Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment - An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of Competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of Competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning Approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in Learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for Participant Diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant Centred Learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active Learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training Strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of Training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/Tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group Discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic, is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role Play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorise and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energising and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation Games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /Group Exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case Study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalise the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field Visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group Presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice Sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor, who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in Assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment Objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of Assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative Assessment Tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: READ AND INTERPRET BASIC INSTRUCTIONS, DIRECTIONS AND/OR DIAGRAMS		NOMINAL HOURS: 60
UNIT NUMBER: D1.LAN.CL10.08
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with the skills and knowledge required to read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams in a range of settings within the labour divisions of the hotel industries
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Prepare for work 1.1 Read and interpret job specifications from internal and external customers 1.2 Read and interpret procedures 1.3 Read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams 1.4 Read and interpret work instructions to determine job requirements Element 2: Read and interpret information about routine tasks, processes or events 2.1 Identify relevant sources of information/documentation so that job can be performed in accordance with the organisation's requirements 2.2 Identify the purpose of instructions, directions and/or diagrams for particular jobs		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment This unit applies to reading and interpreting basic instructions and/or diagrams within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Front Office 2. Housekeeping 3. Food and Beverage Service 4. Food Production Job specifications may detail: • Outcomes • Duties • Reporting relationships.

2.3 Ask questions from appropriate people to gain additional information and/or to clarify understanding 2.4 Read and interpret relevant details from instructions, directions and/or diagrams for application to particular jobs Element 3: Receive and respond to basic instructions and directions 3.1 Receive, clarify and assess requirements of instructions and/or directions in accordance with organisational policies and procedures 3.2 Question and confirm assignment instructions and/or directions if necessary 3.3 Comply with directions and or instructions within designated timelines 3.4 Obtain feedback after instructions and/or directions have been complied with	Internal customers may include: • Colleagues working in another department • Team members • Supervisor or managers. External customers may include: • Suppliers • People who buy the goods and services the enterprise sells. Procedures may relate to: • Hazard policies and procedures • Emergency, fire and accident procedures • Personal safety procedures • Procedures for the use of personal protective clothing and equipment • Use of motor vehicles • Resolution procedures • Job procedures and work instructions. Instructions, directions and/or diagrams may include: • Work instructions • Directions on how to use equipment safely • Directions on how to complete a task safely • Diagrams that show safe working procedures • Policies and procedures • Manuals.

	Work instructions to determine job requirements may relate to: • Methods of work • Processes or procedures • Equipment • Policies and procedures • Manuals. Information/documentation may include: • Workplace procedures, checklists and instructions • Goods identification numbers and codes • Manifests, bar codes, goods and container identification • Manufacturer's specifications • Workplace policies • Supplier and/or client instructions • Material safety data sheets • Relevant codes of practice, including the national standards for manual handling and the industry safety code • Legislation, regulations and related documentation • Award, enterprise bargaining agreement, other industrial arrangements • Standards and certification requirements • Quality assurance procedures • Emergency procedures.

	Appropriate people may include: • Supervisors, managers • Colleagues • Human resource personnel • Members of the public • Clients. Instructions and/or directions may relate to: • Letters • Memos • Faxes • Emails • Invoices and purchase orders • Policies and procedures • Manuals. Assignment instructions and/or directions may relate to: • Instructions from client/supervisor/management • Assignment objectives and timeframes • Work tasks and procedures • Resource and equipment requirements • Reporting and documentation requirements • Personal protective clothing and equipment requirements.

	Feedback may include: • Formal feedback: ▪ 360 degree assessment ▪ Customer satisfaction surveys/forms ▪ Team evaluations ▪ Performance reviews/appraisals ▪ Workplace assessment • Informal feedback may include: ▪ Critical incident reviews ▪ Impromptu questioning of customers to obtain view of products and/or service provided ▪ Chance discussions with customers ▪ Coaching and mentoring ▪ Seeking the opinions of others ▪ Comments from supervisors, colleagues or clients ▪ Personal, reflective behaviour strategies. Assessment Guide Assessment must confirm knowledge and skills: • Knowledge about and ability to interpret signs and symbols relevant to workplace functions • Ability to locate, interpret and apply relevant information • Knowledge of and ability to interpret legislation, regulations, policies, procedures and guidelines relating to workplace. Linkages To Other Units • Perform clerical procedures

	• Work effectively with colleagues and customers
	• Work in a socially diverse environment • Respond to instructions given in English • Follow safety and security procedures • Manage and resolve conflict situations. Critical Aspects of Assessment Evidence of the following is essential: • Demonstrated ability to identify information about routine tasks, processes, events or skills • Demonstrated ability to locate, interpret and apply relevant information • Demonstrated ability to read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams to achieve appropriate work outcomes • Demonstrated ability to read and interpret signs and symbols relevant to workplace functions. Context of Assessment This unit may be assessed on or off the job • Assessment should include practical demonstration of the ability to read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams either in the workplace or through a simulation activity, supported by a range of methods to assess underpinning knowledge • Assessment must relate to the individual's work area or area of responsibility • Assessment must include project or work activities that allow the candidate to respond to multiple and varying work instructions and/or directions relevant to work area, job role and area of responsibility. Resource Implications Training and assessment to include access to a real or simulated workplace; and access to workplace standards, procedures, policies, guidelines, tools and equipment. Assessment Methods The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit:

- Case studies

- Observation of practical candidate performance
- Oral and written questions
- Portfolio evidence
- Problem solving
- Role plays
- Third party reports completed by a supervisor
- Project and assignment work.

Key Competencies in this Unit

Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectively

Level 2 = competence to manage tasks

Level 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating

Key Competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	1	Gather relevant information together
Communicating ideas and information	2	Communicate with others to ensure a common understanding of the instruction and/or direction
Planning and organising activities	1	Plan activities to comply with instructions
Working with others and in teams	2	Respond to internal and external customer instructions and/or directions
Using mathematical ideas and techniques	0

	Solving problems	2	Apply conflict resolution and communication skills to resolve conflict and/or misunderstandings
	Using technology	0

Assessment

Assessment for this Unit may include:

- Oral questions
- Written questions
- Work projects
- Workplace observation of practical skills
- Practical exercises
- Formal report from employer/supervisor

Prepare for work

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- 1.1 Read and interpret job specifications from internal and external customers
- 1.2 Read and interpret procedures
- 1.3 Read and interpret basic instructions, directions and/or diagrams
- 1.4 Read and interpret work instructions to determine job requirements

26.	Critical Thinking Activity – Class Trainer and students discuss the scenarios listed in the Trainee Manual and talk about why these people are inappropriate to ask about them. Critical Thinking Activity – Class Trainer and students discuss the scenarios listed in the Trainee Manual and talk about appropriate people to ask about them. Speaking Activity – Class Trainer divides the class up, so that a group consists of five to six students each representing a type of person: supervisors/managers, co-workers, colleagues, human resource personnel, clients and members of the public. Ask a question to each, and have each student answering exactly as they imagine the type of person they represent would respond. As a group, the students decide who was the best person to ask.

Slide

Read and interpret relevant details

In every job, you will receive instructions and directions, sometimes in written and other times in spoken format. No matter how they are received, it is important to pick out and determine the relevant details of each instruction.

Slide 27

Slide No	Trainer Notes
27.	Trainer leads a discussion about relevant details and asks students to pick out relevant details from the slide. Speaking Activity – Class Trainer leads a discussion about the value of understanding relevant details.

Slide

Read and interpret relevant details

Skim Reading:

Skim reading is a technique that must be practiced before it is useful. It is beneficial to skim read when you have a lot of material and not a lot of time. Many people use skin reading when they are reading the newspaper. They skim the article quickly looking for basic facts and information to get the gist of a text.

Slide 28

Slide No	Trainer Notes
28.	Trainer explains skim reading to the students. Reading Activity – Individual Trainer instructs students to find a document in English, skim it, and tell the class what they read about.

Slide

Read and interpret relevant details

Scanning:

Scanning is using your eyes to pick out keywords that your brain has already specified. Scanning is what you do when you are looking for a name in a phone book or a word in the dictionary. Scanning is to search for keywords or ideas. It's best to use scanning when you already know what you are looking for, because you are concentrating on finding a certain answer already. Usually, people skim a document first, determine that it is what they are looking for, then scan it for specific details.

Slide 29

Slide No	Trainer Notes
29.	Trainer explains scanning to the students. Reading Activity – Individual Trainer instructs students to scan the same document they used for skimming and describe the difference. Reading Activity – Individual Trainer instructs students to read an email and note in their Trainee Manuals and scan them for relevant details.

Slide

Receive and respond to basic instructions and directions

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- 3.1 Receive, clarify and assess requirements of instructions and/or directions in accordance with organisational policies and procedures.
- 3.2 Question and confirm assignment instructions and/or directions if necessary.
- 3.3 Comply with directions and or instructions within designated timelines.
- 3.4 Obtain feedback after instructions and/or directions have been complied with.

Slide 30

Writing Activity – Individual Trainer instructs students to create a checklist for Pedro.

Slide

Receive, clarify and assess requirements of instructions and/or directions

To clarify instructions/directions:

- Repeat them
- Ask the speaker to repeat what they said
- Ask a relevant question

Slide 33

Slide No	Trainer Notes
33.	Trainer gives students a complicated set of instructions, speaking as quickly as possible. He/She pays attention to their responses and calls out if anyone asks for clarification. Trainer then starts a conversation about clarifying instructions using the points in the slide.

Slide

Question and confirm assignment instructions and/or directions

As well as knowing how to ask the right questions to the appropriate people, it is also important to question documents and instructions themselves in order to create more understanding of your task for yourself.

Sometimes, skimming or scanning a document is not enough to reach understanding, and it becomes necessary for us to question and confirm details for ourselves.

Question and confirm assignment instructions and/or directions

What questions should be asked in this scenario?

Good morning Julie!

The Gala Ball is on tonight at the Regency Hotel. I want to wear the red Christian Dior gown in the closet, but it has a tear in the right armpit and badly needs dry cleaning. Could you please take it to a seamstress and then on to the dry cleaner?

My makeup and hair lady comes at 4pm, and I want to leave by 6pm.

Thank you,

Mrs. White
