Competency Based Training (CBT) and assessment – An introduction for trainers

Competency

Competency refers to the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace.

Competency requires the application of specified knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to effective participation, consistently over time and in the workplace environment.

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined.

Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner.

Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Attitude describes the founding reasons behind the need for certain knowledge or why skills are performed in a specified manner.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves:

- Performing individual tasks
- Managing a range of different tasks
- Responding to contingencies or breakdowns
- Dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace
- Working with others.

Unit of Competency

Like with any training qualification or program, a range of subject topics are identified that focus on the ability in a certain work area, responsibility or function.

Each manual focuses on a specific unit of competency that applies in the hospitality workplace.

In this manual a unit of competency is identified as a 'unit'.

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes:

- Knowledge and skills that underpin competency
- Language, literacy and numeracy
- Occupational safety and health requirements.

Each unit of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Element of Competency

An element of competency describes the essential outcomes within a unit of competency.

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

In this manual elements of competency are identified as an 'element'.

Performance criteria

Performance criteria indicate the standard of performance that is required to demonstrate achievement within an element of competency. The standards reflect identified industry skill needs.

Performance criteria will be made up of certain specified skills, knowledge and attitudes.

Learning

For the purpose of this manual learning incorporates two key activities:

- Training
- Assessment.

Both of these activities will be discussed in detail in this introduction.

Today training and assessment can be delivered in a variety of ways. It may be provided to participants:

- On-the-job – in the workplace
- Off-the-job – at an educational institution or dedicated training environment
- As a combination of these two options.

No longer is it necessary for learners to be absent from the workplace for long periods of time in order to obtain recognised and accredited qualifications.

Learning Approaches

This manual will identify two avenues to facilitate learning:

Competency Based Training (CBT)

This is the strategy of developing a participant's competency.

Educational institutions utilise a range of training strategies to ensure that participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required for successful:

- Completion of the training program or qualification
- Implementation in the workplace.

The strategies selected should be chosen based on suitability and the learning styles of participants.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

This is the strategy of assessing competency of a participant.

Educational institutions utilise a range of assessment strategies to ensure that participants are assessed in a manner that demonstrates validity, fairness, reliability, flexibility and fairness of assessment processes.

Flexibility in Learning

It is important to note that flexibility in training and assessment strategies is required to meet the needs of participants who may have learning difficulties. The strategies used will vary, taking into account the needs of individual participants with learning difficulties. However they will be applied in a manner which does not discriminate against the participant or the participant body as a whole.

Catering for Participant Diversity

Participants have diverse backgrounds, needs and interests. When planning training and assessment activities to cater for individual differences, trainers and assessors should:

- Consider individuals' experiences, learning styles and interests
- Develop questions and activities that are aimed at different levels of ability
- Modify the expectations for some participants
- Provide opportunities for a variety of forms of participation, such as individual, pair and small group activities
- Assess participants based on individual progress and outcomes.

The diversity among participants also provides a good reason for building up a learning community in which participants support each other's learning.

Participant Centred Learning

This involves taking into account structuring training and assessment that:

- Builds on strengths – Training environments need to demonstrate the many positive features of local participants (such as the attribution of academic success to effort, and the social nature of achievement motivation) and of their trainers (such as a strong emphasis on subject disciplines and moral responsibility). These strengths and uniqueness of local participants and trainers should be acknowledged and treasured
- Acknowledges prior knowledge and experience – The learning activities should be planned with participants' prior knowledge and experience in mind
- Understands learning objectives – Each learning activity should have clear learning objectives and participants should be informed of them at the outset. Trainers should also be clear about the purpose of assignments and explain their significance to participants
- Teaches for understanding – The pedagogies chosen should aim at enabling participants to act and think flexibly with what they know
- Teaches for independent learning – Generic skills and reflection should be nurtured through learning activities in appropriate contexts of the curriculum. Participants should be encouraged to take responsibility for their own learning

- Enhances motivation – Learning is most effective when participants are motivated. Various strategies should be used to arouse the interest of participants
- Makes effective use of resources – A variety of teaching resources can be employed as tools for learning
- Maximises engagement – In conducting learning activities, it is important for the minds of participants to be actively engaged
- Aligns assessment with learning and teaching – Feedback and assessment should be an integral part of learning and teaching
- Caters for learner diversity – Trainers should be aware that participants have different characteristics and strengths and try to nurture these rather than impose a standard set of expectations.

Active Learning

The goal of nurturing independent learning in participants does not imply that they always have to work in isolation or solely in a classroom. On the contrary, the construction of knowledge in tourism and hospitality studies can often best be carried out in collaboration with others in the field. Sharing experiences, insights and views on issues of common concern, and working together to collect information through conducting investigative studies in the field (active learning) can contribute a lot to their eventual success.

Active learning has an important part to play in fostering a sense of community in the class. First, to operate successfully, a learning community requires an ethos of acceptance and a sense of trust among participants, and between them and their trainers. Trainers can help to foster acceptance and trust through encouragement and personal example, and by allowing participants to take risks as they explore and articulate their views, however immature these may appear to be. Participants also come to realise that their classmates (and their trainers) are partners in learning and solving.

Trainers can also encourage cooperative learning by designing appropriate group learning tasks, which include, for example, collecting background information, conducting small-scale surveys, or producing media presentations on certain issues and themes. Participants need to be reminded that, while they should work towards successful completion of the field tasks, developing positive peer relationships in the process is an important objective of all group work.

Competency Based Training (CBT)

Principle of Competency Based Training

Competency based training is aimed at developing the knowledge, skills and attitudes of participants, through a variety of training tools.

Training Strategies

The aims of this curriculum are to enable participants to:

- Undertake a variety of subject courses that are relevant to industry in the current environment
- Learn current industry skills, information and trends relevant to industry
- Learn through a range of practical and theoretical approaches
- Be able to identify, explore and solve issues in a productive manner

- Be able to become confident, equipped and flexible managers of the future
- Be 'job ready' and a valuable employee in the industry upon graduation of any qualification level.

To ensure participants are able to gain the knowledge and skills required to meet competency in each unit of competency in the qualification, a range of training delivery modes are used.

Types of Training

In choosing learning and teaching strategies, trainers should take into account the practical, complex and multi-disciplinary nature of the subject area, as well as their participant's prior knowledge, learning styles and abilities.

Training outcomes can be attained by utilising one or more delivery methods:

Lecture/Tutorial

This is a common method of training involving transfer of information from the trainer to the participants. It is an effective approach to introduce new concepts or information to the learners and also to build upon the existing knowledge. The listener is expected to reflect on the subject and seek clarifications on the doubts.

Demonstration

Demonstration is a very effective training method that involves a trainer showing a participant how to perform a task or activity. Through a visual demonstration, trainers may also explain reasoning behind certain actions or provide supplementary information to help facilitate understanding.

Group Discussions

Brainstorming in which all the members in a group express their ideas, views and opinions on a given topic. It is a free flow and exchange of knowledge among the participants and the trainer. The discussion is carried out by the group on the basis of their own experience, perceptions and values. This will facilitate acquiring new knowledge. When everybody is expected to participate in the group discussion, even the introverted persons will also get stimulated and try to articulate their feelings.

The ideas that emerge in the discussions should be noted down and presentations are to be made by the groups. Sometimes consensus needs to be arrived at on a given topic. Group discussions are to be held under the moderation of a leader guided by the trainer. Group discussion technique triggers thinking process, encourages interactions and enhances communication skills.

Role Play

This is a common and very effective method of bringing into the classroom real life situations, which may not otherwise be possible. Participants are made to enact a particular role so as to give a real feel of the roles they may be called upon to play. This enables participants to understand the behaviour of others as well as their own emotions and feelings. The instructor must brief the role players on what is expected of them. The role player may either be given a ready-made script, which they can memorise and enact, or they may be required to develop their own scripts around a given situation. This technique is extremely useful in understanding creative selling techniques and human relations. It can be entertaining and energising and it helps the reserved and less literate to express their feelings.

Simulation Games

When trainees need to become aware of something that they have not been conscious of, simulations can be a useful mechanism. Simulation games are a method based on "here and now" experience shared by all the participants. The games focus on the participation of the trainees and their willingness to share their ideas with others. A "near real life" situation is created providing an opportunity to which they apply themselves by adopting certain behaviour. They then experience the impact of their behaviour on the situation. It is carried out to generate responses and reactions based on the real feelings of the participants, which are subsequently analysed by the trainer.

While use of simulation games can result in very effective learning, it needs considerable trainer competence to analyse the situations.

Individual /Group Exercises

Exercises are often introduced to find out how much the participant has assimilated. This method involves imparting instructions to participants on a particular subject through use of written exercises. In the group exercises, the entire class is divided into small groups, and members are asked to collaborate to arrive at a consensus or solution to a problem.

Case Study

This is a training method that enables the trainer and the participant to experience a real life situation. It may be on account of events in the past or situations in the present, in which there may be one or more problems to be solved and decisions to be taken. The basic objective of a case study is to help participants diagnose, analyse and/or solve a particular problem and to make them internalise the critical inputs delivered in the training. Questions are generally given at the end of the case study to direct the participants and to stimulate their thinking towards possible solutions. Studies may be presented in written or verbal form.

Field Visit

This involves a carefully planned visit or tour to a place of learning or interest. The idea is to give first-hand knowledge by personal observation of field situations, and to relate theory with practice. The emphasis is on observing, exploring, asking questions and understanding. The trainer should remember to brief the participants about what they should observe and about the customs and norms that need to be respected.

Group Presentation

The participants are asked to work in groups and produce the results and findings of their group work to the members of another sub-group. By this method participants get a good picture of each other's views and perceptions on the topic and they are able to compare them with their own point of view. The pooling and sharing of findings enriches the discussion and learning process.

Practice Sessions

This method is of paramount importance for skills training. Participants are provided with an opportunity to practice in a controlled situation what they have learnt. It could be real life or through a make-believe situation.

Games

This is a group process and includes those methods that involve usually fun-based activity, aimed at conveying feelings and experiences, which are everyday in nature, and applying them within the game being played. A game has set rules and regulations, and may or may not include a competitive element. After the game is played, it is essential that the participants be debriefed and their lessons and experiences consolidated by the trainer.

Research

Trainers may require learners to undertake research activities, including online research, to gather information or further understanding about a specific subject area.

Competency Based Assessment (CBA)

Principle of Competency Based Assessment

Competency based assessment is aimed at compiling a list of evidence that shows that a person is competent in a particular unit of competency.

Competencies are gained through a multitude of ways including:

- Training and development programs
- Formal education
- Life experience
- Apprenticeships
- On-the-job experience
- Self-help programs.

All of these together contribute to job competence in a person. Ultimately, assessors and participants work together, through the 'collection of evidence' in determining overall competence.

This evidence can be collected:

- Using different formats
- Using different people
- Collected over a period of time.

The assessor, who is ideally someone with considerable experience in the area being assessed, reviews the evidence and verifies the person as being competent or not.

Flexibility in Assessment

Whilst allocated assessment tools have been identified for this subject, all attempts are made to determine competency and suitable alternate assessment tools may be used, according to the requirements of the participant.

The assessment needs to be equitable for all participants, taking into account their cultural and linguistic needs.

Competency must be proven regardless of:

- Language
- Delivery Method
- Assessment Method.

Assessment Objectives

The assessment tools used for subjects are designed to determine competency against the 'elements of competency' and their associated 'performance criteria'.

The assessment tools are used to identify sufficient:

- a) Knowledge, including underpinning knowledge
- b) Skills
- c) Attitudes

Assessment tools are activities that trainees are required to undertake to prove participant competency in this subject.

All assessments must be completed satisfactorily for participants to obtain competence in this subject. There are no exceptions to this requirement, however, it is possible that in some cases several assessment items may be combined and assessed together.

Types of Assessment

Allocated Assessment Tools

There are a number of assessment tools that are used to determine competency in this subject:

- Work projects
- Written questions
- Oral questions
- Third Party Report
- Observation Checklist.

Instructions on how assessors should conduct these assessment methods are explained in the Assessment Manuals.

Alternative Assessment Tools

Whilst this subject has identified assessment tools, as indicated above, this does not restrict the assessor from using different assessment methods to measure the competency of a participant.

Evidence is simply proof that the assessor gathers to show participants can actually do what they are required to do.

Whilst there is a distinct requirement for participants to demonstrate competency, there are many and diverse sources of evidence available to the assessor.

Ongoing performance at work, as verified by a supervisor or physical evidence, can count towards assessment. Additionally, the assessor can talk to customers or work colleagues to gather evidence about performance.

A range of assessment methods to assess competency include:

- Practical demonstrations
- Practical demonstrations in simulated work conditions
- Problem solving
- Portfolios of evidence
- Critical incident reports
- Journals
- Oral presentations
- Interviews
- Videos
- Visuals: slides, audio tapes
- Case studies
- Log books
- Projects
- Role plays
- Group projects
- Group discussions
- Examinations.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning is the process that gives current industry professionals who do not have a formal qualification, the opportunity to benchmark their extensive skills and experience against the standards set out in each unit of competency/subject.

Also known as a Skills Recognition Audit (SRA), this process is a learning and assessment pathway which encompasses:

- Recognition of Current Competencies (RCC)
- Skills auditing
- Gap analysis and training
- Credit transfer.

Assessing competency

As mentioned, assessment is the process of identifying a participant's current knowledge, skills and attitudes sets against all elements of competency within a unit of competency. Traditionally in education, grades or marks were given to participants, dependent on how many questions the participant successfully answered in an assessment tool.

Competency based assessment does not award grades, but simply identifies if the participant has the knowledge, skills and attitudes to undertake the required task to the specified standard.

Therefore, when assessing competency, an assessor has two possible results that can be awarded:

- Pass Competent (PC)
- Not Yet Competent (NYC)
- Pass Competent (PC).

If the participant is able to successfully answer or demonstrate what is required, to the expected standards of the performance criteria, they will be deemed as 'Pass Competent' (PC).

The assessor will award a 'Pass Competent' (PC) if they feel the participant has the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes in all assessment tasks for a unit.

Not Yet Competent' (NYC)

If the participant is unable to answer or demonstrate competency to the desired standard, they will be deemed to be 'Not Yet Competent' (NYC).

This does not mean the participant will need to complete all the assessment tasks again. The focus will be on the specific assessment tasks that were not performed to the expected standards.

The participant may be required to:

- a) Undertake further training or instruction
- b) Undertake the assessment task again until they are deemed to be 'Pass Competent'.

UNIT TITLE: WORK COOPERATIVELY IN A GENERAL ADMINISTRATION ENVIRONMENT		NOMINAL HOURS: 35
UNIT NUMBER: D1.HGE.CL7.13 D1.HGA.CL6.02
UNIT DESCRIPTOR: This unit deals with the skills and knowledge required to work cooperatively in a general administration environment in a range of settings within the labour divisions of the hotel industries
ELEMENTS AND PERFORMANCE CRITERIA		UNIT VARIABLE AND ASSESSMENT GUIDE
Element 1: Develop effective team relationships 1.1 Develop and maintain relationships with team members and promote benefits of cooperative work consistent with organisational goals and objectives 1.2 Undertake responsibilities and assignments in a positive manner to promote effective relationships within the work group 1.3 Conduct courteous and appropriate communication with others in a manner which reflects sensitivity to individual social and cultural differences in accordance with organisational requirements 1.4 Use appropriate communication techniques to relay information in a clear and concise manner 1.5 Use language and tone appropriate to a particular audience, purpose and situation, taking into account the relevant factors involved 1.6 Recognise and discuss issues that may lead to, or involve conflict with team members, or refer to appropriate persons		Unit Variables The Unit Variables provide advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competence, allowing for differences between enterprises and workplaces. It relates to the unit as a whole and facilitates holistic assessment This unit applies to working cooperatively in a general administration environment within the labour divisions of the hotel and travel industries and may include: 1. Front Office 2. Housekeeping 3. Food and Beverage Service 4. Food Production. Team members may include: • Specific groups of employees assigned to complete designated tasks, or to work together • The organisation as a whole • Individual branches • Individual work sections.

1.7 Complete routine workplace documentation accurately in a timely manner Element 2: Participate in team assignments 2.1 Identify and meet individual responsibilities within the workgroup in accordance with organisational requirements 2.2 Assist team members to ensure efficient and safe completion of assignment instructions and work tasks in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements 2.3 Communicate relevant information to team members to efficiently complete tasks in accordance with assignment goals and objectives 2.4 Provide appropriate assistance to colleagues or seek as required to achieve work tasks within designated timeframes 2.5 Recognise and accommodate cultural differences within the team Element 3: Contribute to team development 3.1 Meet both internal customer and external customer needs and expectations in accordance with organisation standards, policies and procedures and within acceptable time frames 3.2 Give encouragement and support to other team members to identify and organise professional development opportunities 3.3 Seek formal feedback and informal feedback on individual and team performance regularly from colleagues and supervisors to identify and implement improvements to products, services, processes or outcomes	Organisational goals and objectives may include: • Reporting deadlines • Budgetary targets • Team participation • Team and individual learning goals • Professional development. Responsibility may include: • Obeying lawful orders • Confidentiality and privacy requirements • Safety and care with respect to occupational safety and health requirements • Terms and conditions of own employment • Responsibility of providing a safe environment, free from discrimination and sexual harassment. Appropriate communication may be related to: • Using active listening • Using both open and closed questions • Speaking clearly and concisely • Using appropriate language and tone of voice • Being attentive • Maintaining eye contact in face-to face interactions • Using appropriate non-verbal communication in face-to-face interactions, e.g. Body language, attention and personal presentation.

3.4 Maintain personal work standards in a manner that supports the workgroup and organisational requirements 3.5 Make positive contributions to the planning process to improve work practices 3.6 Use non-discriminatory attitudes and language when interacting with customers, staff and management, consistently	Social and cultural differences may be expressed in: • Language • Traditional practices and observations • Beliefs, values, practices • Food, diet • Dress • Religious and spiritual observances • Social conventions • Cultural stereotypes • Conventions of gender/sexuality. Organisational requirements may relate to: • Legal and organisational policy and procedures, including personnel practices and guidelines • Organisational goals, objectives, plans, systems and processes • Legislation relevant to the operation, incident and/or response • Employer and employee rights and responsibilities • Business and performance plans • Policies and procedures relating to own role, responsibility and delegation • Quality and continuous improvement processes and standards • Client service standards • Defined resource parameters. Language and tone may be related to:

	• Using simple, concise language that can be easily understood by the audience • Using appropriate tone, i.e. not patronising, not too loud, not too soft, not yelling, not angry. Conflict may include: • Group conflict • Conflict with individuals • Conflict with co-workers. Appropriate persons may include: • Supervisors, managers • Colleagues • Human resource personnel • Members of the public • Clients. Workplace documentation may include: • Letters • Memos • Faxes • Emails • Invoices and purchase orders • Policies and procedures. Assignment instructions may relate to: • Instructions from client, or supervisor, or management • Assignment objectives and timeframes
--	--

- Work tasks and procedures
 - Resource and equipment requirements
 - Reporting and documentation requirements
 - Personal protective clothing and equipment requirements.
- Legislative and organisational requirements must relate to:*
- Relevant legislation which affects organisational operation such as:
 - Occupational safety and health
 - Equal employment opportunity
 - Industrial relations
 - Anti-discrimination and diversity
 - Licensing arrangements
 - Trade practices
 - Privacy requirements
 - Confidentiality.
 - Environmental issues
 - Quality assurance and certification requirements
 - Relevant industry codes of practice
 - Award and enterprise agreements.
- Communicate relevant information may include:*
- Clarifying the organisation's preferred task completion methods
 - Encouraging team members
 - Potential hazards or changing occupational safety and health (OSH) requirements
 - Acknowledging satisfactory performance

	• Acknowledging unsatisfactory performance. Assistance may involve: • Providing back-up support • Explaining, clarifying • Problem solving • Providing encouragement • Providing feedback to another team member • Undertaking extra tasks, if necessary. Cultural differences may include: • Forms of address • Levels of formality, or informality • Non-verbal behaviour • Work ethics • Personal grooming • Family obligations • Recognised holidays • Special needs • Preferences for personal interactions. Internal customer may include: • Colleagues working in another department • Team members • Supervisor or managers.

External customer may include:

- Suppliers
- People who buy the goods and services the enterprise sells.

Organisation standards, policies and procedures may include:

- Complaints procedures
- Organisational standard report forms
- Job descriptions
- Code of ethics
- Quality systems, standards and guidelines.

Professional development opportunities may include:

- Coaching, mentoring and/or supervision
- Formal and/or informal learning programs
- Internal and/or external training provision
- Work experience and exchange opportunities
- Personal study
- Career planning and development
- Performance appraisals
- Workplace skills assessment
- Quality assurance assessments and recommendations.

Formal feedback may include:

- 360-degree assessment
- Customer satisfaction surveys/forms

	• Team evaluations • Performance reviews/appraisals • Workplace assessment. Informal feedback may include: • Critical incident reviews • Impromptu questioning of customers to obtain view of products and/or service provided • Chance discussions with customers • Coaching and mentoring • Seeking the opinions of others • Comments from supervisors, colleagues or clients • Personal, reflective behaviour strategies. Non-discriminatory attitudes and language may include: • Language in relation to race and ethnicity • Not making assumptions about physical or intellectual abilities • The use of non-discriminatory language in relation to the portrayal of people with disabilities • Using non-sexist and gender inclusive language. Assessment Guide The following skills and knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit: • Ability to apply the principles of effective communication skills • Ability to use active listening, feedback techniques and team building techniques to build and maintain interpersonal relationships within a designated work group or team
--	---

- Ability to identify the need(s) and concerns of others
- Knowledge of and ability to process a complaint or feedback in accordance with the enterprise's policies and procedures in regard to resolving complaints and conflict
- Ability to recommend appropriate action arising from a complaint or problem
- Ability to communicate effectively with a range of people relevant to position and role
- Ability to respond appropriately to both face-to-face and written requests.

Linkages To Other Units

- Manage and resolve conflict situations
- Perform clerical procedures
- Provide professional support to business colleagues
- Work in a socially diverse environment.

Critical Aspects of Assessment

Evidence of the following is essential:

- Demonstrated ability to apply active listening techniques
- Demonstrated ability to use effective communication skills to build and maintain interpersonal relationships within a designated work group or team
- Demonstrated ability to apply the principles of good teamwork to assist self and others to complete assignments within designated timeframes
- Demonstrated ability to interpret and comply with a range of legislative and procedural requirements relevant to security operations
- Demonstrated ability to actively seek and interpret feedback on quality of work performance and identify opportunities for professional development to develop and improve future career options

	• Demonstrated ability to communicate in a clear, concise and accurate manner which reflects sensitivity to individual social and cultural differences. Context of Assessment This unit may be assessed on or off the job • Assessment should include practical demonstration of working cooperatively in a general administration environment either in the workplace or through a simulation activity, supported by a range of methods to assess underpinning knowledge • Assessment must relate to the individual's work area or area of responsibility • Assessment must include project or work activities that allow the candidate to respond to multiple and varying team situations relevant to work area, job role and area of responsibility. Resource Implications Training and assessment to include access to a real or simulated workplace; and access to workplace standards, procedures, policies, guidelines, tools and equipment. Assessment Methods The following methods may be used to assess competency for this unit: • Case studies • Observation of practical candidate performance • Oral and written questions • Portfolio evidence • Problem solving • Role plays • Third party reports completed by a supervisor • Project and assignment work.

Key Competencies in this Unit*Level 1 = competence to undertake tasks effectivelyLevel 2 = competence to manage tasksLevel 3 = competence to use concepts for evaluating*

Key Competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	0	Obtain feedback on individual and team work performance
Communicating ideas and information	2	Use positive communication techniques to build interpersonal relationships
Planning and organising activities	2	Identify the most appropriate way to respond to feedback
Working with others and in teams	2	Respond to internal and external customer requests
Using mathematical ideas and techniques	0
Solving problems	2	Apply conflict resolution and communication skills to resolve conflict and/or misunderstandings
Using technology	0

Teamwork

Teamwork is classified as the collective actions towards a number of people towards a collective goal.

In a hospitality or tourism organisation, no one person can meet the needs of all customers.

It requires the collective efforts of many people to achieve success.

Slide

Teamwork

Whilst each business will have a range of goals, in essence the primary goal is to:

- Provide an enjoyable experience for customers
- For a reasonable return on investment
- In a safe and lawful manner

Team

A team is often characterised through:

- Having a common goal
- Work interdependently
- Independent job functions
- Enjoy working
- Accountability
- Empowerment
- Understand the importance of teams

Slide 10

Slide No	Trainer Notes
10.	A team is often characterised through: • Having a common goal – it is important all staff not only identify the goal, but why it is important • Work interdependently with each other – the actions of one person impacts other staff • Independent job functions – whilst staff are working together, they perform different roles and have different activities. Staff must understand how their actions contribute to the greater good of the team • Enjoy working together – this may be hard with different personalities, however in most cases people enjoy working together. Get staff involved in activities where they can find out more about each other • Accountability - staff will not only have their own responsibilities, but will also have collective responsibilities • Empowerment – staff have their own power to act and make decisions • Understand the importance of teams.

Factors influencing team structure

Teams are commonly created based on a number of factors including, but not limited to:

- Organisational structure
- Purpose of the business
- Company culture
- Types of departments
- Degree of service provided
- Service style

Slide 11

Slide No	Trainer Notes

12.	Discussion Discuss the different types of teams and how they are formed.

Slide

Context for Front Office

Workers in the Front Office need to be aware:

- People see Front Office as the nerve centre of the business
- They are expected to be efficient and effective in gathering and disseminating information
- It is critical to develop a good working relationship with all other venue departments
- Front Office plays an important role as a central 'clearing house' for establishment information

Slide

Team purpose and responsibilities

Types of responsibilities

- Targets, goals and objectives
- Reporting deadlines
- Meeting budgetary targets
- Team participation
- Team and individual learning goals
- Professional development

Slide 15

Slide No	Trainer Notes
15.	Discussion • Discuss the importance of these responsibilities? • What other ones may exist?

Slide

Purpose of work groups

- A team is brought together to serve a purpose. This purpose normally has defined objectives or goals in which it is aiming to achieve
- In order to achieve these goals, each person within the team will have set roles and responsibilities in which they are expected to understand and undertake

Slide 16

Slide No	Trainer Notes
16.	Discussion • What roles and responsibilities does each team member have towards meeting overall team goals? • How are these defined? • What are the advantages and disadvantages of having work groups?

Slide

Workgroups

Workgroups

- A workgroup is the most common structure for people to work together
- A workgroup is one where people have a common ground for working
- Individuals are given a specific set of responsibilities and roles or tasks that when the individual efforts are put together, creates a total output

Slide 17

Importance of communication

- When providing support to others, especially when sharing knowledge it is vital that you have good communication skills
- It is no point providing verbal support, if the recipient does not understand what you are trying to say, or if the message is communicated incorrectly
- It is important that all of these communications are conducted in a polite, professional, clear and concise manner

Slide

Communicating in a diverse environment

Verbal and non verbal communication

Keys in factoring in appropriate verbal and non-verbal communication when dealing with people from another culture include:

- Identify the country and culture
- Take time to plan what to say and how to say it
- Be mindful of your body language
- Avoid industry and establishment jargon

Slide 26

- This section will explore the different types of communication that can be used in a general administration environment

Slide 29

Slide No	Trainer Notes
29.	Class Activity – Discussion • How do we communicate? • What are the different types of communication? • What are some tips to remember to make communication clear and concise?

Slide

Types of communication

Basic communication options include:

- Verbal
- Written format
- Non-verbal
- Use of an interpreter

Slide 30

Slide No	Trainer Notes
30.	There are a variety of communications mediums used in the industry. Some may be specific to a particular establishment or industry sector, and others are quite general across all industry types and venues. The basic communication options include: • Verbal –including face-to-face communication and talking on the phone. This also embraces the use of languages other than English and the use of Indigenous languages • Written format – which includes electronic mail and hard copy communications such as letters, signs, labels, posters and advertising and warning material • Non-verbal – facial expressions, gestures, sign language • Use of an interpreter to interpret verbal and printed language.

Slide

Effective communication

To help ensure your communication is polite, professional and friendly, the following tips will assist:

- Follow all establishment policies
- Use a person's name where it is known
- Be honest
- Use 'please' and 'thank you' a lot

Slide 31

Slide No	Trainer Notes
31.	To help ensure communication is polite, professional and friendly, the following tips will assist: • Follow all establishment policies regarding communication with customers and colleagues. These may exist for greeting customers, interacting with staff and answering the phone • Use a person's name where it is known • Be honest – but be sensitive, tactful, caring and respectful • Use 'please' and 'thank you' a lot.

Slide

Effective communication

- Don't interrupt
- Speak at an appropriate pace and volume
- Make sure your non-verbal language matches the verbal communication

Slide 32

Slide No	Trainer Notes
32.	To help ensure communication is polite, professional and friendly, the following tips will assist: • Don't interrupt • Speak at an appropriate pace and volume – don't yell, don't whisper • Make sure your non-verbal language matches the verbal communication you are sending. This commonly means smiling when it is appropriate to do so, and displaying a serious demeanour when something serious is being discussed.

Slide

Written communication

- Use graphics or pictures
- Use different languages
- Easy to read
- Encourages people to read it
- Be available in 'take away' form

Slide 33

Slide No	Trainer Notes
33.	This means that in some instances, written communication may need to: • Use graphics or pictures to help clarify meaning • Be produced in a language other than English • Be printed in a font that is easy to read and in a print size that encourages people to read it • Be available in 'take away' form so that people can take a copy with them to read later and or in more detail. Class Activity – General Discussion & Review • Discuss ways written communication can be improved in a hotel • Audience to collect and discuss examples different businesses do to enhance their message through written documentation.

Slide

Effective listening

- Encourages others to fully transmit their message by indicating our interest and concern
- Ensured receiver has all the relevant facts
- Improves relationships
- Assists in problem resolution
- Proper understanding between people
- Reduces many conflicts
- Improves staff morale
- Raises workplace productivity

- When is a good time to use closed questions?

Slide 39

Slide No	Trainer Notes
39.	Class Activity – General Discussion Get the audience to identify times and to develop a list of suitable closed questions they could ask to a variety of scenarios.

Slide

Open questions

These are questions that probe the talker for more information and encourage them to supply further detail.

They are questions that begin with:

- What
- Why
- How
- Where
- When

Slide 40

Slide No	Trainer Notes
40.	Class Activity – General Discussion Get the audience to develop a list of suitable open questions they could ask to a variety of scenarios. In teams get audience to continue a conversation just using open questions, with the aim of not actually answering a question. This will make audience members to think about possible questions they could ask.

Slide

Non-verbal communication

Non-verbal communication includes:

- Body Language
- Facial expressions
- Eye contact
- Gestures
- Posture

Slide 41

Slide No	Trainer Notes
41.	Discuss each point identifying how these can be used to relay a message. Class Activity – Activity Get the audience to demonstrate a range of different communications using each of the points mentioned in this slide to depict a range of emotions.

Slide

Non verbal communication

Non-verbal communication is anything other than words that communicates a message.

- The way we stand
- The way we talk
- The clothes we wear and the accessories we use
- Our facial expressions

Slide 42

Slide No	Trainer Notes
42.	Discuss point. Class Activity – General Discussion For each of the points identify different ways you can use this non-verbal communication to give different messages.

Slide

Non verbal communication

Five aspects of non-verbal communication:

- Emblems
- Illustrators
- Affect displays
- Regulators
- Adaptors

Slide 43

Slide No	Trainer Notes
43.	Major aspects of non-verbal communication Five distinct aspects of non-verbal communication have been identified. Emblems These are the explicit type of gestures/body language that are used with complete intention, and whose meanings are generally accepted and understood. Examples are: • Cupping the hand to the ear to indicate 'I can't hear you' • Holding the forefinger vertically in front of the lips to indicate 'Shhh, be quiet'. Illustrators These are mannerisms that are unique to individuals. They are what people do when talking. They are used to reinforce the verbal message they are sending. They are usually related to the use of the hands, but they also include things that mark a person's speech, such as the way one person may end a sentence, pauses in their speech, and emphasises words. While these mannerisms are individualistic, the people are usually not aware that they do them until they see themselves on video-tape or hear themselves on audio-tape.

Affect displays

These are the ways in which our facial expressions or our body movements reveal our emotions.

In everyday life, people tend not to monitor or intentionally control their affect displays. Their true emotions are allowed to show.

In certain workplace situations however, staff may be required to display emotions that are contrary to their real feelings.

This is the case where staff primarily have customer-contact that requires them to smile all the time and present themselves as happy and nice when they may even feel the opposite.

Regulators

Everyone expresses themselves using regulators.

They are behaviours such as:

- Nods
- Stance
- The direction and the duration of someone's gaze
- Vocal pitch
- Raised eyebrows
- The position/inclination of the head.

These behaviours regulate the verbal message, for instance, making it stronger or gentler, more authoritative or friendlier, casual or more formal. Just like illustrators, regulators are hardly noticed by the person speaking, but they are certainly noticed by others.

Adaptors

These are unconscious behaviours that are mainly nervous in nature.

People are generally unaware of making them.

Examples are:

- Doodling during meetings
- Itching your nose in a meeting
- Picking your nails in a meeting
- Scratching.

Slide

Language and tone

When communicating with others it is vital to make sure that the language and tone is appropriate to the nature of each individual communication.

- What is appropriate language?
- What is appropriate tone?

Slide 44

Slide No	Trainer Notes
44.	This highlights that many communications need to be undertaken taking into account the context in which each communication occurs. This means there is a need to modify most communications to suit the individual set of circumstances that apply, and to take into account the individual with whom the communication is taking place.

Slide

Language and tone

Language

Language refers to the choice of words that are communicated with another.

- How can we ensure language is appropriate in a conversation?

Slide 45

Slide No	Trainer Notes
----------	---------------

45.

Discuss the question in the slide.

Slide

Language and tone

Tone

- Not only is the choice of words appropriate, but also how it is said. This is tone
- The correct use of tone of voice has a greater impact in communication than we realise
- The way a message is sent is often just as important as the content and language of the message itself

Slide 46

Slide No	Trainer Notes
46.	Discussion • How can you change tone?

Slide

Conflict with colleagues

Some reasons include:

- Pressure of work
- Lack of, or bad communication
- Prejudices
- Ineffective working systems
- Difference in opinions
- Difference in beliefs
- Misunderstanding
- Team member not pulling their weight

- What are common warning signs?
- What warning signs do you personally have if you have conflict with someone else?

Slide 50

Slide No	Trainer Notes
50.	Class Activity – General Discussion Discuss the questions in the slide.

Slide

Colleague warning signs

- Avoid verbal and visual contact
- Indulge in negative facial expressions
- Make negative remarks
- Make rude gestures or remarks

Slide 51

Slide No	Trainer Notes
51.	Trainer presents possible warning signs: • Avoid verbal and visual contact – taking breaks in physically different areas, avoiding walking down the same corridor, asking for shifts that help avoid the chance of contact, sitting so that the other person is not in the direct line of sight • Indulge in negative facial expressions – the person may sneer your way, roll their eyes and shake their head slowly from side-to-side, or purse their lips • Make negative remarks – this can spill over into areas that are outside the initial cause of the conflict. For example, a staff member may be annoyed that you didn't help doing the cleaning up after a function. Their perception was that you are a slacker, you are lazy and not a team player • The truth is that the boss told you to go home because you had been at work for twelve hours that day, and were required back early the following day. The negative remarks will not stop at your perceived laziness, but will usually involve unrelated areas such as your attitude, your relationships with others, your personal habits, and so on • Make rude gestures or remarks – these can be offensive remarks (perhaps of a sexual nature) or finger and forearm gestures designed to convey a specific message.

Slide

Resolving misunderstandings

Actions that can help resolve the situation

This may involve you in:

- Discussing the issue in a courteous manner
- Speaking directly with the person concerned in a respectful way
- Apologising for offence or misunderstanding that may have been caused
- Taking time to talk with the person concerned
- Asking for advice from the other party

Slide

Refer issues and problems

Who should problems be referred to?

Depending on the establishment, and its organisational structure, the appropriate person could be:

- Colleagues
- Your team leader
- Your supervisor
- The manager
- Human Resources personnel
- The owner
- Members of the public
- Clients

Slide 55

Slide

Participate in team assignments

Performance Criteria for this Element are:

- Identify and meet individual responsibilities within the workgroup in accordance with organisational requirements ✓
- Assist team members to ensure efficient and safe completion of assignment instructions and work tasks in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements ✓
- Communicate relevant information to team members to efficiently complete tasks in accordance with assignment goals and objectives ✓

Slide

Identify individual responsibilities

Role of teams and individuals

- Each team or group will have a purpose for its existence, with a set of objectives it is trying to achieve
- Naturally each group will have people who have been chosen for a reason
- Each of these people will have their own strengths and weaknesses

Slide 65

Slide No	Trainer Notes
65.	Discussion • How team members are normally selected? • What is the benefit of having people with different strengths and weaknesses? Group Activity • Group to undertake a 'get to know each other' game. This is designed to identify strengths of people in a group, which they may not have previously known • Get each member to write three things about themselves which they are good at and place in a hat • Trainer to pull out and read • Group must try to identify the person.

Slide

Identify individual responsibilities

Benefits of using a team decision making approach

- A more effective, operational team
- A department where nothing is too much trouble
- More harmony and fewer disputes amongst staff
- A far better working environment
- Less clock watching, and more pats on the back
- More innovative and creative ideas
- More learning
- Higher levels of achievement

Slide 66

Slide No	Trainer Notes
66.	Discussion about the benefits of group decision making • A more effective, operational team • A department where nothing is too much trouble – whether or not it is a customer or management who makes the request • More harmony and fewer disputes amongst staff • A far better working environment where you will be inclined to take less time off, and where you will actually look forward to going to work • Less clock watching, and more pats on the back – from management and patrons • More innovative and creative ideas – a situation will emerge where you are encouraged to try out new (but nonetheless intelligent ideas and concepts • More learning – not just about the establishment and the industry, but also about co-workers, group dynamics and interpersonal relationships • Higher levels of achievement than anyone thought possible – the power of ten people is far greater than 10 individuals, and there is also the momentum and power that a group decision brings with it.

Slide

Identify individual responsibilities

Need for inclusion and cooperation

When identifying the individual roles and responsibilities, it is essential that not only do team members:

- Understand what they are required to do
- Accept it
- Willing to take ownership

Discussion the benefits and input others can provide when identifying roles and responsibilities • Management, supervisors or business owners – who can supply input regarding staffing levels, priorities, immediate workplace need etc • People from other departments with which you have contact – these people may be management level or they may be operational staff/workers • Customers – who may be in the workplace and who have made special requests etc for the upcoming work period • Administration staff – who may provide details regarding bookings/reservations or details of other work tasks from other areas that need to be integrated into the work of your team. Administration staff may also provide necessary resources or authorisations to enable the work to be done.

Slide

Ensure completion of tasks

Importance of completing tasks

- Within the overall context of team goals, you will have individual tasks that you will be required to complete
- If you fail to complete your individual tasks then the possibility is that the team will fail to achieve its overall objectives

Slide 71

Slide No	Trainer Notes
71.	Discussion • Why is it important to complete tasks? • How does it affect others if they are not done? • How can you ensure they are completed in a timely manner?

Slide

Ensure completion of tasks

Assignment instructions

- Instructions from client, or supervisor, or management
- Assignment objectives and timeframes
- Work tasks and procedures
- Resource and equipment requirements
- Reporting and documentation requirements
- Personal protective clothing and equipment requirements

Slide 72

Slide No	Trainer Notes
72.	Discussion • Discuss these assignment instructions? • What other ones are common?

Slide

Ensure completion of tasks

Comply with legislative and organisational requirements

- Occupational Health and Safety
- Environmental issues
- Quality assurance and certification requirements
- Relevant industry Codes of Practice

Slide 73

Slide No	Trainer Notes
73.	Discussion about complying with legal requirements • Discuss the importance of these legal requirements • Why is it important that these are followed? • What are the consequences if they are not followed? ▪ Occupational Safety and Health ▪ Equal employment opportunity ▪ Industrial relations ▪ Anti-discrimination and diversity ▪ Licensing arrangements ▪ Trade practices ▪ Privacy requirements ▪ Confidentiality ▪ Environmental issues ▪ Quality assurance and certification requirements ▪ Relevant industry Codes of Practice ▪ Award and enterprise agreements.

Slide

Prioritise work activities

Prioritising your tasks means that you will have to determine which tasks are the:

- Most important and should be done first
- Which ones can be left until later

Slide 74

Slide No	Trainer Notes
74.	Class Activity – General discussion In your past experience: • What work activities to you need to do on a daily basis? • How do you prioritise your work activities? • Are you good at managing your time? • If so, how do you do it? • If not, why not and how could you be better at it? • Do you procrastinate? Why?

Slide

Completing work activities

- Work quickly
- Practice being interrupted
- Practice tact and diplomacy
- Take a minute to plan and prioritise
- Ask for help where required

Slide 75

Slide No

Trainer Notes

75.

Tips to make this happen are:

- Work quickly – get as much done as fast as possible in keeping with quality, safety, house standards or noise. The point being that you can't afford to dawdle or waste time
- Practice being interrupted – accept that many of the things you start will not be able to be completed without interruption, so work with that understanding. The fact that you get interrupted demonstrates that there are people there for you to serve. The real worry would be if you had no-one to interrupt you!
- Practice tact and diplomacy – there will be instances where you simply can't stop what you are doing to do something else, so you must develop a set of responses that lets the customer know you are busy but you will be with them very shortly
- Take a minute to plan and prioritise – too many people just jump in and start their work without planning and without giving their tasks a priority order. A minute spent working out what to do first, second or third, is time well spent as it forces you to identify why tasks have the urgency you allocate to them. It makes you justify to yourself why things should be done in a certain order
- Ask for help where required.

Slide

Encouragement and motivation

- In essence motivation can be defined as 'getting people to do something, because they want to do it'
- Motivation only works when the actual people involved want to succeed

Slide 76

Slide No	Trainer Notes
76.	Class Activity – Questions • What is the difference between encouragement and motivation? • How can you encourage someone? Who normally does this? • How can you motivate someone? Who normally does this?

Slide

Encouragement and motivation

Methods of encouragement

- Show genuine interest
- Appreciate their efforts
- Know the power of encouragement
- Understand what encourages you and others
- Appreciate the value in others

Slide 77

Slide No

Trainer Notes

77.

Class Activity – Questions

How else can you encourage someone?

- Show genuine interest – take the time to understand what others are doing. By understanding what they do, you can appreciate the effort they have put in
- Appreciate their efforts – by knowing what people are actually doing, you can provide specific examples of great effort. This is more powerful than general appreciation
- Know the power of encouragement – remember how you felt when someone encouraged you. Reciprocate this action
- Understand what encourages you and others – by understanding what encourages you to perform, it can help gain an insight what might also encourage others
- Appreciate the value in others – everyone has unique qualities. Remind them of their unique characteristics.

Slide

Encouragement and motivation

Methods of encouragement

- Share encouraging and positive thoughts
- Think of the end in mind
- 'No pain, no gain'
- You are in this together
- Tell them how they have encouraged you

Slide 78

Slide No	Trainer Notes
78.	Class Activity – Questions How else can you encourage someone? • Share encouraging and positive thoughts – when you feel encouraged or have something positive to contribute, share it. Positivity is just as infectious and powerful as negativity • Think of the end in mind – keep reminding yourself and others, that 'every cloud has a silver lining'. If things are tough, whether professionally or personally, keep the end in mind and keep reminding yourself and others the hard times will pass • 'No pain, no gain' – like with all great rewards, you first have to go through an element of hardship • You are in this together – remember you are a team. What one person feels, others feel. What one person is doing, others are also doing. Help each other. No-one is alone • Tell them how they have encouraged you – if someone needs encouragement, you may like to remind them of a time when they encouraged you.

Slide

Encouragement and motivation

Methods of motivation:

- Start by self motivation
- Share information
- Listen and incorporate ideas
- Ownership
- Set mutually agreeable goals

Slide 79

Slide No	Trainer Notes
79.	Class Activity – Questions How else can you motivate someone? • Start by self motivation – in order to motivate others, you firstly must be motivated yourself. Identify what motivates you and then start to consider what will motivate others • Share information - get people involved and give them all the facts • Listen and incorporate ideas – listen to what people have to say. The more ideas the better the chance to find the right one • Ownership – if people feel like they have some element of control and ownership over a situation, they are more likely to strive to complete a task • Set mutually agreeable goals – if everyone has a say in what is to be achieved they are more likely to strive towards the accomplishment of it.

Slide

Encouragement and motivation

Methods of motivation:

- Keep things informal
- Identify achievements
- Encourage people to try
- Be positive
- Listen, respect and support people
- Have meaningful rewards

Slide 80

Slide No	Trainer Notes
80.	Class Activity – Questions How else can you motivate someone? • Keep things informal – whilst it is important to retain structure and formality, the more you can give the appearance of informality, the more comfortable people will feel • Identify achievements – whenever achievements or milestones have been reached, let people know and celebrate success • Encourage people to try – mistakes will happen. Don't blame people for mistakes or failures that take place if they have truly tried. You must give people the ability to try new things without fear of punishment if it doesn't work out • Be positive – as mentioned before, the more positive you can be, with a focus on successes of individuals or groups, the more positive others will be • Listen, respect and support people – this manual is focused on the concept and importance of support. It is a truly powerful tool. If people can work together, great things are possible • Have meaningful rewards – it is important that people have something to strive for, some carrot at the end of the stick. Remember people are motivated by different things so it is important to recognise individual and groups needs.

Slide

Monitoring completion of work activities

Basic techniques to monitor performance

- Visual observation of staff practice
- Analysis of documentation
- Discussions with relevant people
- Use of checklists

Slide 83

Slide No	Trainer Notes
83.	Class Activity – Discuss basic techniques to monitor performance • Visual observation of staff practice – to see if their performance matches the required standards and, if not, to what degree there is a variance • Analysis of documentation – such as calculating the extent to which targets (materials cost, waste, profit, rooms serviced, labour cost etc.) have been achieved for the period in question • Discussions with relevant people – these could be other staff members, other supervisors, customers, trainers, and suppliers. Anyone impacted by the employee whose performance is being monitored are possible ‘relevant people’.

Slide

Role of support

- Support is a two way street and who provides or receives support will change depending on what is required to effectively handle each situation
- It is not uncommon for one specific person to be both the provider and the recipient of support, in different situations
- As mentioned, everyone has different skill sets, knowledge and experiences, and these will be called upon at different times

Class Activity – Questions

- When was a time when you provided and received support?

Slide

Types of support

There are a number of resources that can be used to help support a colleague including:

- Physical support
- Intellectual support
- Financial support
- Infrastructural support
- Resources support
- Mentoring

Slide 91

Slide No	Trainer Notes
91.	Class Activity – Questions Which type of support is most common and why? • Physical support – skill sets and actual physical help whether it be lifting, carrying, pushing or pulling • Intellectual support – frameworks, documents, files, knowledge and advice • Financial support – money needed to be able to undertake an activity • Infrastructural support – physical items including buildings, equipment, furnishing, fittings and fixtures • Resources support – food, beverages, uniforms, stationary and other supplies • Mentoring – advice and guidance.

Slide

Providing support & assistance

What is the difference between providing 'assistance' and 'support'?

Slide 92

Slide No	Trainer Notes
92.	There is no set answer here but is a great discussion point to get the audience thinking about the concept.

Slide

Providing assistance to others

In the same way that you may need help from others, you must be similarly prepared to render assistance to others when it is called for.

- What assistance can you provide?

Slide 93

Slide No

Trainer Notes

93.

Class Activity – General discussion

In your past experience:

- When have you given assistance to someone else before?
- Why did they need it?
- How did you feel when you were asked?

Slide

Types of assistance

Assistance is a form of support which a person can give to another and include, but is certainly not limited to:

- Providing back-up support
- Explaining, clarifying
- Problem solving
- Providing encouragement
- Providing feedback to another team member
- Undertaking extra tasks, if necessary

Slide 94

Slide No	Trainer Notes
94.	Class Activity – Questions What is the difference between support and assistance?

Slide

Providing support to others

Support and assistance is quite similar and often the two are interlinked.

Simply, where assistance may require you to undertake some activities on their behalf, support may involve:

- Providing guidance
- Offering encouragement
- Making recommendations or suggestions for improvement

Slide 95

Slide No	Trainer Notes

Slide

Identifying need for support

Signs of identifying the need for support

- Observation
- Staff behaviour
- Direct request from a person
- Customer complaints
- Productivity reports
- New tasks or job role

Slide 96

Slide No	Trainer Notes
96.	Class Activity – Questions How else can you identify when someone needs support? • Observation – viewing an inability of a person to undertake job tasks or constantly making mistakes • Staff behaviour – they may be reluctant, frustrated, stressed or not motivated in starting or completing a task • Direct request from a person – whether a direct request or repeating asking for help • Customer complaints – customers may have complained about a person's behaviour or performance • Productivity reports – reports may show that a person is unable to perform tasks to a set quality or quantity standard • New tasks or job role – new tasks and responsibilities may require staff to receive additional resources or training.

Slide

People who provide support

- There are a number of people who will provide support to others
- Support is the provision of some area of assistance or expertise one person may have which can help others complete their tasks

Slide 97

Slide No	Trainer Notes

Slide

People who provide support

- Owners to managers
- Support departments to outlets
- Managers to supervisors
- Managers and supervisors to staff
- Staff to staff
- Staff to managers and supervisors
- Customers to managers, supervisors and staff

Slide 98

Slide No	Trainer Notes
98.	Class Activity – Questions • What are different types of support provided in each of these scenarios?

Slide

Timing and support

- Our industry is one that is very much time oriented. Customers and other staff will rely on individuals to get nominated work finished by a set time
- Customers expect service, food, drinks or rooms cleaned by a set time and when this doesn't happen their satisfaction levels drop
- At times, outlets have 'rushes' where support is needed

Slide 99

Slide No

Trainer Notes

99.

Class Activity – Questions

- What 'rushes' occur in different departments?
- What times do they normally occur?
- Why do they normally occur?
- What support is required?
- Where can it come from?

Slide

Timing and support

Examples of 'rushes'

- The arrival of a coach of tourists who all require a quick check-in and their luggage portered to rooms
- A group arrival in the restaurant – all needing to be seated, supplied with their first drink, and have their order taken
- A sudden rush in the retail shop
- The first half hour of trade when the nightclub opens
- That one day when every room service breakfast has been requested at 8.30am

Slide 100

Slide

Cultural differences in teams

The hospitality and tourism industries boast staff from a variety of backgrounds.

This often means you will be working with people from different cultures.

This means to recognise and accommodate relevant cultural differences.

Slide 101

Slide No	Trainer Notes
101.	Class Activity – General discussion • What is a 'cultural difference'? • What cultural differences exist in your team (or a team in which you have been a part of)? • What problems or differences did they cause? • How were they overcome?

Slide

Types of cultural differences

Cultural differences may include:

- Forms of address
- Levels of formality, or informality
- Non-verbal behaviour
- Work ethics
- Personal grooming
- Family obligations
- Recognised holidays
- Special needs preferences for personal interactions

Slide 102

Slide No	Trainer Notes
102.	Class Activity – General discussion • What considerations need to be recognised in relation to these cultural differences? • Provide examples of each of these cultural differences and how they can impact on a team?

Slide

Accommodating cultural differences

- Creating a climate of tolerance
- Implementing team building exercises
- Providing training and education
- Providing mediation and counseling

Slide 103

Slide No	Trainer Notes
103.	Explain how to accommodate cultural differences: • Creating a climate of tolerance within the department – that will help cushion any misunderstandings that may actually occur • Implementing team building exercises – to foster and extend trust and understanding • Providing training and education – to help make all staff more culturally aware. Cultural awareness training is a common topic in many businesses that employ people from a diversity of cultures, or where the enterprise deals with customers from a variety of cultures • Providing mediation and counselling – to assist in retrieving situations where misunderstanding occurs or conflict already exists.

Slide

Internal customer

An 'internal' customer is anyone who is associated with the provision of services to customers.

In summary this includes:

- Management and staff of the organisation
- Suppliers and contractors who provide services to your organisation

Slide 109

Class Activity – General discussion

For each of the points in this slide, identify needs each may have and how you, as a hospitality business, can meet these needs.

Slide

External customer

An 'external' customer is anyone who receives the products and services provided by the organisation.

In summary this includes:

- Customers who enjoy the 'offerings' at the venue
- Customers who enjoy the 'offerings' that are supplied to them, at a location not at the venue

Slide

Internal customer needs

- Knowledge
- Skills
- Training
- Equipment
- Time
- Appropriate allocation of work
- Support
- Fairness

Slide 112

Slide No	Trainer Notes
112.	These needs include: • Knowledge – understand and perform their job role, product knowledge, menu knowledge, external customer preferences, upcoming events, policies and procedures and schedule of events for particular shifts • Skills – the ability to practically perform selected tasks including making beds, cooking meals and checking in guests • Training – both practical and theoretical training to ensure staff skills sets are appropriate to provide quality customer service • Equipment – this can include mechanical equipment (computers, ovens, blenders) and associated tools of the trade (plates, glassware, pens, cleaning cloths) • Time – staff need adequate time to perform their tasks in the correct manner • Appropriate allocation of work – appropriate allocation of customers per staff member to be able to deliver quality service. Management must ensure adequate levels of staff are on duty to perform the necessary • Support – staff must receive support and guidance from management • Fairness – equality in areas of pay, work rate, scheduling of activities.

Slide

Identifying internal customer needs

- In meetings, whether at a departmental or senior management level
- In staff briefings at the start of a shift
- During a shift as needs arise
- In staff de-briefings at the end of a shift

Slide

External customer needs

Generic customer needs

- Value for money
- 'Offering' reflecting what was advertised
- Expectations met / exceeded
- To feel respected
- To feel welcomed
- To be served by friendly staff

Slide 114

Slide No	Trainer Notes
114.	• Value for money • 'Offering' reflecting what was advertised • Expectations met / exceeded • To feel respected – which is why we use “Sir” and “Madam” • To feel welcomed – which is why we give all our customers a warm, genuine and sincere smile and welcome. We really are pleased to see them • To be served by friendly staff – which is again why we smile and why we spend that extra few seconds with them, talking about how their day went and so on.

Slide

External customer needs

Generic customer needs

- To be dealt with in a prompt and courteous manner
- To receive assistance when necessary
- To be in comfortable, clean surroundings
- To feel remembered and recognised
- To be heard and understood

Slide 115

Slide No	Trainer Notes
115.	• To be dealt with in a prompt and courteous manner – which is why we don't keep them waiting at reception, the bar, for room service, meals etc • To receive assistance when necessary – which is why we have excellent product and local knowledge and why we look for opportunities to pass this on to them whenever we can, even without their having to ask • To be in comfortable, clean surroundings – which is why we make sure the facilities, rooms, grounds and equipment are spotless • To feel remembered and recognised – which is why we use the customer's name as often as we can • To be heard and understood – which is why we listen to complaints and adopt the role of their advocate whenever there is a complaint, problem or dispute. We want to fix their problems, not create new ones.

Slide

External customer expectations

Customers have perceived expectations of what level of service they expect when visiting a venue arising from:

- Past visits
- Advertisements and promotional messages
- Competing hotels
- Industry standards
- Comments from family, friends and colleagues
- Price charged for the offering

Slide

Specific target market needs

Each target market in your business has their own unique needs.

What are the needs for the following market segments:

- Business
- Women
- Family
- Leisure
- Elderly
- Groups

Slide 117

Slide No	Trainer Notes
117.	• Business – computer and internet access, newspapers, executive lounges, laundry services, business or executive centre, business and news channels. Business men are more likely to frequent a hotel bar and eat in the restaurant • Women – hairdryers, larger mirrors, healthier food options, specific bathroom amenities, fashion magazines, bath. Business women are more likely to use the gym and eat room service • Family – interconnecting rooms, costs, entertainment options, child care facilities, children's television programs, package deals and safety • Leisure – cheaper rates, local attractions, concierge services • Elderly – single beds, medical facilities, suitable food options and cheaper rates • Groups – need for large allocation of rooms, cheap rates, meeting rooms, specialised menus, bus access and parking. Class Activity – General discussion • Are there any other major market segments that exist? • What needs do they have?

Slide

Identifying external customer needs

Staff must be pro-active and try to anticipate the needs of customers where possible.

This can be achieved through:

- Observation
- Asking questions
- Putting yourself in the shoes of the customer

Slide

Special needs customers

Customers who are unable to speak local language

- Use gestures
- Prepare multi-lingual documents and signs
- Employ bi-lingual staff

Slide 120

Slide No	Trainer Notes
120.	Attempts at gestures may include: • Pointing to indicate a location • Holding fingers up to establish quantities • Rubbing your hands to indicate temperature • Nodding your head in agreement • Shaking your head in disagreement • Using facial expressions to relay your feelings • Removing adjectives (descriptive words) from your speech • Slowing your speech down and speaking clearly and concisely • Avoiding using local idiom or slang. Where possible documents should be printed in a variety of languages to enable customers to understand information relating to the property and the surrounding region. The printing of a selection of documentation in various languages should include, but not be limited to: • Information compendium • Emergency procedures • Menus.

- Are targeted for individual staff to prepare them for a future role

Slide 125

Slide No	Trainer Notes
125.	Discussion What are examples of programs suited to: a) Whole organisation or department? b) Individuals or small groups? • Are provided for staff as a department-wide or organisation-wide activity– for example, all staff may be required to participate in a professional development activity on ‘time management’ • Are targeted at one (or more) individual staff to prepare them for a future role – such as promotion, to replace another staff member who is taking leave, to learn how to undertake new tasks associated with the introduction of a new product/service to the venue.

Slide

Slide

Mentoring

It is a relationship between two people where a more experienced person works in collaboration with a less experienced person to give the less experienced person the benefit of their:

- Knowledge
- Experience
- Perspective
- Contacts
- Insight
- Wisdom

Feedback from team

From time to time your colleagues will provide you with feedback and information. For them not to do this would mean they are not doing their job.

This feedback and information can be:

- Positive
- Negative
- Neutral

Slide 138

Slide No	Trainer Notes
138.	Class Activity – General discussion In your past experience: • What type of feedback is the most common? Why? • What are some examples of each type of feedback you have received?

Slide

Positive feedback

Positive feedback can involve team members passing on a comment they have heard about your excellent service.

- You should take a second or so to rejoice in such feedback
- Accept it and enjoy it because you've earned it
- Never simply dismiss it or brush it off
- Never say something like "Oh, it was nothing", or 'Just doing my job'
- Thank the person

Slide 139

Slide No

Trainer Notes

139.

Class Activity – General discussion

In the past, describe times when you have received positive feedback.

- How did it feel to receive it?

Slide

Negative feedback

Take the negative feedback in the right way:

- See it as an opportunity to improve
- Don't dwell on the negative message
- Don't shoot the messenger!

The keys are to:

- Listen to the criticism
- Determine objectively if there is truth in it
- Work out how to rectify things

Slide 140

Slide No	Trainer Notes
140.	Class Activity – General discussion In the past, describe times when you have received negative feedback. • How did it feel to receive it?

Slide

Neutral feedback

- Neutral information can occur when staff members deliver up-dates or new information about what's happening
- The result of this information is usually that you will need to factor it into your work and the priorities you have already set

Slide 141

Slide No	Trainer Notes
141.	Class Activity – General discussion In the past, describe times when you have received neutral feedback. • How did it feel to receive it?

Slide

Collecting feedback

Formal Feedback:

- Customer comment cards
- General Manager cocktail parties
- Interviews and follow up calls
- Meetings
- Performance reviews
- 360-degree assessment
- Team evaluations
- Workplace assessment

Slide 142

Slide No	Trainer Notes
142.	• Customer comment cards – these are established documents aimed at getting responses to a wide range of questions covering all facets of an operation • General Manager cocktail parties – this approach involves selected guests enjoying refreshments with senior management. It is common for management to ask questions about their stay and suggestions for improvement. This approach is also beneficial in finding out more about the customer, which can be used to provide more personalised service • Interviews and follow up calls – at times management may contact customers to find out about their experiences or visits • Meetings – staff meetings are held on a regular basis and normally will explore the performance of operations. At these meeting, comment cards from customers are discussed with strategies for improvement implemented • Performance reviews – this approach is used by management when providing feedback to staff regarding their performance. During these reviews, management will also ask staff for their suggestions or recommendations for improvement. At times, causes of poor staff performance will identify faults in the operation (lack of training, understaffing, limited or faulty equipment) which can be improved.

Slide

Collecting feedback

Informal Feedback:

- General discussion
- Observations
- Critical incident reviews
- Impromptu questioning of customers
- Coaching and mentoring
- Personal, reflective behaviour strategies

Slide 143

Slide No	Trainer Notes
143.	This approach is a very effective way to get feedback. This information may come in the form of 'gossip' or 'through the grapevine', however is the provider of the largest amount of feedback. Informal feedback involves collecting information and feedback outside the above mentioned formal avenues. This includes: • General discussion – whether with fellow staff or with customers, by interacting with people, you can get a good feel of what people are thinking • Observations – this is a great form of feedback. It is encouraged that staff observe the actions and reactions of customers and fellow staff. Most people are often uneasy about truthfully giving negative feedback, so this approach is useful in getting an accurate reading of what people are thinking in different situations.

Slide

Maintain personal work standards

Individual team members:

- Should have personal pride in their work
- Produce an outcome that they feel is of value and worth
- Have a personal set of standards in which they strive to obtain

Slide 144

Slide No	Trainer Notes
144.	Questions • Why is it important to have personal work standards? • What are examples of work standards you would have?

Slide

Maintain personal work standards

Slide

Non-discriminatory attitudes and language

All staff must be aware of the differences that exist between all stakeholders of the organisation.

A hospitality business is truly 'international' and has many 'differences':

- Backgrounds
- Beliefs
- Religions
- Cultures
- Countries

Slide 150

Slide No	Trainer Notes
150.	Things that one person may regard as 'normal', 'acceptable', 'likeable' or even 'preferable' can be, and frequently are, very different to what customers from different countries expect. Class Activity – General discussion Get audience members to discuss differences that exist when dealing with people from different countries, using the points in this slide as a guide.

Slide

Expectations of overseas customers

Customers from other countries and cultures could have differing views in terms of:

- Customer expectations
- Levels of formality and informality
- Appropriate non-verbal behaviour
- Communicating sincerity
- Dress and appearance

Class Activity – General discussion

What can a hotel do to cater for its international market? Use this question as the basis of a group activity.

Break the group into pairs and get each pair to identify 5-10 things they can do to cater to an international market.

As a trainer, to make the activity more challenging, you may allocate each group a country or market segment.

Slide

Non-discriminatory attitudes and language

Language difficulties

- Speak clearly
- Speak at normal volume
- Avoid idiomatic language
- Give the guest your full attention

Class Activity – General discussion

What are points to consider when using each of the points mentioned in this slide when working in an 'international' environment?

Slide

Non-discriminatory attitudes and language

Stress

Stress occurs in both customers and in staff who are serving them.

- What stresses do visitor's have?
- What stress does staff have?
- How can you reduce these stresses?

Slide 156

Slide No	Trainer Notes
156.	Visitors are often under a great deal of stress. They are in a foreign land, confronted with an alien language and not having even the basic day-to-day working knowledge that everyone simply takes for granted. And the staff who deal with them are also usually a bit stressed by the normal work routine, plus the challenge of having to cope with a difficult situation.
