

2.3 Meet and escort VIPs

Introduction

On arrival of the VIPs and their entourage there may be a need for you to meet and escort them.

This section explains why this is not always a requirement and illustrates activities involved in this extremely important stage of the visit.

Determining the need

Your discussions as part of the planning process with VIP management and minders as well as other stakeholders (police, external security providers, VIP bodyguards and security staff, embassies and other officials) will identify whether or not you need to actively participate in this phase of the visit.

The safety plan will always provide a blueprint for what is required.

In some cases the role of the venue will only be a passive one. When the VIPs arrive you may be required to:

- Allow designated 'others' to take the primary role in meeting and greeting. This may include management of the venue, other security personnel or other VIPs
- Work under the direction of other security personnel responding to their instructions and performing allocated tasks as deemed necessary at the time and by the circumstances
- Observe and monitor the arrival and provide status reports to other security staff or agencies.

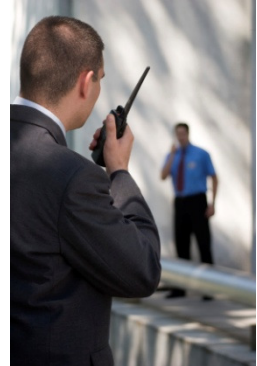

Observation in this context always involves a combination of 'eyes on' surveillance as well as electronic surveillance and recording of procedures

- Maintain the integrity and security of areas already checked and pronounced as 'all clear' to ensure there are no unauthorised intrusions
- Provide a secondary or back-up role, only needing to take action in the event of an incident.

Examples of meeting and escorting duties

Where you are required to take a more active role in meeting and escorting VIPs on arrival the following is a representative list of tasks which may need to be undertaken:

- Securing nominated areas. These will be :
 - Nominated arrival area such as the basement of the venue or the main entrance area at the front of the venue
 - Entry route for the VIP from the arrival point at the venue to the first identified location (such as the media interview room, the lobby, a dining area, a meeting area or direct to their room)
- Identifying VIP/VIPs. Previous attention needs to have been paid to:
 - Enable you to identify the VIP or VIPs by sight
 - Allow you to determine who is a legitimate member of the entourage. Photo ID cards for this purpose may have been issued in advance and it is necessary to check:
 - All persons in the party have ID
 - The photo ID matches the person carrying the ID
- Supporting the work of external security staff to facilitate arrival which will necessitate:
 - Integrating your activities with theirs
 - Regular communication and liaison (face to face or via radio) to:
 - Determine requirements
 - Provide updates
 - Give advice based on your local and venue knowledge
 - Confirm status and notify 'all clears' and issues arising

- Handling secure entry to building.

'Secure entry' means safe entry.

The nature of the secure entry can, however, vary considerably as different VIPs prefer different entry protocols.

For example:

- Some VIPs will want a rapid entry as devoid as possible of interruption or interference
- Other VIPs will accept meeting people in a crowd, signing autographs, posing for photographs and even impromptu media interviews.

The physical location chosen as the arrival point (and the barricades and cordons established) will reflect this orientation.

- Monitoring crowds and observing environment for threats. Whether you take a primary or secondary role when a VIP arrives you will always have responsibility for monitoring and observing 'others' who are present.

Attention should be focussed on identifying and responding to:

- Intoxicated persons
 - Drug-affected persons
 - Persons causing public nuisance
 - Political activists
 - Mentally deranged persons
 - Known trouble-makers
 - Suspicious persons
 - People found in restricted or off limits areas
 - Threatening behaviour
- Maintaining communications. Not only do you need to maintain contact with external security providers but you also need to:
 - Notify your communication and control room of identified threats and issues arising
 - Advise of progress of the arrival, providing checks when pre-determined points or locations have been reached
 - Inform about deviations from scheduled running sheet, explaining reasons and identifying the alternative action or routes being taken.

A nominated communications channel is used for general communications so all security staff can make and monitor transmissions (with alternate channels pre-allocated for certain personnel and events)

- Requesting assistance where threats or problems arise.

It is vital to appreciate:

- You should always be alert to the potential for problems or threats
 - You have back-up support available to you
 - You must call for assistance as part of your initial response to any identified threat or problem. It is never enough to simply respond to a situation, you must also ALWAYS advise others of the issue:
 - And advise of the support required
 - So they can activate their Standard Operating Procedure of automatically sending help to you or your area
- Matching required security level:
 - In accordance with agreed requirements of the safety plan
 - To address the degree of threat or danger identified

This means it is necessary to:

- Implement planned security arrangements regardless of what may appear to be a reduced threat level
- Maintain Situational Awareness at all times – see below
- Adapt security plans and procedures on the basis of VIP requests and preferences, where possible

- Providing escort services. This can include:
 - Working in cooperation with other security staff
 - Overseeing transport of luggage and belongings into the venue
 - Providing close escort services
 - Accompanying VIPs to designated 'first arrival' location
 - Confirming security of 'first arrival' location prior to entering that area or location
 - Responding to on-the-spot demands or preferences of the VIP as they, for example, decide to do things not previously identified or planned for
 - Determining alternative action and routes where a threat is identified
 - Handing over provision of security at 'first arrival' location to designated 'first arrival' location staff.

Situational Awareness

Those providing security services must operate in a way that demonstrates they are fully aware of everything happening in their environment. This is referred to as 'Situational awareness'.

Situational awareness may be seen as being completely aware of the environment or situation you are in and knowing:

- What the situation is normally like when everything is safe and secure
- If it is changing
- How it is changing
- Why it is changing
- The threat presented by changing circumstances.

Situational awareness relies heavily on:

- Keeping your eyes and ears open to keep the inflow of information coming in to you and your senses
- Analysing everything:
 - What was that noise?
 - Why did the noise happen?
 - Where did it come from?
 - What does it indicate?
 - What action do I need to take in response?

Situational awareness is the basis for:

- Determining threat situations
- Identifying action needing to be taken
- Identifying what is 'normal' and things that are not normal
- Prompt and effective responses.

2.4 Maintain the safety of VIPs during stay

Introduction

When the VIP and their party have arrived in the venue your job then becomes one of maintaining their safety and security while they remain at the venue.

This section describes activities to achieve this aim.

Pre-requisite imperatives

You should note:

- Maintaining safety and security of VIPs includes providing security and safety for:
 - Their entourage
 - Other guests at the venue
 - Members of the public and visitors to the venue
- The agreed safety plans are implemented subject to changes as necessitated by:
 - Situations and issues arising
 - Changing needs for the visit
 - Preferences and requests from the VIP
- Safety of people continues to take priority over security of assets.

Activities to maintain safety and security of VIP

Safety of VIPs during their stay will primarily include a need to implement the actions outlined in the safety plan.

It is critical to understand all the requirements stated in the safety plan MUST be adhered to without exception.

It is never sufficient to 'some' of them or 'nearly all of them'.

The actions which commonly may need to be addressed include

- Conducting ongoing visual and electronic sweeps as required of:
 - VIP accommodation rooms
 - VIP floor and adjacent floors
 - Routes to taken by the VIP
 - Rooms to be used by the VIP such as dining areas, bars, meeting rooms or conference areas
 - Vehicles

- Conducting searches of:
 - Luggage
 - Gifts offered to VIP
 - Visitors
 - Staff
 - Vehicles – see below
- Maintaining restricted access to facilities and no-go zones by:
 - Patrolling nominated areas
 - Posting static guards
 - Monitoring video surveillance
 - Monitoring security system alerts and alarms
- Confirming security protocols are being adhered to by:
 - Observing staff practice
 - Confirming requirements have been met – such as:
 - Checking doors which should be locked are in fact locked
 - Visually verifying guards are in place as and where required
 - Reviewing records of work done such as inspection checklists, patrol logs, visitor registers
- Checking identity of persons in the vicinity. This should involve:
 - Asking for identification
 - Visual recognition
 - Recording details of persons who are checked
 - Detaining or removing suspicious persons
- Liaising with external security staff (and authorities) as well as relevant internal venue staff. This relates to communicating with these people and cooperating and collaborating with them to:
 - Assist as required or requested
 - Provide updates on progress
 - Inform of changes
 - Perform tasks as instructed
- Maintaining guard duties inside and outside the building which can include:
 - Standing guard at pre-determined points
 - Being a physical presence or deterrent
 - Providing close escort for the VIP
 - Monitoring security, surveillance and communication systems
 - Escorting staff who are to provide service to the VIP
 - Preventing loss
 - Redirecting unwanted persons

- Checking vehicles including:
 - All vehicles entering the premises
 - Those parked close by
 - Parked vehicles with engine running
 - Vehicles parked in 'No parking' areas
 - Vehicles without required 'Vehicle Pass'

There is no specific definition of a suspicious vehicle but a range of indicators exist: see 'Suspicious vehicles' below.

 - Investigating and/or removing suspicious vehicles
- Protecting the privacy of the VIP by:
 - Screening telephone calls to VIPs
 - Screening other communications such as personal callers, notes and written communications
 - Deliveries to VIPs
- Restricting the movement of VIPs where:
 - Security is compromised
 - Threats are identified
 - Proposed routes are unavailable
 - Advice or direction from other security staff is received to this effect.

Suspicious vehicles

The following is taken from 'Security Spotlight: Take notice of suspicious vehicles' at <http://www.securitas.com/Global/United%20States/Suspicious%20Vehicles%201.pdf>.

"Suspicious vehicles can come in all shapes, sizes and colours, but the one defining characteristic they all share is that they seem 'out of place'. Some other indicators to watch for include a car, van or vehicle that:

- Emits an odd odour of chemicals, fuel, fertiliser or gunpowder
- Doesn't 'fit' its surroundings – e.g. too expensive or too cheap, a delivery van in an area usually occupied by passenger cars
- Has missing license plate or is an older vehicle with new or temporary tags
- Is sagging on its springs which could indicate a load of explosives
- Is parked awkwardly or parked in an unauthorised place
- Moves slowly and repeatedly through an area
- Has tinted windows or otherwise blocked view inside
- Has been left in the same spot for an unusually long period of time
- Is left idling in an unusual spot or unusual way (e.g. door ajar or window open)
- Occupants are seen leaving in a hurried or strange manner."

2.5 Facilitate departure of VIPs

Introduction

In the same way you were under obligations when the VIP arrived, so too will you have responsibilities when they depart.

This section provides an overview of activities which you may need to comply with when a VIP departs.

Context for this section

Departure of VIPs relates to:

- Occasions where the VIP leaves the venue with the intention of returning
- The final departure of the VIP when their visit is completed.

In relation to departures you:

- Must use the safety plan as the basis for action
- May be required to play a support or passive role instead of a primary role
- May be required to arrange:
 - Drivers
 - Vehicles
 - Routes and itinerary
 - Travel tickets and documentation
 - Transportation of luggage
 - Customs and immigration issues
 - Entry tickets to tourist attractions, sporting and/or entertainment events
- Need to arrange and implement pre-departure activities and checks in the same way you undertook pre-arrival activities and checks.

Departure activities

Departure of VIPs may involve:

- Keying off lifts in accordance with safety plan
- Clearing departure or exit routes including internal hallways and passages as well as external vehicle departure routes
- Conducting sweep of area for suspicious packages and unauthorised persons
- Confirming identity of all persons within restricted areas
- Checking locked areas
- Confirming lines of sight are protected and/or available as required
- Conducting communication checks
- Confirming key personnel are in position in accordance with safety plan

- Confirming security of all areas in accordance with safety plan
- Up-dating staff of last minute changes
- Issuing 'all clear/ready to exit' notification
- Integrating and liaising with external security staff to facilitate departure
- Handling secure departure from rooms and building
- Monitoring crowds and observing environment for threats as previously identified
- Notifying communication and control room of threats, progress and deviations from scheduled running sheet
- Requesting assistance where threat or problems arise
- Matching security level to degree of threat or danger identified
- Adapting security procedures on the basis of VIP requests and preferences, where possible
- Accompanying VIPs to designated departure location
- Confirming security of departure location
- Checking vehicles including vehicles entering the premises and those parked close by
- Removing unauthorised vehicles and persons
- Handing over security at departure point to other designated security staff.

Work Projects

It is a requirement of this Unit that you complete Work Projects as advised by your Trainer. You must submit documentation, suitable evidence or other relevant proof of completion of the project to your Trainer by the agreed date.

2.1 Identify an actual or simulated VIP visit to a nominated venue and present a report detailing:

- Nature, purpose, duration and purpose of the visit
 - Name of the VIP
 - Arrangements you would make for pre-arrival preparations
 - Final pre-arrival checks you would make
 - Activities you would implement to maintain VIP safety during their stay
 - Arrangements you would make for final departure of the VIP from the venue when their visit has been completed.

Summary

Implement plans for VIP safety

When implementing plans for VIP safety:

- Follow the safety plans which have been prepared and approved
- Make sure all actions identified in the safety plan are implemented
- Implement required pre-arrival preparations to venue and for staff
- Conduct final pre-arrival checks
- Liaise and cooperate with external authorities, stakeholders and security providers
- Be prepared to take an active primary role or a secondary support role
- Provide guard, deterrent and escort services as required
- Monitor and observe crowds, individuals and vehicles
- Report suspicions and observed activity
- Adapt plans as necessary based on issues arising
- Notify others regarding progress and changes to plans
- Protect the VIP and their privacy during their stay
- Undertake identified checks and activities every time the VIP leaves the venue.

Element 3: Conduct evaluation of plans following departure of VIP

3.1 De-brief staff who were involved with project

Introduction

Standard practice is to conduct a debriefing after nominated circumstances such as functions, events, and incidents.

This section discusses debriefing requirements after a VIP visit.

Need for debriefing sessions

Debriefing sessions after a VIP visit are held to:

- Finalise the visit according to the visit plans
- Capture suggestions, advice and recommendations to improve service for future VIP and other visits
- Learn lessons which can be used for future VIP visits – see Section 3.3
- Provide a forum for stakeholders to discuss the visit
- Identify and solve problems
- Obtain feedback from those involved:
 - ‘Directly’ – comments and input from staff and others who worked on the visit
 - ‘Indirectly’ – staff passing on feedback they overheard from the VIP and/or their entourage while they were at the venue
- Address issues and/or complaints raised by:
 - The VIP or their managers and team
 - Staff who worked on the visit
 - Other stakeholders
- Assist external stakeholders with their evaluation of the visit. Government agencies and embassies and the police will commonly undertake their own debriefing so:
 - They will be expecting to be asked to be part of your debriefing
 - They will want you to participate in their debriefing
- Serve as the basis for information gathering and sharing so others can benefit from what occurred as part of the visit

- Thank staff and other participants for the role they played in the visit and pass on any compliments and congratulations received from the VIP in order to:
 - Acknowledge the work they did
 - Reinforce positive actions and attitudes.

A debriefing must never deteriorate into a 'witch hunt'.

Keys to debriefings

The points below have proved useful in enabling effective debriefings after a VIP visit:

- Schedule the debriefing sessions. Do not leave debriefings to chance as they may not occur.

Scheduling these sessions also:

- Allows for suitable planning to take place
- Optimises attendance
- Hold debriefings shortly after the visit has concluded. You may need time to undertake other associated VIP visit activities (cleanup, returning venue to normal operation, account finalisation, internal reporting, media liaison) but standard practice is to have the debriefing sessions finalised within seven days of the end of the visit (while details are still fresh in the minds of those involved)
- Consider holding daily debriefing sessions such as at 10:00PM daily to act as building blocks for the final debriefing. These sessions will:
 - Record issues for later discussion at the final debriefing session
 - Address issues arising
 - Make changes to prepared schedules and running sheets
- Face to face meetings are the best debriefing option but attendance at these sessions is never possible for all stakeholders.

In many cases however some external stakeholders do not have the same interest or investment in debriefings that you have.

Where 'important' external stakeholders are unable or unwilling to attend face to face debriefing sessions you must arrange an alternative debriefing options which may involve:

- Brief one on one meetings conducted at the stakeholder's workplace
- Telephone interview
- Use of a paper-based questionnaire which may be mailed, emailed or faxed to respondents
- Notify 'required participants' of the debriefing and:
 - Urge them to diarise the planned date and time
 - Explain why their attendance is important
 - Encourage them to attend

- Allocate sufficient time for the sessions. You cannot complete a worthwhile debriefing in five minutes.

Determinants of length of debriefing include:

- Name and type of VIP
 - The length of the visit
 - Complexity of the visit in terms of products and services provided by the venue
 - Revenue generated
 - Number of internal and external stakeholders involved
- Include internal and external stakeholders as relevant to the individual VIP visit (see previous notes)
 - Prepare and circulate in advance an agenda for the session identifying the topics, issues and areas to be addressed.

Make sure you address all aspects of the visit including the planning and implementation phases.

Common topics for consideration include:

- Communications
 - Decision making
 - Compliance
 - Liaison
 - Timing issues
 - Teamwork
 - Products and services
- Record the debriefing session by, for example, taking minutes, or taking audio and/visual recordings
 - Ensure discussions and considerations are, to the best extent possible, 'evidence-based' as opposed to being based on suppositions, half-truths and assumptions
 - Take charge of the debriefing. You must provide leadership, direction and management for each session to prevent the sessions becoming disorganised, unfocused and ineffective.

It is vital to reinforce the reasons for the session and what the focus and expected outcomes are

- Ask lots of questions. You must actively solicit input rather than expect or wait for contributions to be forthcoming.

You need to address:

- What took place as identified in schedules, planning and through running sheets
- Things which went well
- Things which went poorly
- Things which need changing or doing differently next time

- When anyone provides legitimate criticism or comment:
 - Thank them
 - Ask them how the situation:
 - Could have been avoided
 - Can be avoided next time.

3.2 Analyse responses to breaches of safety that occurred

Introduction

A critical aspect of any evaluation of a VIP visit is to analyse all responses to breaches of VIP safety and security.

This section details why this process is necessary and identifies practices to assist with the analysis.

Reasons for this step

Analysis of responses to breaches should occur to:

- Identify causal factors
- Assess responses
- Evaluate relevant planning
- Prevent recurrence
- Improve future responses to similar breaches
- Demonstrate due diligence
- Discharge duty of care requirements for future VIP visits
- Show external stakeholders your serious and professional attitude to safety and security and your desire to improve responses and prevent recurrence.

Analysing responses

The analysis should address:

- The planning stage such as:
 - Risk/threat identification
 - Risk/threat analysis
 - Risk/threat control
 - Safety plans which were formulated
 - Resources and systems which were acquired or deployed

- The implementation stage which looks at the context in which the breach took place and may look at:
 - Situational factors
 - Timing
 - Location
 - Communications
 - Available intelligence
 - Threat/problem indicators
- The actual response which was provided 'at the time' in terms of:
 - Speed of response
 - Staff involved
 - Resources used
 - Effectiveness of response
 - Relationship between 'planned' response and 'actual' response
 - Impact of the breach
 - Problems, questions and issues raised by the VIP as a result of the breach. The managers and security personnel associated with the VIP will always want to be provided with information generated as a result of the breach analysis so they can:
 - Integrate lessons learned into their future practice
 - Communicate relevant lessons to future VIP host venues.

General context

You can use any of the techniques listed below ('Standard analysis techniques') to help analyse responses to safety breaches which occurred as part of a VIP stay however:

- It is best (and usual) to use a combination of analysis techniques rather than use just one
- The aim must be to undertake a 360° analysis which examines breaches from every relevant angle
- A 'no blame' policy should apply to the analysis. This means individuals or staff will not be blamed or punished (that is, they will not be sacked) providing:
 - They tell the truth even if the truth proves:
 - They failed to follow required monitoring or observation directions or SOPs
 - They failed to identify an issue, indicator or threat
 - They failed to respond correctly when the breach materialised
 - Their sub-standard or unacceptable action was not intentional or deliberate.

The intention of this approach is to determine exactly and honestly what happened and whether:

 - The plans were effective but were not implemented as required, meaning the problem is with the staff and not the plans

- The plans were followed but proved to be ineffective, meaning the issue lies with the plans and not with the staff or the equipment.

The reality is that staff will tend to lie about their actions if they fear being fired (or other consequences), and these lies have the potential to hugely skew the investigation, the findings and the subsequent action which flows from the process.

- The extent of the analysis (that is, the time and money spent on the analysis) depends on:
 - The nature of the breach. An assault will necessitate more analysis than the presence of an unauthorised vehicle in a restricted area
 - The significance placed on the incident by others (such as the VIP, their minders or managers and police)
 - The impact of the breach which can relate to issues such as:
 - Injuries and damage which occurred
 - Media exposure
 - Financial liability or other legal exposure of the venue as a result of the incident.

Standard analysis techniques

Analysing responses to breaches may include:

- Watching and analysing videotape of the incident
- Interviewing staff involved in the security event
- Speaking to those who were impacted by the breach
- Interviewing persons who breached security
- Visiting and investigating the scene of the breach
- Using information from external stakeholders
- Seeking answers to standard questions such as:
 - Why did it happen?
 - Who was involved?
 - Where did it happen?
 - What happened as a result?
 - What could have happened as a result?
 - With the benefit of hindsight, what were the indicators a breach:
 - Was about to occur?
 - Had occurred?
 - How can it be prevented in the future?
 - Was it an equipment or human failure?

3.3 Prepare draft safety plans for future VIP visits on the basis of feedback received and analysis undertaken

Introduction

It is not sufficient to simply 'discuss' the VIP visit when reviewing and evaluating it. A primary objective should be the documentation and retention of information which can be beneficially used by the venue when future VIP visits occur.

This section discusses documenting the lessons learned from the evaluation process, incorporation of these lessons into future draft safety plans and ways to share the findings of visit evaluations.

Documenting lessons learned

The formal evaluation process must be the basis for determining the lessons learned from the visit.

Any lessons learned must be based on 'evidence' as opposed to subjective impressions.

Documenting lessons learned involves:

- Writing down the lessons learned – describing the situation that gave rise to the lesson, and what the exact nature of the lesson is (that is, how subsequent VIP visits should take into account the lessons learned)
- Attaching supporting documentation to the lesson such as written feedback from stakeholders, observations made at the time, witness statements, photographic evidence
- Including basic data – name of the project, details of project or management team, dates, and base project documents used in the project (such as the project management plan)
- Communicating the lessons learned – see below 'Sharing information from the evaluation'
- Filing the base or source documents and data. Filing should occur in a physical, paper-based format and electronic format.

Attention must be paid to ensuring 'relevant others' know where this information and/or documents are physically located so they can access it when required.

Standard filing protocols should apply to ensure:

- Security
- Protect confidentiality
- Track and record use of the documents.

Incorporating lessons learned into future plans and venue activities

To help optimise inclusion of lessons learned from past VIP visits into future visits the following can be applied:

- Circulate lessons learned to other staff and stakeholders – see below ‘Sharing information’
- Integrate lessons learned into venue training for security and other relevant staff
- Revise venue policies and procedures to include the lessons learned ensuring:
 - Version control protocols are implemented to maintain currency of documents
 - Revised versions are circulated as required
 - Old versions are removed from circulation
- Hold special staff-management meetings to:
 - Background the visit
 - Detail the review and evaluation process
 - Discuss the lessons learned
 - Identify the impact of these on operation of the venue
- Provide SOP for managers which makes it mandatory for them to:
 - Talk to nominated staff previously involved with VIP visits before they start planning the next VIP visit
 - Read and review evaluations (‘lessons learned’) from previous VIP visits
- Use existing prepared safety plans as the basis for:
 - Re-drafting revised plans to reflect issues identified during the evaluation and analysis process
 - Developing new plans as opposed to fine-tuning existing plans
 - Adding new topics and considerations to existing plans
 - Incorporating new and revised responses and controls to plans
 - Changing the format of the plans
 - Revising allocation of roles and responsibilities as determined necessary by the evaluation
 - Amending timelines.

Sharing information from the evaluation

The following are acceptable ways of sharing information on the outcomes of the visit evaluation you have undertaken:

- Make a verbal report to:
 - Management
 - Nominated stakeholders – internal and/or external
- Do a formal presentation on the findings which will entail a need to:
 - Verbally present the final evaluation
 - Explain aspects of it
 - Defend decisions made
 - Justify expenditure
 - Confirm or clarify points arising
 - Provide supporting or evidentiary documentation
- Distribute draft safety plans for future VIP visits which have been prepared incorporating 'lessons learned' from the previous visit
- Circulate a formal report on the visit
- Meet with key internal figures to discuss the findings. These would include:
 - Managers and supervisors
 - Other people with security management responsibilities
 - Trainers and training staff (so they integrate findings into in-house training)
 - Those with responsibility for preparing and updating venue policies and procedures (so findings can be formalised into internal SOPs)
- Share the findings with relevant external stakeholders (police, third party security providers, VIP management) – as approved by management.

Work Projects

It is a requirement of this Unit that you complete Work Projects as advised by your Trainer. You must submit documentation, suitable evidence or other relevant proof of completion of the project to your Trainer by the agreed date.

3.1 Prepare a submission detailing the evaluation procedures which occur after a VIP visit and:

- Identify stakeholders who may be included in the process
 - Describe possible issues and topics which could be covered as part of the debriefing and evaluation process
 - Nominate aspects of safety plans which may need to change on the basis of the evaluation or review process.

Summary

Conduct evaluation of plans following departure of VIP

When conducting evaluation of plans following departure of VIP:

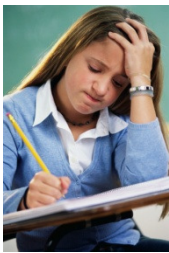

- Schedule the evaluation
- Notify relevant stakeholders in advance of time, date and location/venue for the evaluation
- Try to achieve face to face debriefing sessions
- Support face to face evaluations and de briefings with alternative options for stakeholders to make input
- Explain reasons for the evaluation process
- Use established safety plans as the basis for evaluation
- Involve internal and external stakeholders
- Ensure reviews and analysis is evidence-based
- Analyse responses to security and safety breaches
- Strive to identify 'lessons learned' from the visit
- Incorporate lessons learned into draft safety plans for future VIP visits
- Communicate findings of the evaluation
- Circulate revised or new safety plans
- Integrate lessons learned into standard venue protocols.

Presentation of written work

1. Introduction

It is important for students to present carefully prepared written work. Written presentation in industry must be professional in appearance and accurate in content. If students develop good writing skills whilst studying, they are able to easily transfer those skills to the workplace.

2. Style

Students should write in a style that is simple and concise. Short sentences and paragraphs are easier to read and understand. It helps to write a plan and at least one draft of the written work so that the final product will be well organised. The points presented will then follow a logical sequence and be relevant. Students should frequently refer to the question asked, to keep 'on track'. Teachers recognise and are critical of work that does not answer the question, or is 'padded' with irrelevant material. In summary, remember to:

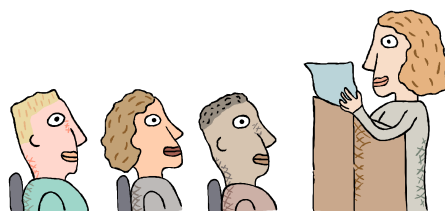

- Plan ahead
- Be clear and concise
- Answer the question
- Proofread the final draft.

3. Presenting Written Work

Types of written work

Students may be asked to write:

- Short and long reports
- Essays
- Records of interviews
- Questionnaires
- Business letters
- Resumes.

Format

All written work should be presented on A4 paper, single-sided with a left-hand margin. If work is word-processed, one-and-a-half or double spacing should be used. Handwritten work must be legible and should also be well spaced to allow for ease of reading. New paragraphs should not be indented but should be separated by a space. Pages must be numbered. If headings are also to be numbered, students should use a logical and sequential system of numbering.

Cover Sheet

All written work should be submitted with a cover sheet stapled to the front that contains:

- The student's name and student number
- The name of the class/unit
- The due date of the work
- The title of the work
- The teacher's name
- A signed declaration that the work does not involve plagiarism.

Keeping a Copy

Students must keep a copy of the written work in case it is lost. This rarely happens but it can be disastrous if a copy has not been kept.

Inclusive language

This means language that includes every section of the population. For instance, if a student were to write 'A nurse is responsible for the patients in her care at all times' it would be implying that all nurses are female and would be excluding male nurses.

Examples of appropriate language are shown on the right:

Mankind	Humankind
Barman/maid	Bar attendant
Host/hostess	Host
Waiter/waitress	Waiter or waiting staff
