Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for participant diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant centred learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorize and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energizing and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /group exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalize the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative assessment tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC).

Pass Competent (PC)

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with skills and knowledge required to source and evaluate products and services for inclusion into packages for sale to individual and/or generic groups of clients.
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Describe the context for packages 1.1 Identify the clients for packages 1.2 Identify client requirements in relation to packages 1.3 Identify host enterprise requirements in relation to packages 1.4 Identify purposes of packages 1.5 Identify products and services for inclusion in packages Element 2: Source products and services for packages 2.1 Identify sources of information for products and services 2.2 Research information sources to obtain targeted information 2.3 Assess applicability of identified products and services to proposed packages 2.4 Select products and services for the package		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment. This unit applies to sourcing and evaluating products and services for inclusion in packages for sale to individual and/or generic groups of clients within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Travel Agencies 2. Tour Operation Clients for packages may include: • Individuals and groups, including one-off clients and identified target market sectors • Day tour operators • Hotels • Outbound tour wholesalers • Inbound tour operators • Conference organisers.

Element 3: Create packages of products and services 3.1 Identify pre-planning requirements for packages 3.2 Determine components of individual packages 3.3 Determine duration for packages 3.4 Calculate price points for packages 3.5 Develop terms and conditions for the packages 3.6 Prepare draft itinerary for packages 3.7 Prepare sales monitoring arrangements for packages 3.8 Plan marketing activities for packages	Client requirements must focus on identified client needs, wants and preferences and will include: • Destination preferences • Budget • Timing and duration issues, including constraints and the need for integration with an associated tour or travel program • Cultural and religious issues • Product and service preferences • Practicality • Service styles and standards • Identified focus for undertaking the trip. Host enterprise requirements may be related to: • Enhancing and expanding product range including product initiatives that conform to business plan and marketing objectives • Profitability • Movement into new target markets • Reputation and image • Business agreements, including franchise and other contractual arrangements • Meeting competition • Involvement of colleagues in determining requirements. Purposes of packages may include: • Conferences • Social events • Holidays and recreation

	• Tour programs including day tours, extended tours, eco-tours, cultural tours and educational tours • Special interest itineraries • Incentives • Series tours. Products and services may relate to supplier, intermediary and/or touring packages promoted in brochures and include: • Accommodation including serviced and non-serviced options • Transport including air, rail, bus/coach and shipping • Hire car including long and short-term rentals • Attractions including natural and man-made • Tours including side trips, one-day and extended tours • Catering including bona fide meals and refreshments • Entertainment including recreational, arts, sports, cultural, music, festivals, and special events • Conference facilities • Specialist services including guides, interpreters, secretarial support, child-minding and security. Sources of information may include: • Suppliers, carriers and providers, including those in distribution networks • Local tourism information centres • Embassies in identified locations/destinations • Local operators including accommodation properties, tours, venues, restaurants and souvenir shops • Tourism authorities including regional, domestic and international

	• Industry associations including industry peak bodies and government authorities and agencies • General literature including trade press, guide books, holiday and destination publications • Internet • Media • Personal visits to destinations and site inspections of attractions, venues and facilities. Research information sources may include: • Undertaking desktop research including internet research and analysis of internal data contained on in-house systems • Analysing existing secondary data including: ▪ Domestic and international visitor statistics on departures, expenditure, visitor nights ▪ Visitor profiles including tourist origins, volume, purpose of trip, seasonality, accommodation, transport and expenditure ▪ Industry and government research reports on industry trends, current development activity and forecasts of future developments ▪ Client feedback ▪ Feasibility studies for new developments or products ▪ Responses to surveys, questionnaires on preferences, needs and current tourist activities • Conducting formal qualitative and quantitative market research including focus groups, surveys and questionnaires to generate primary research data • Considering recent and emerging trends • Using personal network of contacts • Visiting providers, carriers and suppliers • Undertaking personal observation • Soliciting feedback from clients.

	Assess applicability of identified products and services may relate to: • Determining rates, costs, fees, charges, taxes for each package component • Evaluating availability on a short-term and on-going basis, as required by the nature of the package • Calculating return on investment, including consideration of loss leader implications • Assessing compatibility with company image and reputation • Verifying reputation of products and services, including assessment of client perceptions in relation to potential carriers, suppliers, destinations, products and services • Identifying features and benefits, including comparisons with similar packages offered by competitors • Checking match between products/services and identified objectives and client demand/requests for the package • Determining destination characteristics, including accessibility and transport, accommodation and attractions, facilities, seasonal influences, degree of infrastructure, government regulations, special events, supporting venues and human resource potential to deliver required services, promotional potential, existing promotional material, retail outlets and ancillary support services • Legal considerations • Cultural sensitivity. Select products and services may include: • Aligning with identified objectives • Complying with client requirements • Ensuring availability • Negotiating agreements with suppliers, carriers and providers – including obtaining written confirmation • Ensuring value and potential saleability.

	Pre-planning requirements may relate to: • Seasonal influences • Dates of one-off events • Client demand • Position of other packages in terms of product life-cycle • Activities being undertaken by the competition. Components refers to the products and services for individual packages and will relate to: • Inclusion • Exclusions • Add-ons • Available options, including substitutions and alternatives, where applicable. Determine duration for packages may include: • Formulating packages to accommodate differing timelines in order to meet identified client need • Adding and removing inclusions to enable attainment of required duration while still delivering value and enabling saleability of package. • Complying with agreed arrangements with suppliers, providers and carriers. Calculate price points may include: • Analysing prices offered by competition • Determining target market affordability • Ensuring required profit to host enterprise • Identifying what the market will bear • Developing price schedules, including special rates and discounts • Determining host enterprise costs pertaining to package development and delivery • Factoring in commissions.

	Terms and conditions may relate to: • Deposits and full/final payments • Fees and charges, including penalties, terms of payment and timelines for payment • Commissions due or payable • Cancellations and alterations, including timelines and charges • Limitation of liability • Guarantees and warranties • Complaint handling. Draft itinerary may include: • Day destinations • Times • Destinations • Attractions, tours and sight-seeing • Arranged activities • Accommodation • Transport • Transfers. Prepare sales monitoring arrangements may include: • Establishing facilities to record enquiries in relation to packages • Establishing internal systems to record package sales, including location of sale, seller, commissions and options selected • Arranging for sales data to be forwarded from related businesses.

	Plan marketing activities may include: • Organising the launch of the packages • Preparation of point-of-sales advertising material • Organising media promotions, including advertisements, events and competitions • Training sales staff in relation to the packages • Designing client feedback tools. Assessment Guide The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit: • Enterprise policies and procedures in regard to developing packages and entering into agreements with suppliers, providers and carriers including the use of preferred suppliers/providers • Packaging rules as appropriate to the host enterprise and the requirements of allied organisations • Ability to use research, negotiation and analytical techniques • Domestic and international rules, regulations, legislation and practices that apply to package formulation • General industry knowledge of destinations, transport options, accommodation and potential for package-related inclusions suitable for a range of package types. Linkages To Other Units • Access and retrieve computer-based data • Maintain hospitality industry knowledge • Establish and maintain a business relationship • Develop a marketing strategy and coordinate sales activities • Develop new products and services • Gather and present product information

	• Use common business tools and technology • Access and interpret product information • Maintain product information inventory • Source and provide destination information and advice • Maintain contacts with handling agents • Construct and apply tourism product research • Co-ordinate production of brochures and marketing materials • Prepare and submit quotations • Manage and monitor innovative tourism programs and projects • Source and present information. Critical Aspects of Assessment Evidence of the following is essential: • Understanding of rules, regulations, legislation, policies and procedures applicable to package development within the host enterprise • Demonstrated ability to source inclusions for a nominated package type to meet identified needs of a selected target group or individual • Demonstrated ability to create and cost a saleable package to meet identified needs of a selected target group or individual • Demonstrated ability to produce a set of appropriate and cost-effective marketing strategies to support the introduction and on-going sale of a nominated package. Context of Assessment Assessment must ensure: • Actual or simulated workplace application of techniques, strategies and procedures to enable the sourcing of product and service information to enable the development of saleable packages.

	Resource Implications Training and assessment must include the use of real sources of information and systems, both internal and external, including the presence of relevant marketing research information to source products and services that will enable the development of packages to support the operation of the host enterprise; and access to workplace standards, procedures, policies, guidelines, tools and equipment. Assessment Methods The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit: • Observation of practical candidate performance • Project to develop nominated package • Portfolio of research documentation obtained as part of research and sourcing activities • Hard copy description, including itinerary, for a nominated package • Role plays • Oral and written questions • Third party reports completed by a supervisor • Project and assignment work. Slide

Research information sources

Importance of research

- Now that you have identified different tourism businesses that provide tourism products and services that can be included in tourism packages, it is now time to start the research process
- The aim of the research process is to collect accurate and relevant information to meet the needs of the client and any requests they have made

Slide 106

Slide No	Trainer Notes
106.	Class Activity – Discuss Describe the process that you have used in the past when conducting research.

Slide

Research information sources

Research considerations

- The need to identify the research points
- Collecting primary and secondary data
- Recollection of personal observations
- Accessing internal sources of information
- Gathering feedback from customers
- Accessing external sources of information
- Establishing industry networks

Slide 107

Slide No	Trainer Notes
107.	Class Activity – Discuss • What are the activities and benefits for each of these steps?

Slide

Research information sources

Defining the research topic

- The first step is to try to identify exactly where the focus of research and information collection should be concentrated on

Slide 108

Slide No	Trainer Notes
108.	Class Activity – Discuss For a case study of your choice, identify: • Research topics.

Slide

Research information sources

Collect primary and secondary data

Data is a piece of information that can be collected and interpreted by an organisation for their use.

The two most common sources of data are:

- Primary data – collected for a specific purpose
- Secondary data – generic information

Slide 109

Slide No	Trainer Notes
109.	Class Activity – Discuss What are examples of each?

Slide

Primary data

Primary data

Primary research data is newly generated research information that you yourself or the organisation create.

- Customer surveys
- In-house questionnaires and feedback sheets
- Focus groups
- Electronic responses on the website
- Observation

Slide 110

Slide No	Trainer Notes
110.	Class Activity – Discuss • What are other examples of primary data?

Slide

Primary data

Qualitative or quantitative research

Primary data is considered to be either:

- Qualitative research
- Quantitative research

Slide 111

Slide No	Trainer Notes
111.	Class Activity – Discuss • What is the difference between these two types of research?

Slide

Primary data

Qualitative research

- Qualitative research does not look at numbers but tries to find out the reasoning behind certain actions, procedures, activities or ways of thought

Quantitative research

- Quantitative research is market research, based on structured, closed-ended questionnaires, which aims to gather responses that can be summarised in numbers

Slide 112

Slide No	Trainer Notes
112.	Class Activity – Discuss What are examples of each?

Slide

Secondary data

Importance of secondary data

Secondary data is information that already exists.

It just needs to be found:

- What are the benefits of secondary data?
- What are sources of secondary data?

Slide 113

Slide No	Trainer Notes
113.	Class Activity – Discuss • Discuss questions in the slide.

Slide

Secondary data

Types of secondary data

- Domestic and international visitor statistics on departures, expenditure, visitor nights
- Visitor profiles including tourist origins, volume, purpose of trip, seasonality, accommodation, transport and expenditure
- Industry and government research reports on industry trends, current development activity and forecasts of future developments

Slide 114

Slide No

114.

Class Activity – Discuss

- What are the benefits of collecting these pieces of data?
- What other types of secondary data would you collect?

Slide

Secondary data

Types of secondary data

- Client feedback
- Feasibility studies for new developments or products
- Responses to surveys, questionnaires on preferences, needs and current tourist activities

Slide 115

Slide No	Trainer Notes
115.	Class Activity – Discuss • What are the benefits of collecting these pieces of data? • What other types of secondary data would you collect?

Slide

Secondary data

Sources of secondary data

- Government statistics

Class Activity – Discuss

- What information is found from these sources?
- What types of secondary data would you seek?

Slide

Observations

Recollection of personal observations and experiences

- Previous bookings
- Discussions had with previous clients
- Familiarisation tours previously conducted
- Personal notes
- Report and findings
- Log books
- Records of interviews
- Notes of first-hand meetings

Slide 117

Slide No	Trainer Notes
117.	Class Activity – Discuss • Why is this source of information often the most effective?

Slide

Accessing internal information

Arrange to receive internal information

- What types of information can you receive?
- How can you receive the information?

Slide 118

Slide No	Trainer Notes
118.	Class Activity – Discussion Ask general questions: • Discuss the questions in the slide.

Slide

Accessing internal information

Extract data from internal information sources

In the majority of cases, tourism product and service information that is required for possible inclusion tourism packages service activities can be obtained through the investigation and extraction of data from internal information systems:

- What are examples of internal information sources?

Slide 119

Slide No	Trainer Notes
119.	Class Activity – Discuss • Discuss question in the slide.

Slide

Accessing internal information

Types of internal information sources

- Customer databases
- Sales figures and statistics
- Data from sub-agencies and head office
- Customer feedback information
- Automated information systems
- Computerised reservation systems
- Products and services inventories

Slide 120

Slide No	Trainer Notes
120.	Class Activity – Discuss • What information can come from each of these sources?

Slide

Feedback from customers

Gathering information from customers

Feedback from other clients who have experienced a specific tourism product or service firsthand can be invaluable in recommending and finding out accurate information.

How can you gather:

- Formal feedback
- Informal feedback

Slide 121

Slide No	Trainer Notes
121.	Class Activity – Discussion Ask general questions: • Discuss methods of receiving feedback • What are the advantages of getting feedback in this manner?

Slide

Accessing external information

Arrange to receive external information

- Telephoning targeted organisations
- Making face-to-face requests of staff that visit their office
- Making e-mail requests
- Registering to receive information, newsletters and up-dates.
- Paying to receive material
- Asking organisations to forward information

Slide 122

Slide

Visit identified sources

Benefits of visiting identified sources

- Reviewing additional information available at the source
- Get any questions answered
- Identify the potential of informational sources that can be utilised at a later date
- Recording interviews and taking photographs or other recorded images

Slide 125

Slide No	Trainer Notes
125.	Class Activity – Discuss • Discuss these benefits of visiting identified sources.

Slide

Establishing industry networks

Slide

Assess practicality of products and services

Assess applicability of identified products and services to proposed packages

Once you have conducted research and collected a range of possible products and services for inclusion in a tourism package, it is important to assess where they can be included from a practical perspective:

- What needs to be considered from a 'practical' point of view?

Slide 127

Slide No	Trainer Notes
127.	Class Activity – Discussion Ask general questions: Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Assess practicality of products and services

Assess applicability of identified products and services to proposed packages

- Determining rates, costs, fees, charges, taxes for each package component
- Evaluating availability on a short-term and on-going basis, as required by the nature of the package
- Calculating return on investment, including consideration of loss leader implications

Slide 128

Slide

Existing agreements with suppliers

Consider existing agreements and preferred suppliers

- A preferred agreement is a formal commercial agreement between a supplier and a travel agent which facilitates the payment of extra commission and other benefits by the supplier to the travel agent in exchange for the travel agents agreement to sell the suppliers product

Slide 134

Slide No	Trainer Notes
134.	Class Activity – Identify preferred supplier agreement • Trainer to show example of a preferred supplier agreement. • What needs to be considered when developing a preferred supplier agreement?

Slide

Role of suppliers

Identify role of suppliers

- Selling destinations you need
- Selling transport you require
- Selling accommodation style you require
- Selling the appropriate level of comfort and inclusions your client needs
- Having competitive prices and offering value for money for your client

Create packages of products and services

Slide 139

Slide No	Trainer Notes
139.	Introduce topic. Class Activity – General Discussion Ask general questions: • What is associated with creating packages?

Slide

Create packages of products and services

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- Identify pre-planning requirements for packages
- Determine components of individual packages
- Determine duration for packages
- Calculate price points for packages

Slide 140

Slide No	Trainer Notes
140.	Trainer identifies the Performance Criteria for this Element, as listed on the slide.

Slide

Create packages of products and services

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- Develop terms and conditions for the packages
- Prepare draft itinerary for packages
- Prepare sales monitoring arrangements for packages
- Plan marketing activities for packages

Slide 141

Slide No	Trainer Notes
141.	Trainer identifies the Performance Criteria for this Element, as listed on the slide.

Slide

Pre-planning for packages

Importance of pre-planning

As seen in previous sections, there are a number of considerations that must be taken into account before the final tourism products and services for a package have been selected:

- What needs to be planned when constructing packages?
- How should this information be recorded?

Slide 142

Slide No

Class Activity – Questions

- Discuss the questions in the slide.

Slide

Pre-planning for packages

Importance of pre-planning

This section will focus on how to gather and record product information gathered for the inclusion in packages.

Information relating to final travel packages are often given to clients to help them decide suitable travel arrangements in the form of:

- Quotations
- Itineraries

Slide 143

Slide No	Trainer Notes
143.	Class Activity – Questions Briefly introduce the concept of quotations and itineraries.

Slide

Recording packaging information

Purpose of having recording methods

Most travel agencies will use a combination recording system to record:
